COOLIDGE CALLS KELLOGG OVER FOREIGN ISSUES

China, Debts, Arms Parley and Mexico.

Swampscott, Mass., July 10.—[Special.]—Two important international matters—the situation in China and the protection of American property rights in Mexico—together with the war debt situation, are to be discussed between President Coolidge and Secretary Kellogg when the latter arrives tomorrow from his home in St. Paul. Under Secretary Grew also will be here with official papers from Washington bearing on the Mexican situation.

President Coolidge arranged that Secretary Kellogg should come to the seaside frequently this summer for conferences. This first meeting is expected to give the President his fullest information not only on the foreign debts but also upon responses made by the larger powers to the suggestion of another conference for the further limitation of armaments.

Hopes for Arms Conference.

Mr. Coolidge holds that these two subjects are closely allied, and he is hopeful that agreements will be made this fall by the debtor nations not only for funding their debts to the United States but for a conference, preferably in Washington, to discuss the subjects left untouched by the Washington conference, such as submarines, the use of poisonous gas in warfare, and perhaps reduction of land forces.

Mr. Coolidge intends to confer with ambassadors to the principal countries, who are expected to come here while on their annual leaves. He expects that Ambassador Herrick, France, and Ambassador Houghton, at the Court of St. James, will be among those who will give him first hand information.

Now that France has ratified the Washington treaty dealing with customs leased territory, and the foreign courts, President Coolidge believes there may be a consultation soon to carry into effect the complicated questions of China's affairs. It is Mr. Coolidge's belief that there will be a conference to consider united action in China as the result of the recent uprising against foreigners, but that the signatories to the Washington treaty will send representatives to the Chinese conference this fall.

Customs Question Important.

This customs conference is authorized under the Washington treaty. The government hopes to deal with China's problem in the rôle of "elder brother." The desire is to convince China of the willingness of the foreign powers to give up the special privileges they now enjoy, but only when China shows herself capable of supplying an effective substitute.

Brossard on Tariff Board.

By the appointment today of Edgar Brossard of Utah to be a member of the tariff commission to succeed William S. Culbertson, resigned, the administration has named three of the six commissioners. The commission is no longer "radical." Albertus Baldwin was appointed recently to succeed William Burgess, resigned, and A. J. Lewis, to succeed David J. Lewis. The chairman, Thomas O. Marvin of Massachusetts, is regarded as a high tariff advocate. The new appointee was recommended by Senator Smoot.

Grew on Way to Parley.

Washington, D. C., July 10.—[Special.]—Under Secretary of State Grew will leave tonight for Massachusetts to sit in the conference tomorrow on the Chinese situation. Other state department matters will also come in for some consideration.

The adoption today by the French senate of the two treaties relating to China which were adopted at the Washington conference on limitation of armaments, which had been approved by all the other signatory nations, was commented on favorably here today and was interpreted as showing that France is willing to go ahead with the proposed conference on Chinese affairs.

Officials here today, however, were inclined to minimize the significance of the Chinese situation, claiming that there were no new developments of a disturbing character and that the visit of Secretary Kellogg and Under Secretary Grew to Swampscott at this time was not unexpected.

EDITOR COVERS STORY WHEN HIS SON IS DROWNED

New York, July 10.—[Special.]—Garner P. Roney is a newspaper man by instinct and by virtue of long training. He recovered the body of his only son from a creek near Kinderhook today, but even while he was broken by the greatest sorrow of his life, he realized that the finding of the boy's body was news and that his paper should have it. So he went to the telegraph office and wrote the story for what it was worth as news, wrote it as calmly and as dispassionately as if the boy had been a stranger. Here is his dispatch:

"Kinderhook, N. Y., July 10. — Sought by state troopers, Boy Scouts and posses of citizens since his disappearance Wednesday, James Wynkop Roney, 9 year old son of Garner P. Roney, an assistant city editor of the New York Herald-Tribune, was found drowned in Kinderhook creek here today.

"The boy, whose parents live at 200 Columbia Heights, Brooklyn, had been living here with his grandmother, Mrs. Helena G. Roney. He left his grandmother's home Wednesday afternoon for a bike ride. When he did not return state troopers were notified and the search began.

"Early Thursday, Boy Scouts searching along the creek came on the boy's bike and clothes on the bank. Divers at once went to work to locate the body and after hours of effort it was found."

CHAUFFEUR FOR WOMAN BANDIT'S AUTO IS LATEST

As W. M. French, 4647 Lake Park avenue, was about to enter his home late last night, a costly sedan, driven by a colored chauffeur, pulled up to the curb. A young woman stylishly gowned in a blue suit and wearing a black turban alighted with her man companion. Both produced pistols and ordered French to hand over his money. He gave up $3 and the couple reentered their car and speeded away.

A few minutes later a couple answering the same description jumped on the running board of the automobile of George Blake, 6352 Ingleside avenue, at 44th street and Michigan avenue, thrust revolvers against him and forced him to drive to 51st and Morgan streets. There they took his car and $15.

Safety Pin Removed from Aurora Child's Stomach

Surgeons at St. Joseph's hospital, Aurora, yesterday removed from the stomach of Wilbur Greninger, 2 years old, son of J. S. Greninger, 446 Rosewood avenue, Aurora, an open safety pin 1½ inches long, which the child had swallowed Thursday night while being prepared for bed.

John D. Sells Homes to Son for 3 Millions

New York, July 10.—[Special.]—John D. Rockefeller today announced the sale of his four homes to his son, John D. Rockefeller Jr., for more than $3,000,000. He reserved the right to occupy them until his death.

The four residences are the 2,300 acre country estate at Pocantico Hills, Westchester county; the town house at 4 West 54th street, with garage at 125 West 55th street; country estate at Lakewood, N. J., and winter home at Ormond Beach, Fla.

Transfer Deed Filed.

Announcement that all four properties had been sold was made by the publicity office of Ivy L. Lee, after a transfer deed covering the sale of the Pocantico Hills estate had been filed in the county register's office, White Plains. The deed bore transfer tax stamps to $1,732.50, showing the value of the property to be $1,732,500 at the tax rate of a dollar a thousand.

The deed containing 241 pages was executed on July 7, the day before the elder Rockefeller's 86th birthday.

Intimations at White Plains that the sale had been made to evade the federal inheritance tax which would have amounted to several hundred thousand dollars on the Pocantico Hills property alone, and the federal gift tax, which would have been about $100,000 if the elder Rockefeller had given the estate to his son, were denied by Rockefeller representatives.

Denies Tax Evasion.

"Mr. Rockefeller Jr. bought the Pocantico property for about $1,700,000, as shown in the deed," said Lewis H. Lee. "This was a valuation fixed by real estate experts and was in excess of the taxable valuation, which is about $1,600,000. In addition Mr. Rockefeller Jr. has bought the town house and garage, the Lakewood estate, and the Florida estate, all at valuations fixed by real estate experts in excess of the taxable valuation. The price paid in round figures for the four pieces of property was more than $3,000,000.

"The property was not sold to evade the inheritance tax or the gift tax, as suggested in some of the evening newspapers. The money was paid in cash, so that the disposition of the property has no effect on the size of the estate of Mr. Rockefeller Sr."

Although the sal of his residences does not reduce the size of the elder Rockefeller's estate it eliminates the care of administering and maintaining four properties of such large extent.

Made Enormous Gifts.

The elder Rockefeller has never stated, as did the late Andrew Carnegie, that he intended to dispose of his fortune before death so that he might die poor, but all that is known about his public and private gifts in recent years indicates that he is "poor" compared to his position at the peak of his fortune.

At one time his wealth was estimated at $1,000,000,000 and he was regarded as the richest man in the world, but since then he has given away $500,000,000 to educational and scientific foundations and to other public institutions. He has also made large gifts to children and grandchildren by means of trust funds or otherwise. Recent litigation showed that some years ago he established a $10,000,000 trust fund for his daughter, Edith Rockefeller McCormick.

POISONED GIRL IS TAKEN TO COURT; FIANCE ON TRIAL

Frances Naciate, a good looking 22 year old girl, was carried on a stretcher from her sick bed at 3549 South Union avenue yesterday to the South Chicago court, to appear, against her fiancé, Stanley Marcin, a grocer, 215 East 107th street, who is accused by the police of forcing the girl to swallow poison on April 28.

Frances says she wants to die. She is suffering from the combined effects of chloroform and lye, and has consistently refused medical treatment since she left the county hospital on May 28. Doctors say the death she desires will most certainly come if she persists in her attitude.

Judge Schulman continued the case until Aug. 5 to allow the police to make further investigation, fixing bond for Marcin at $10,000. He was forced to spend last night in jail.

MOTHER PAINTS BACKGROUND OF GIRL'S MURDER

Suspicion Narrowed to Costello.

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.

Madeline White, the 16 year old girl whose daring fling at life was lopped off Thursday night when she was attacked, then murdered and her body shoved under a porch, was the not illogical product of a broken family plus a youthful passion for sophistication, according to an analysis made yesterday by her mother.

Mrs. Margaret White, the mother, talked as she propped herself up on her cot in the tuberculosis ward of the county hospital.

An Ill-Starred Family.

And these were the ingredients, as the mother sketched them, which entered into these last six months of Madeline's somewhat complicated life:

A father who had boasted to his children of his loves and who had finally deserted his family for the woman downstreet.

A small brother in the parental school.

A tired mother, who worked overtime in a lamp shade factory until the spot on her lungs got the better of her and sent her to the hospital.

A big sister, Genevieve, who earned $24 a week.

Madeline's own juvenile assurance that she could take care of herself.

Learns Later Girl Is Dead.

As Mrs. White told of her struggles, which reflected themselves in Madeline's struggles, she was unaware that the girl over whom she was worrying was dead. A bit later they told her, soothingly. They urged her not to ask questions.

And she was too shocked and too tired to make much of an outcry.

So she didn't know that Raymond Costello, known about the neighborhood as "that bully, Baldy," was being held by Capt. Michael Lee of Englewood police station and Assistant State's Attorney Michael Romano, as the man who had done those two ugly deeds, the attack and the murder.

Costello Is Taken.

Just after Genevieve White had identified as that of her sister the bruised body which Joseph Giddis, a milkman, had found under the porch at 5931 South La Salle street, the police had gone to 5220 Princeton avenue and taken "Baldy" away from Mabel, whom he married last November upon his release from Pontiac.

All day long Costello told his story, a story which made him the onlooker while one William Mulholland made preparations to attack the girl; the story which placed Costello on the sidewalk fence while the actual murder was committed.

Mulholland Tells His Story.

But last night Mulholland, who lives at 5700 Justine avenue, walked into the states' attorney's office and told a straightaway story of having met Costello at Wentworth avenue, of having spoken to him and of having passed on. Two friends of his, Tony Sullivano, 225 West 59th street, and Robert Fielding, 5307 Shields avenue, told the officials they had been with Mulholland during the time the murder is supposed to have been committed.

So they took Mulholland into the room where Assistant State's Attorney Robert McMillian was questioning Costello and Baldy looked up, thought a minute, and said:

"Naw, that ain't the fellow. It's another Mulholland."

Presently they released Mulholland, who had established a definite alibi.

Brick Seeks to Set Up Alibi.

About that time Andrew Brick, 5607 Shields avenue, who was released from Pontiac Thursday noon and arrived in Chicago at 5:30 that afternoon, succeeded in all but effecting his release, as police suspicion narrowed down to Costello as the sole murderer.

Brick's explanation, substantiated by his father and his sister, Marie, was that he went with Costello to call on Madeline and her sister, Genevieve, that Genevieve went away with "Chuck" Dettling, and that he left and went home to greet his family after two years in Pontiac.

Brick said he was in the house by 9:45. His father said he was, that he helped "cut the old man's hair." Marie recalled that when she and two of her sisters returned home from the Trianon before 11 they were told there was a "surprise" for them, and walked into a bedroom to find Andrew asleep.

Brick was held for further question-

MAKE-UP OF JURY THAT WILL RULE BIBLE VS. DARWIN

Dayton, Tenn., July 10.—[Special.]—The following is the jury that will try John T. Scopes on the charge of teaching the theory of evolution:

W. F. Robinson, farmer, Baptist.
J. W. Dagley, farmer, Methodist.
Jim Riley, farmer, Baptist. Says he cannot read.
W. G. Taylor, farmer, Methodist.
R. L. Gentry, farmer and school teacher, Baptist.
J. R. Thompson, fruit grower and former United States marshal, Methodist.
Jesse Goodrich, shipping clerk, member of the Disciples' church.
J. H. Bowman, farmer, Baptist.
B. W. Day, farmer, Baptist.
R. L. West, farmer, Baptist.
J. S. Wright, farmer, Baptist.
W. D. Smith, farmer, Baptist.

All of the twelve said they could give a man a fair trial, but the general sentiment among them was that the Bible was good enough for them, and their ideas of evolution were vague.

HUMAN NATURE IN DAYTON

Dayton, Tenn., July 10.—(AP)—Humor and pathos overflowed here today when counsel gathered from distant states joined with Tennessee lawyers to launch a court proceedings widely heralded as one of the most portentous legal battles of the century.

Within the trial arena sat the principals in the drama. Here was Darrow, defender of Leopold and Loeb; there Bryan, thrice national leader of his party and once holder of the highest cabinet position, and there was Raulston on the judicial pedestal.

Twice the sweating, mopping, fanning throng burst into applause and marked their mental attitude by a vent of feeling. When Bryan entered the room they cheered. They shouted even more wildly when a candidate for the jury testified that "of course" he believed the Bible.

From Bryan today, and from his son who sat near him, no single word issued to enter the records of the case. Yet his every movement was closely marked and he was busy shaking hands in every recess.

Within the courtroom the heat was intense. Darrow and Bryan set a precedent for their associates by drawing off their coats. Collars were loosened and the chief actors, like the listeners, fanned themselves vigorously. Photographers were everywhere, in the courtroom and on the approaches to the county capitol.

An impressive silence ruled while the court, in charging the grand jury, read the first chapter of Genesis. Reporters called it significant. Leaving the place, one elderly listener was heard to exclaim in happiness at the reading of "the blessed old book."

Many incidents lightened the gravity of the trial procedure. Infectious laughter ensued when some one passed around among attorneys a caricature of Bryan which represented him as a member of a jungle race. The picture, captioned "Yet He Denies His Lineage," was passed to the Floridan, who shook with appreciative mirth. The judge came down from his platform to look at the exhibit. He chided the fundamentalist champion, who exclaimed:

"It's a work of art."

The presiding judge was backed by his wife, his two daughters, and his mother-in-law. Mrs. Raulston sat with her family just to her husband's left and rear. On one occasion she stepped up to the desk and replaced the judge's broken glasses with a new pair of spectacles. Within the railing sat also Mrs. William Jennings Bryan.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Dayton, Tenn., July 10.—[Special.]—John Thomas Scopes is to be tried by a jury made up chiefly of hardshell Baptists and southern Methodist farmers of middle age who have extremely hazy ideas about evolution but very firm beliefs as to the validity of the Bible in all things.

"It is as we expected," said Clarence Darrow tonight, after the jury had been chosen in a three hour court session before Judge John T. Raulston.

"We are satisfied," said William Jennings Bryan, who sat in court all day without uttering a word for the public. And this is the twenty-ninth anniversary of his "cross of gold" speech.

Took What It Could Get.

There is one man on the jury who cannot read or write. The state accepted him without a quiver. The defense exercised its three peremptory challenges, saw worse coming and took what it could get.

Mr. Scopes is a convicted man, unless a miracle happens and unless the Lord speaks in a way that the devout hill-folk of Tennessee do not expect.

It took a reconvened grand jury only one hour to make a new investigation of the Scopes case and indict him again for having taught that theory of evolution to his high school pupils which is said to be in conflict with the Biblical story of creation, which is against the peace and dignity of the state of Tennessee and a criminal matter termed by the court today a "high misdemeanor."

Crowd Applauds Minister.

The efforts of a minister who does not believe in evolution to get on the jury to try Scopes furnished one of the most amusing incidents of the day. The crowd broke out in applause.

Everybody seemed to want to get on the jury. There was only one man of those summoned who said that he had a fixed opinion. All the rest said in effect that they did not understand evolution, had only heard of it by rumor and by reading since the case began, and believed strongly in the Bible as an inspired, scientific, and all other kinds of a document, but still they were willing to give Scopes a fair trial.

Mr. Darrow, who was given the title of "colonel" today, by his honor, the judge, was given a new lesson in jury selection. Instead of twelve men being called to sit in a row, one man was called at a time from a list kept in the sheriff's old black hat on the judge's desk.

Before Cameras of World.

The prospective juror had to stand before the great crowd and the eyes of 150 reporters and the cameras of the world and tell what he thought of God and evolution and the Bible, shifting uneasily from one foot to the other, hat in hand.

The courtroom was a study in suspenders and hickory shirts. One man only of the jurors wore a costume that would excite no comment in the north. He is a white coated southerner of the old type, a former United States marshal, a plantation owner.

The scope of the trial came in question somewhat today when the state attorneys made it clear that they would not permit any evidence from scientists and theologians along the lines outlined by the defense, that the theory of evolution does not conflict with the Bible.

See Change of Front.

This is taken by Mr. Darrow and others as a change of front on the part of Mr. Bryan. In his banquet speech the other night the fundamentalist leader said that this was the religious battle of the century, a "duel to the death" between religion and science. If the plans of his associates are carried out the battle will simmer to nothing more than the question of whether a school teacher has violated a state law and whether this law is constitutional. As this would give Mr. Bryan no chance to make a great religious address, it does not appear that he would favor a ruling of this sort by the court.

This phase of the battle is to be argued out Monday morning, when the next session of court will be held. Then both state and defense must outline their theories, and the court will rule on the question of the admissibility of scientific evidence.

Even if this is admitted the defense will have only a few witnesses, each one a man of admitted authority in his special science.

Twice the first chapter of Genesis was read, once to the grand jury and later to the trial jury.

QUESTION A MINISTER

Soon after the questioning of veniremen began there was a remarkable scene when the Rev. J. P. Massingill was examined as a juror.

The examination, in part, follows:

Q.—Have you read any account of the charge, Mr. Massingill, undertaking to give the details of the charge and what the evidence was? A.—Yes, sir, I have read a sketch of it.

Q.—Did you read what the evidence was, given before the magistrate's court, or whether it has been tried, or not? A.—I don't recall.

Q.—Now, Mr. Massingill, could you go into the jury box and wholly disregard any impression or opinion you have? A.—Yes sir.

Q.—And try the case wholly on the law and the evidence rendering a fair and impartial verdict to both sides? A.—I think so, yes sir,

COURT: He seems to be competent, gentlemen.

Questions by Mr. Darrow:

Q.—What is your business? A.—I am a minister.

Q.—Where do you preach? A.—I preach over the country in the rural sections.

Q.—Never preach on evolution? A.—I don't think so, definitely. That is, on evolution alone.

Q.—Now, you wouldn't want to sit on this jury unless you were fair, would you?. A.—Certainly I would want to be fair; yes, sir.

Q.—Did you ever preach on evolution? A.—Yes; I haven't as a subject; just taken that up, in connection with other subjects I have referred to it in discussing it.

Strictly for the Bible.

Q.—Against it or for it? A.—I am strictly for the Bible.

Q.—I am talking about evolution. I am not talking about the Bible. Did you preach for or against evolution?

MR. RILEY—Is that a fair question, Judge?

COURT—Yes, answer the question.

A.—Well, I preached against it, of course. [Applause.]

Q.—Why "Of Course."

COURT—Let's have order.

MR. DARROW—Your honor, I am going to ask to have anybody excluded that applauds.

COURT—Yes, if you repeat that, ladies and gentlemen, you will be excluded. We cannot have any applause. If you have any feeling in this case you must not express it in the court house. So don't repeat the applause.

Has Strong Conviction.

Q.—You have a very firm conviction—a very strong opinion against evolution, haven't you? A.—Well, some points in evolution.

Q.—Are you trying to get on this jury? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Have you formed a strong conviction against evolution? A.—Well, I have.

Q.—You think you would be a fair juror in the case? A.—Well, I can take the law and the evidence in the case, I think and try a man right.

Q.—Have you heard about Mr. Scopes? A.—Yes, sir; yes.

Q.—You have heard that he is an evolutionist, haven't you? A.—Yes, sir, I have.

Q.—And in your opinion he has been teaching contrary to the Bible?

STATE TAKES EXCEPTION

ATTORNEY GENERAL STEWART—If your honor please, I except to that. The question involved here will be whether or not—not, I apprehend, if Mr. Scopes taught anything that is contrary to the Bible—that isn't the question. He has asked him whether or not he has prejudged the guilt of the defendant.

COURT.—He has a right to know that.

MR. DARROW—What was that question? [Question read.]

A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—You have that opinion now? A.—I have no opinion to convince me otherwise.

COURT—Question by the court:

COURT—Have you, in your mind now, Mr. Massingill, a fixed opinion that he taught a theory contrary to the theory of the Bible as to the creation of man? A.—Yes, sir.

Thinks He Could Be Fair.

Q.—Would that have any weight with you or any bearing with you in the trial of this case if you were selected as a juror? A.—I think I am fair and honest enough to lay aside things and give a man justice.

COURT.—You may proceed, gentlemen. He seems to be competent.

MR. DARROW.—You now have an opinion that evolution is contrary to the Bible and that my client has been teaching evolution? A.—From the information I have in regard to his teaching.

Q.—You could change it if you heard evidence enough to change it on? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Otherwise you couldn't? A.—I have no right to; I don't think.

MR. DARROW.—I challenge for cause.

COURT.—Well, I want every juror to start in with an open mind. I will excuse you, Mr. Massingill.

Examination of several other jurors threw some light upon the situation and gave Mr. Darrow an opportunity to inject his theories of the case into the record.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Dayton, Tenn., July 10.—[Special.]—The evolution trial, for me, partakes of the nature of old home week. After flivvering several hundred miles among James Whitcomb Riley's folks in Hoosierdom and crossing this long corridor of a state, I view several hundred of my own people, and they look pretty good.

Certainly they confirm all over again a pet theory as to the essential identity of all rural and small town America and the basic soundness of the population. Their occasional political vagaries are no different from the aldermanic asininities among great urban groups.

One fact stands out in Tennessee today—there is no wave of fanaticism in the making. The people of the state, at least the parts of it I have traversed, are not excited about the monkey law. The crowd in Dayton today is smaller than many throngs I have seen in similar Tennessee county seats on a "first Monday" when the "quarterly court" used to meet and afford the horse and mule traders a ready market.

When I read some weeks ago that Tennessee had passed an anti-evolution law, I drew the conclusion that the forces and the psychology back of it were essentially the same as those which precipitated the great prohibition struggle of 1908, when this state was the pivotal point upon which the third great dry wave of American history turned.

After coming down here, picking up the dropped threads of that thrilling year and seeing lots of the old boys who fought at the barricades of Jeffersonian liberalism in that time, I am of the same opinion still. But I am vastly encouraged.

This monkey law is an aftermath to prohibition, but it is at best a feeble kick of a dying urge, and the politicians who had grown accustomed to the terror of organized intolerance now appear to have fooled themselves. There was no great demand for the law in the state at large, it passed on the momentum of a spent sentiment and the mass attitude is apparently one of amused annoyance, principally directed against the publicity that has followed.

Some superficial differences do exist between the lineup on this question and the lineup in 1908 on prohibition. The present governor took a notable part in the fight against intolerance in 1908. But he signed the present law. It is rather evident that he did so to save his most progressive highway and school policies from shipwreck at the hands of fanaticism in the legislature.

This was undoubtedly egged on surreptitiously by shortsighted financial interests which dislike his progressive fiscal policies designed to produce the revenues needed for the rapidly advancing commonwealth.

By the way, the prohibition prototype of the monkey law movement has the same sort of aid from powerful interests which ought to have known better.

SCOPES' TEACHING OF MAN'S DESCENT SOLE ISSUE, STATE CLAIMS

Dayton, Tenn., July 10.—(AP)—The only issue involved in the Scopes case is whether or not the defendant taught that man descended from a lower order of animal, Attorney General Stewart of the 18th judicial circuit of Tennessee, said in a statement to the Associated Press tonight.

Mr. Stewart issued the statement as a clarification of his views and supporting his contention that the introduction of expert testimony in an effort to show there is no conflict between evolution and the Bible would be irrelevant.

The statement follows:

"The proposed evidence of scientists would tend to show that there is no conflict between the Bible and science because they claim that the evolutionary process was simply the method by which God created man.

"It is my understanding that Mr. Scopes will not deny that he taught man descended from a lower order of animals.

"If this be true, he is guilty of the violation of the law and all the evidence of scientists within his reach cannot save him. The law, itself, says that it shall not be taught to the students in the public schools that man descended from a lower order of animals.

"That is the issue and the only issue in this case—whether Scopes taught this or did not teach it. Scientists might claim that man descended from a lower order of animals by the process of God's evolution, but this can make no difference."

STATE LITTLE WORRIED

The court qualified all the jurors and the state did not even take the trouble to examine them except in one or two instances. They excused only one man.

"The most intelligent man drawn," said Prof. John R. Neal, sadly. "He comes from my town."

J. W. Dagley, sworn and accepted by court and prosecution, was then examined by Mr. Darrow.

Q.—Have you ever known anything about evolution, or read about it? A.—I have not.

Q.—You don't know anything about it at this time? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Are you a church member? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Of what church? A.—Methodist.

Knows Nothing of Evolution.

Q.—And at this time you haven't any idea about evolution at all? A.—No, sir, I have not.

Q.—You don't know what it is, do you? A.—Well, I—I think I know what it is.

Q.—Well, have you any prejudice against it? A.—Well, I don't believe I understand it well enough, to say I have any prejudice either way——

Q.—And you would give this man a fair trial, would you?, A.—Yes, sir, I would.

Heard About Evolution.

Jim Riley, a farmer, and Baptist, came in for the same sort of examination by Mr. Darrow.

Q.—Do you know anything about evolution? A.—No, not particularly.

Q.—Heard about it? A.—Yes, I have heard about it.

Q.—Know what is is? A.—I don't know much about it.

Q.—Have you any prejudice against the idea of evolution? A.—No, I have no prejudice.

Q.—Ever heard anybody preach any sermons on it? A.—No.

Q.—Ever heard Mr. Bryan speak about it? A.—No, sir; I can't read.

Mr. Darrow—You said you couldn't read. Is that due to your eyes.

A.—No; I am uneducated.

W. G. Taylor, Methodist, examined by Mr. Darrow:

Q.—You have heard about evolution, I suppose? A.—O, yes, I have heard of evolution all my life.

Q.—Did you ever hear anybody talk against it or for it? A.—Well, I have heard lots of talk against it, and some talk for it, whether either one knew what they were talking about, I don't know. They might have been like me, did not know.

Heard Sermon On It.

Q.—Did you ever hear anybody speak on it? A.—Yes, sir, I have heard them speak, preach on it, that is minister of the gospel preach on it.

Q.—Well, did you form any opinion on that account? A.—I don't know that he told me any more than I knew about it.

Tom Jackson, examined and later rejected by Mr. Darrow:

Q.—Have you got a strong opinion one way or the other on evolution? A.—Yes, I have my opinion on evolution, yes.

Q.—Do you know where you got it? A.—I got it from the Bible.

Q.—You have a prejudice against evolution, have you not? A.—Well, to some extent, I suppose I have.

Q.—And against it? A.—Yes, I am against teaching evolution—evolution of man, not evolution of the mind.

Q.—Do you think you would be a fair juror in this case, where Mr. Scopes is charged with teaching evolution? A.—I don't know; I would do the best I could.

MORE OR LESS PREJUDICE

R. L. Gentry, farmer and teacher, Baptist for 25 years, was examined:

Q.—Well, now you have, of course, read and thought some about the theory of evolution, have you? A.—Yes, sir; I read the books and taught evolution.

Q.—Do you think your position as a school teacher would embarrass you any as a juror? A.—Well, not as I know of any.

Q.—Have you read the Bible lately?

A.—Yes, sir; I have read the Bible a great deal.

Q.—Have you ever yourself formed any opinion from the theory of evolution that it is in conflict with the Bible? [Objections by Mr. Stewart.]

THE COURT—I anticipated that question will arise and I will have to pass on it later on perhaps.

MR. DARROW—I didn't want the court to get set on it. I am satisfied.

THE COURT—I am not going to get set on anything but a chair right now.

Q.—Have you read the various books and magazines and discussions that bear upon the question of whether there is a conflict between——? A.—I have read a little magazine here, a little while ago, called "The Conflict," that is the name of it, and another one called the "Present Fruit," that says that the Bible and evolution are contrary. They can't go together.

Q.—You have settled in your own mind without reading the little magazine as to whether you think they are in conflict? A.—Yes, yes, sir.

Q.—Do you think you could be a perfectly fair juror? A.—Yes, sir.

Other examinations were along this line. All the jurors had more or less deep prejudice in favor of Mr. Bryan's theory on evolution. But they were without bitterness and expressed a sincere conviction that they could give the defendant a fair trial.

CROWD GATHERS EARLY

A brilliant comet whirled on its way through space above the Dayton horizon last night and the day of the trial dawned with red and angry sun and a still tepid atmosphere. From the hills, the mule teams and dust covered cars drove into town early and parked and hitched around the courthouse yard, the center of interest.

Concession stands were up. Beggars were abroad, blind singers from the Holy Roller camp, itinerant preachers, pamphleteers. Under the deep shade of the trees as motley a crowd gathered as can be imagined. In the sun the trenches were dug for the barbecue and the sides of beef were put on the spits.

"Bible Champion" Busy.

Judges, lawyers, and newspaper men were up with the 7 o'clock breakfast gong and all began to drift toward the courthouse long before the opening hour. Derk Carter, "Bible champion," who claims to be the first human since Joan of Arc to talk directly with God, had been busy early and had painted a huge sign at the courtyard gates:

"The kingdom of God and Paradise street is at hand. Do you want to be a sweet angel? Forty days of prayer itemizing your sins and iniquities for eternal life? God will talk to you in voice."

A ballad singer from the Hills had a place at a little organ by the sidewalk. The "mansion home" of the defense counsel was besieged early. One of the visitors was E. Haldeman—Julius of Girard, Kans., an iconoclast and publisher of radical views. He wanted Clarence Darrow to get him a seat at the trial. Henry L. Mencken was wandering around the streets early, interviewing fundamentalists. The first arrivals passed the religious groups and then ran into batteries of camera men.

Hundred Reporters Busy.

In the courtroom, more than one hundred reporters were ranged around the arena. The judge's bench was decorated with a wreath of flowers, like a funeral wreath. A tiny girl in overalls sat on one corner of the desk through all the proceedings and the judge's pretty daughters had seats by his side.

The courtroom was soon filled. Special policemen in hot blue uniforms, sent over from Chattanooga, were sworn in as special bailiffs. The crowd wanted to see "The man Darrow." He came in early, accompanied by Prof. John R. Neal, Arthur Garfield Hays and Dudley Field Malone. O. M. Thompson, former partner of Darrow, had been added to the defense staff.

The long defense table was at the right of the judge, extending to the rail that fenced in all the principals. On the other side was the prosecution table. William Jennings Bryan, Jr., and Wallace Haggard were the first arrivals there.

Applause for Bryan.

A few minutes before 9 o'clock Mr. Bryan entered. He wore his black alpaca, a black ministerial tie, and white pleated shirt. He was applauded as soon as the bald head and gray locks were recognized, weaving through the mob at the door.

"Come right in," said Judge John T. Raulston, who descended from the bench to greet the "king of the fundamentalists."

There was more applauding.

Mr. Bryan and Mr. Darrow approached the center of the fenced space and shook hands.

More and more applause.

Photographers rushed the arena and climbed on chairs and tables.

PRAYER OPENS COURT

"Open court with prayer, Brother Cartwright," said Judge Raulston, and the voice of a little man in black, the Rev. L. M. Cartwright of the Methodist church, South, soon resounded through the room, calling upon an invisible presence. The windows were wide open and the dark maples nodded outside. There came up through the windows the hum of the crowd below, the voice of another exhorter in the yard, the faint music of an organ, the cricket sounds of the telegraph instruments strung around the rail, the snapping of shutters as the camera men took in this remarkable opening of a criminal trial.

Rev. Cartwright's Prayer.

The prayer, in part, follows:

"Oh, God, our Divine Father, we recognize Thee as the Supreme Ruler of the Universe, in Whose hands are the lives and destinies of all men, and of all the world.

"We are conscious, our Father, that Thou art the source of our wisdom and of our power. We are incapable of thinking pure thoughts or performing righteous deeds unaided by Thee and in our frailty and our ignorance we come to Thee this morning, our Divine Father, that we may seek from Thee that wisdom to so transact the business of this court in such a way and manner as that Thy Name may be honored and glorified among men, and we therefore beseech Thee, our Father, that Thou will give to the court this morning a sufficient share of the divine spirit as will enable the court to so administer its affairs as that justice may come to all and that God's standard of purity and holiness may be upheld.

Kept the Great Truth.

"Oh, God, in the midst of all, help us to remember that Thou art on Thy throne and that Thou knowest the secrets of our hearts, and that Thou art acquainted with the motive back of every act and thought; and may Thou also be conscious of the fact, our Heavenly Father, that there is coming a day in which all of the nations of the earth shall stand before Thy judgment bar and render an accounting for the deeds done in the body, and grant, our Father, that we may have kept in mind the great truth that we are amenable to God, and that Thou wilt search us, and that Thou will reward us according to our deeds."

The defendant, Scopes, and his father, Thomas Scopes, sat at the defense table with the young chemist, George W. Rappleyea, who started all this trouble. Scopes was unconcerned and was hardly noticed. The attorney general of the district, A. T. Stewart, sat opposite, taking the active part in the state proceedings. Mr. Bryan sat well back, coat off, fanning himself, enjoying it all, the great man of the day.

With the prayer over, the court and lawyers assembled on the bench for pictures. It was seen here that Judge Ben McKenzie, of the prosecution staff, had out-Darrowed Mr. Darrow in the matter of suspenders. While the Chicago lawyer wore a coat, Judge McKenzie had his coat off and the suspenders were in full view of the world. He is the man put up to "trim Darrow" in the local eye.

Calls for the Docket.

"Is the attorney general here?" asked the judge.

"Yes, sir."

"Come up here. Let me have the docket, Mr. Clerk."

The judge than read case 5231, the state of Tennessee vs. John Thomas Scopes.

"Order in the courtroom—no smoking," said the judge.

Mr. Stewart, young and serious, rated as a good, hard headed lawyer, stepped up and told the court that a new indictment would be proper in this case.

"Do you want a grand jury?" asked the court.

The state did. The grand jury was handy, in the crowd.

Judge Welcomes Lawyers.

Mr. Neal, just before a recess to call the jury, had the foreign lawyers presented to the court.

"Here are Mr. Bryan and his son," announced Mr. Stewart. "They need no introduction."

The court bowed profoundly and welcomed the strangers.

The jurors were then called. This was the same jury that had indicted Scopes in the first case, with John Rose, foreman. All householders and freeholders of the county. One of the men called objected.

"Brother Hines, want to say something?" asked the court.

"Well, I am a minister and I'd like to be excused."

"This is not a petit jury but a grand jury," said the court. "It will not take more than 30 or 40 minutes."

"All right, I can serve on that," said the minister grimly.

A HIGH MISDEMEANOR

The jurors were sworn and the court charged them with the same charge he had used in the original indictment. He also read the first chapter of Genesis again and instructed them that violation of the anti-evolution law was, in his opinion, a high misdemeanor. He instructed them to be of "open mind" and to proceed with the new investigation of the facts. They were not to consider the wisdom or policy of the law.

"Will you be prepared to return a bill before noon?" he asked.

The state attorneys assured him that the jury would and a recess was ordered until 11 o'clock. It was then 10. The jurors retired, looked over the text book that Scopes had used in his class and heard again the testimony of students that their young teacher had taught them that man originated from first forms of life in the sea and advanced to his present stage by long complex processes.

The crowd drifted out to listen to preaching and music and to gossip under the trees and buy soft drinks while the grand jurors were proceeding to "open their minds."

Mr. Bryan was in close touch all morning with Patrick Henry Callahan of Louisville, prominent Catholic worker, and with Benedict Elder, secretary for Catholic publications. They sat at the prosecution bench.

Before 11 o'clock every one was back in place and the jurors came in soon and sat within the railing, thirteen seats facing the jury.

"Have you a report, Mr. Foreman?" asked the judge.

"Yes, sir."

The new indictment, No. 5232, charging the same offense, that Scopes' teaching had denied the story of creation as told in the Bible, was returned. The court thanked and discharged the jurors, but they kept their seats to see the show.

The first indictment was then quashed by motion by the state. It was all done because of possible irregularity in the special terms of court in May, the prosecution lawyers said.

SQUABBLE OVER EXPERTS

Mr. Darrow arose and said the defense had arranged for a number of scientific and other witnesses to test the question as to whether evolution does deny the Biblical story, and wanted to know how soon they could be notified to come.

The court wanted to know how long it would take the state to pick a jury. Mr. Stewart said a half day. Mr. Darrow said that in view of the great publicity and the nature of the case it would take considerable longer, as he hoped to get an impartial jury. He raised the question of the competency of the evidence of the scientists.

There was much buzzing among the lawyers on this and Mr. Stewart finally said:

"Mr. Darrow is going to insist on science and Bible people giving their views on evolution. That will be resisted by the state as vigorously as we know how. We have agreed to take this question up out of order and suggest that it be disposed of after the jury is obtained."

The court insisted on going ahead with the jury selection and ordered a venire of 100 new men at 1:30 o'clock. Recess was taken until that time.

SCOPES GETS LIBERAL CHURCH'S DEGREE OF DOCTOR OF RELIGION

Denver, Colo., July 10.—(AP)—John T. Scopes today was awarded a degree of doctor of universal religion by the Liberal church of Denver. The degree authorizes Scopes to establish "a liberal church of evolution wherever and whenever he desires," and clothes him with the rights of a minister.

The Liberal church was organized nationally five years ago and its membership includes, according to Frank H. Rice, president of the Denver church, "religious and scientific minded people who practice and teach the ideal of religious tolerance."

MONKEY GLAND MAN AND OTHER DOCTORS EYE SCOPES TRIAL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, July 10.—Dr. Serge Voronoff was asked today if he believed the transplantation of monkey glands in man would have an effect just the reverse of the Darwin theory, that is, that the grafting of monkey glands in man would transform the human race into monkeys in the course of centuries.

"I told you I don't feel like talking monkeys today," he replied, angrily.

The persistent correspondent asked Dr. Voronoff to confirm or deny a popular rumor that the children of his monkey glanded clients had shown extraordinary tree climbing agility and other Simian proclivities.

"I am not going to be tricked into talking today," he replied furiously, though he should have been in good mood as he received the Legion of Honor today for his efforts to grow longer wool on sheep by transplantation of glands.

Dr. Voronoff is following the Scopes trial closely, and many Paris savants believe if the Darwin theory ever is confirmed Dr. Voronoff's operation will be recognized as highly dangerous.

CARDINAL DENIES CHURCH FUNERAL FOR TONY GENNA

Quiet Services Today Are Family's Plan.

Once again Cardinal Mundelein has denied the rites of the Catholic church to a slain gangster, it was learned yesterday when the funeral was being planned for Tony Genna, third of the famed brothers who were killed.

It was said that the undertaker, Fred S. De Cola, sought to have the body admitted to the Guardian Angel church and a requiem high mass sung. The pastor, Father Sinfouletti, asked the sanction of the cardinal and it was refused, according to the word to the Genna family.

Quiet Burial Today.

So Tony, who was shot three times Wednesday morning, in all probability will be buried today as his brother Mike was buried less than a month ago, secretly. That, at least, was the impression conveyed by the undertaker and by Sam Genna, one of the surviving brothers.

Angelo, the first of the Genna brothers to be slain, had a regal funeral, one said to have outdone the funeral of Dean O'Banion, that gang leader whose murder was attributed to the Genna brothers. A similar funeral was planned for Mike, second of the brothers to be killed, but did not take place.

Collins Orders Simplicity.

Chief of Police Collins had decided that the spectacles of funerals of great pomp and splendor for slain gunmen was to end. He let it be known the police would disrupt any such funeral and arrest the participants. The result was that Mike's body was taken to the cemetery with no ceremony and with no attendants, only his brothers being at the graveside.

So it is to be with Tony's body, the family let it be known. Sam Genna and Peter Genna, the only blood relatives now in Chicago, said they had no desire to keep either themselves or their slain brothers in the public's mind. They want to have the deaths forgotten, their statement said, and they don't want to add to the clamor against them.

Hold Grocer as Witness.

Charles Cutillo Sanphilipi, owner of the grocery store at 1057 Grand avenue, in front of which Genna was shot, was held in $5,000 bonds yesterday as an accessory after the fact to the murder. This because the police believed he was able to name the murderers and would not do so.

Sergts. Edward Balata and Walter Payne, seeking witnesses, discovered one in Don La Fite, who lives at 1161 Grand avenue and is a sign painter. He said he was on the opposite corner when the shooting started and that after Genna was shot he heard Sanphilipi, whom he knows, say "Don't shoot me, I'll pay."

Sanphilipi previously had said he was an eye witness to the shooting and that he could identify the killers, but he didn't know them. Chief of Detectives Schoemaker said he believed the man was telling a straight story, but that he feared he never would identify any one.

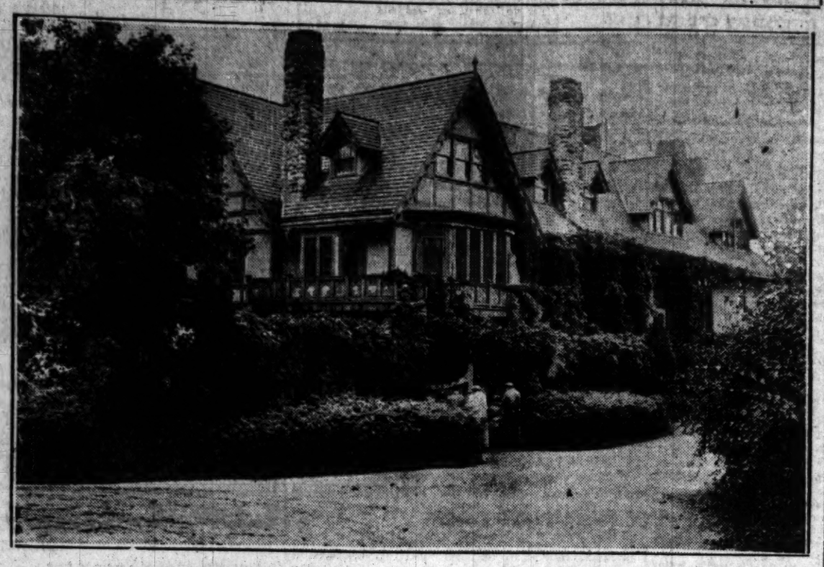
La Fite confronted Sanphilipi in the office of Capt. Joseph Palcsynski yesterday and repeated his story. Sanphilipi insisted he was inside his store, not outside, when the shooting started.

Former Judge Explains.

Former Judge Bernard P. Barasa said yesterday of the Unione Siciliana, saying the Gennas were not members since the days when the late Anthony D'Andrea was the head of it. Since then, Attorney Barasa declared, the society has become a benevolent and fraternal organization of standing and good reputation as well as financial stability.

"The Gennas would have been killed if they were Irish, Polish, German, Americans—anything," Mr. Barasa said. "They were killed because they were bootleggers and they were killed by other bootleggers."

SON BUYS JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER'S HOMES



The picture shows the Rockefeller home in Pocantico Hills, Westchester county, N. Y., which is one of four residences sold by the oil king to his son for more than $3,000,000. The elder Rockefeller stipulated that he should be permitted to occupy the homes until his death.

CRUSHED TO DEATH WHEN STONE MASS TUMBLES ON HIM

THOMAS ALFINI.

Thomas Alfini, 21 years old, one of the proprietors of a stone yard at 3957 Belden avenue, was killed yesterday afternoon when several tons of stone, being lifted preparatory to cutting, fell on him in his yard.

Alfini was associated in business with his father and three brothers. He had just returned from a vacation and was sitting in the firm's office with his brother Anthony, when he remarked that he would go out and see how the lifting was progressing. The stone slipped from the cable as he reached the workers.

Report Recovery of Pearl Necklace Stolen in Hotel

Insurance officials yesterday reported the recovery of the $125,000 pearl necklace stolen from Mrs. Harry Hart in a recent holdup in the Parkway hotel. Mrs. Hart, who is the wife of the head of Hart, Schaffner & Marx, clothing manufacturers, identified the necklace as the one stolen. Insurance officials refused to divulge how the necklace was returned or who returned it, but said that the 10% reward for the necklace had been paid. George "Rabbit" Connell and Irving Schlig have been indicted for the robbery.

Girls to View Ex-Convict Seized in Street Chase

Four young girls, students at the Nicholas Senn High school, who saw the shooting of Patrolman Patrick J. McGovern while he was escorting George Haney, cashier of the Pantheon theater, by a robber who escaped with $6,000 they were taking to a bank, will confront Edward Walker, ex-convict, at the Summerdale police station this morning in an attempt to point him out as the slayer of the policeman. Haney and other witnesses of the murder will also be present to look at the prisoner, arrested after a spectacular chase.

WHEATON YOUTH DROWNS WHEN BOAT TIPS OVER

Maurice Reisner, 20 years old, son of City Commissioner B. A. Reisner of Wheaton, was drowned yesterday when a boat in which he was with two others boys was upset in Cassell's lake, in the Du Page county forest preserve.

Supported by a life belt marked "Milwaukee," the body of a man 30 years old, weighing 190 pounds and poorly dressed, was picked up in the lake north of the Edgewater Beach hotel yesterday by Assistant State's Attorney Joseph Nicolai, who with a party of friends was cruising in his yacht "Aunt Kate." The body, which appeared to have been in the lake for weeks, was taken to Pisner's morgue, 4934 Broadway.

The body of Gabriel Klimas, 36 years old, 522 Ames street, Hammond, Ind., was recovered yesterday from a clay hole in the forest preserve, where he was drowned July 4.

BUNDESEN ASKS $25,000 TO WAR ON SMALLPOX

Immediate appropriation of at least $25,000 for the purchase of vaccine and the employment of vaccinators if Chicago is to escape the worst epidemic of smallpox since 1905 was urged on the city council finance committee by Health Commissioner Herman N. Bundesen in a letter to the committee's chairman, Ald. R. A. Woodhull [7th] yesterday.

An appropriation of $4,000 made by the council some time ago for vaccinators was exhausted yesterday, and the whole corps laid off for lack of funds to continue their work, Dr. Bundesen told the committee. Meanwhile new cases of a virulent type of the disease are being discovered daily. Although smallpox is not usually prevalent in midsummer, a dozen cases are isolated in the contagious disease hospital at present.

GIRL OF 3 YEARS TUMBLES IN WELL AT HOME; DROWNS

FLORENCE CORDREY.

Florence Cordrey, 3 years old, fell into a well in the back yard of her home, 295 149th street, Harvey, and was drowned yesterday. Her 14 year old sister, Esther, was in the yard at the time playing, but she failed to notice how close the baby was to the well and did not see her fall. Neighbors recovered the body and the Harvey police attempted to revive her with a pulmotor, but there efforts were in vain.

DEAN, ONATIVIA & CO. NOW NEAR REHABILITATION

Only a few thousand dollars remained to be raised last night in order to rehabilitate Dean, Onativia & Co., the big brokerage firm which failed a week ago with liabilities of $35,000,000. In view of the prospect of success in obtaining required new capital of $2,500,000, the Chicago banks yesterday agreed not to sell the firm's collateral for loans before Monday.

Both in Chicago and New York, the firm's creditor committees and partners will make a final drive today to secure the full amount of new capital.

If the drive is successful, action will be taken on Monday to end the bankruptcy and receivership proceedings and to secure reinstatement of the firm on the New York and Chicago exchanges. It is expected the firm's offices will reopen for business toward the end of next week.

EASTERN CRIME A LEOPOLD-LOEB ACT, POLICE SAY

Taxi Driver Slayer Was Mad for Thrills.

New York, July 10.—[Special.]—Nassau county, long a close runner-up to Chicago in spectacular homicides, has at last drawn up even with the western city. In the belief of the local authorities, Long Island has recently been the scene of just such another murder as the Leopold-Loeb slaying, and indeed, in certain aspects one surpassing even that earlier exhibition of destructive egocentricity.

Capt. Frank McCahill of the Nassau police tomorrow will ask Town Judge Jones of Hempstead for a warrant for the arrest of Philip K. Knapp, former Cornell student and deserter from the First observation squadron, army air service, stationed at Mitchel field, on the charge of having murdered Louis Penella, Hempstead taxicab owner, on the night of July 1.

Neglected to Bury Foot.

Tonight Nassau county police and an army officer were at Glens Falls, N. Y., and Knapp was just one jump ahead of them. His apprehension was looked for hourly unless he should choose suicide in preference to arrest. He presumably still has with him the Colt's .45 automatic with which Penella was killed as he took his fare along the Long Island roads in his seven passenger Royal car, which Knapp sold as his own.

But Knapp, if his plans had not gone awry through the small matter of a foot which he neglected to bury along with the rest of Penella—just as Nathan Leopold's glasses were left lying unforgotten in the sodden grass of an Illinois prairie—would now be foot free and unafraid.

Taxi Driver Disappears.

Penella, one of the best liked taxi operators of his town, with a wife and two young children, was last seen in Hempstead just after midnight on the morning of July 1. That was a Wednesday. As Thursday and Friday passed with no word of him his family and friends began a hunt. Saturday afternoon three of the missing man's friends were wandering over the ruins of what had been a hospital at Camp Mills, when from under a pile of debris they saw a foot sticking out. It took two men to move some of the slabs of broken wall. But when the ground was cleared, in a shallow depression in the ground, they found the body of Penella.

Knapp was the last man seen with the taxi cab driver. According to Police Captain McCahill, five witnesses have identified a picture of Knapp as that of the man who sold Penella's taxicab to the Knickerbocker Auto Sales company.

Knapp left a letter for his father, William W. Knapp of Syracuse, and for his air squadron commander Capt. H. C. Drayton, before he departed from Mitchel field on July 3 on a leave of absence of three days. He never returned.

In his letter he admitted he was haunted by the idea that he would find the supreme thrill for which he was seeking in taking human life.

Police Captain McCahill said he had questioned army acquaintances of Knapp and had learned that the fugitive was particularly interested in speculating on the reaction a person would get from taking human life.

LELAND'S SUIT FOR SLANDER IS TO BEGIN MONDAY

Jury Is Chosen in Record Time.

Albert R. Leland, at last at the point where he may fight back at the churchmen whom he charges tried to ruin him because of his divorce charges against the Rev. Dr. Carl D. Case, Oak Park Baptist pastor, prepared yesterday to take the witness stand Monday before Judge Hugo Pam.

Immediately following the selection yesterday in record time, of the jury that will try his $50,000 suit against E. L. Hartig, vice president of Joseph T. Ryerson & Son, and an influential member of Dr. Case's church, Leland went into conference with his attorneys, William R. Moss and Milford H. Olds.

Trial Begins Monday.

After swearing in the jury, Judge Pam adjourned court and directed that the trial commence on Monday. After the jury has heard Leland's charges of persecution, of attempts of the churchmen to ruin him financially, and after the jurors have given their verdict, Leland's other suit, brought for $50,000 against William Schukraft, another of Dr. Case's parishioners, will begin.

In testing the prospective jurors for their viewpoint on Leland's suit, Attorney Charles Rathbun, of the firm of McCormick, Kirkland, Patterson & Fleming, counsel for Mr. Hartig, sought to obtain churchmen. Attorney Moss, on the other hand, wanted no Baptists, for fear they might lean toward the defendants and to the pastor for whose sake Hartig and Schukraft are charged with talking about Leland.

What Leland Charges.

It is alleged that the two men visited Leland's employer, H. L. Cruver, head of the Cruver Manufacturing company, of which Leland is manager, and sought to have Cruver discharge him. This was during the pendency of Leland's suit against his wife for divorce, charging her with infidelity with Dr. Case.

The two churchmen told Cruver that Leland was the father of an illegitimate child, that he had been a rubber in a Turkish bath, that he had practiced medicine without a license, and that he had operated a swindle.

Expect Case Ruling Tuesday.

Dr. Case's petition for a hearing to reverse the Appellate court decision, in which he and Mrs. Leland were found guilty, is pending before Supreme Court Justice Frederick R. De Young, who is expected to announce his decision next Tuesday.

MERGER BRINGS ASCHERS' MOVIE HOUSES TO FIFTY

By a combination effected yesterday with Cooney Brothers, Andrew Karzas and the Coston group, Ascher Brothers, motion picture theater owners, assumed control of fifty Chicago picture theaters, Max Ascher, vice president of Ascher Brothers, announced last night. The new combination has not yet been named, but Mr. Ascher said it will probably be called the Motion Pictures Theaters Consolidated.

"It is a move to protect and increase our buying power," the picture theater owner said. "We now have fifty houses, all in Chicago, in the combination, and expect by the end of the month to increase our control to at least 125 houses.

Mr. Ascher admitted that a combination of the Balaban & Katz and the Lubliner & Trinz interests made six weeks ago was in a measure responsible for the new combination.

Coroner's Jury Commends Lieut. Winge for Slaying

Lieut. Albert K. Winge of the detective bureau was commended for bravery yesterday by a coroner's jury which brought in a verdict of justifiable homicide in the death of Otto Christiansen, killed by the lieutenant. The jury found that Christiansen, who had a long criminal career, was killed while resisting arrest. Christiansen was wanted for the murder more than two years ago of Joseph Lanus, an automobile salesman, when Lieut. Winge sought to arrest him Thursday night.

EVANSTON'S NEW POLICE CHIEF RINGS CURFEW

For Evanston youngsters the curfew rang last night at 9 o'clock. W. A. Wiltberger, the city's college trained chief of police, announced that an old ordinance preventing children under 15 years old from wandering about the streets after that hour would be enforced.

"This rule will keep the children out of mischief," he declared, "and it will protect them from molestation by strangers."

W. C. Bechtold, superintendent of the Evanston bureau of recreation, is forming a platoon of thirty boys to act as patrols on the city beaches. One of their principal duties will be to report violations of the bathing suit regulations.

HELD ON GIRL'S EXTORTION CHARGE.

Frank McDonald, 5048 Washington boulevard, on the charge of Miss Helen Jacobs that he had extorted $80 from her by threatening to kill her yesterday was held to the grand jury on a bond of $3,000 by Judge Francis B. Allegretti in the Chicago avenue police court.

THE MAN KILLER.

Chief of Police Collins and Sheriff Hoffman are getting together for the enforcement of the new law against gun toting. It runs not only against guns but against other deadly weapons carried for the killing or injuring of human beings. Probably the average citizen would be just as scared with the point of a knife against his ribs as the point of a gun.

Among other things the new law does away with the fake permits which have been issued by county justices of the peace. Some of these permits were in the possession of notorious city gunmen. The citizenry armed with a color of law are supposed to disarm with the rest of us. There have been many of them. The community has been particularly rich in volunteer law enforcers, star wearers and gun toters.

The new law may do some good. It might be possible to reduce violence to that of the fist by sending all persons found with any sort of concealed weapons to the penitentiary, by making the possession of a weapon good for an additional twenty years in any crime in which it was a part.

We'd be foolish if we thought that was about to happen. The best we can expect, rationally, is some improvement. We know that men do not get severe punishments when they are found armed. They may be punished but it will not be a deterrent punishment. A man may be much worse off in some courts if he is found with a pint of liquor than if he is found with a gun. We simply have not reached the point where it is generally regarded as a serious if not deadly offense against society to carry a weapon which has only one real purpose and that man killing.

The English used to have that feeling. They are a bit disorganized after the war and they may not have so much of it now but it will take us many years to get the feeling about deadly weapons in civil life that the English have even now. If we want to apologize for ourselves we might say that our frontier and gun days are not so far in the past. The early part of the last century out here in the Mississippi valley were days of savage fighting, not only in formal and deadly duels but in ferocious street and tavern battles. This was a part of a gentleman's code. The fight of Andrew Jackson and the Bentons illuminates it.

In Puddenhead Wilson, Mark Twain shows that if a gentleman for a point of honor refused to meet another gentleman on the field of honor it was the duty of the gentleman thus rejected and offended to shoot the offending gentleman on sight and the offending gentleman knew that and it was his business to shoot first. Possibly in the last sixty or seventy years we have progressed. The code of fashion then along the Mississippi river is not now the code of fashion along the Lake Shore drive.

As the native American manners became less ghastly our population was enriched by newcomers from lands where private murder has been a part of the social system. But apologies and explanations do not get us anywhere and if this is to become a civilized society it must make the criminal's code follow the old gentleman's code into disuse.

We cannot expect an immediate stamping out of the evil under the new law but we hope Collins and Hoffman will keep at it and that the courts will help them. It will be one of the hardest police jobs imaginable to get guns out of the hands of crooks but trying is the only way to do it.

Gradually there will be built up a real popular belief that any person, not an officer of the law, toting a gun is a potential killer and has the gun for no other purpose than killing. Then the offense will not be treated leniently and it will not be common.

ARCHITECTURE AND THE NEW COUNTY JAIL.

Now that the legislature has given its approval, the county board is preparing to go ahead with the construction of a new county jail and criminal courts building at California boulevard and 26th street, the site of the old John Worthy school. Negotiations for the property are to be begun with the city at once, and a speedy settlement is anticipated. That should mean a start in construction within a few months.

We hope the county board will insist that the new buildings have architectural interest, particularly as they will front on a boulevard. We do not wish the jail to be so attractive as to invite, but that does not mean it must be an eyesore, as so many prisons are.

The jail, in other words, should not be built entirely with a view to keeping those on the inside healthy, but remorseful; it should, as well, serve as a monument erected by the community to symbolize the dignity and strength of the law.

VOODOOED MONEY.

It is reported from Washington that the government intends to issue $2,000,000 two dollar bills. It costs more to print two one dollar bills than it does to print one two dollar bill. The treasury knows there is a superstitious prejudice against the two dollar bill. We do not know the folklore of it. Something out of crap shooting, probably. Jess isn't the only voodooism in our systems.

You avert the evil eye by tearing off the corner of a two dollar bill.

If the treasury intends to send out $3,000,000 new voodooed bills it had better give them a border design of horseshoes, rabbits' feet and four leaf clovers. Then we'll find something else to worry about, but it won't be anything above a ten spot.

TIME FLIES. WE CAN'T SAY AS MUCH FOR DIRT.

In tomorrow's TRIBUNE you will find at the top of the first editorial THE TRIBUNE'S program for America and for the middle west. Item one of the midwest program is:

1—Unite the Continent from Atlantic to Gulf Through the Illinois Waterway.

That program has been there for a long time.

In the fourth column of tomorrow's editorial page you will find:

60 YEARS AGO TODAY

JULY 12, 1865.

DETROIT.—The city is crowded with delegates to the Great Commercial Convention. The Chicago delegation came in on a special car over the Michigan Central. It was the same car used by the prince of Wales on his visit to the United States. Henry Winter Davis, J. Y. Scammon, Maj. Scammon, and Joseph Medill arrived from their tour of the Lake Superior regions and joined the Chicago delegation. The main objects of the convention, as announced by Joseph Aspinwall, who called it to order, are to consider the question of reciprocal trade with the British provinces and the opening up of every channel of communication with the ocean. Hiram Walbridge of New York was elected president and Hannibal Hamlin of Maine and Charles Walker of Illinois vice presidents of the convention.

Recently in Twenty-five Years Ago Today you found that Chicago was to start immediately at ten miles of subway to be in use by 1903.

This editorial seems to have been written in the title.

WAR MEMORIALS.

The report of the condition of our war memorials in Europe is discouraging, but not surprising. Any trip through a cemetery at home shows many a neglected grave, and it is no wonder that memorials on alien soil should deteriorate.

Without reproach we may note the fact and, better still, accept the lesson, which is that our patriotic memorials should be erected on our own soil. The United States government, if the nations concerned permit, should erect at some appropriate place a single conspicuous memorial in each of the countries where our men fought and died. But other special memorials should be confined to this country.

OVERHAUL THE POSTOFFICE.

The postmaster general reports a postal deficit approximating $40,000,000.

That is quite a sharp reminder for American taxpayers. We do not expect or wish that the postal service shall make money, as a predecessor of Mr. New held that it should do. But we are confident that if the affairs of the department and service were given a thorough survey by a committee of business executives of large experience and accomplishment the postal service could be made much less expensive and much more efficient.

We have urged that this be done, but our plea has been ignored. A forty million deficit may speak louder than we can. The duty of retrenchment, repeatedly preached by Mr. Coolidge, certainly belongs as much to the postoffice as to the army and navy, both of which services have been cut to a dangerous extent. The postoffice has always been the victim of political considerations and undoubtedly needs reorganization in the interest both of economy and efficiency. Since economy is the watchword of the administration, this is the time to get the job done in the postal service. The survey, we have suggested, would point the way of saving without loss and, indeed, with gain of efficiency.

The Other Side

THE PATROLMAN.

[Kansas City Journal-Post.]

Isn't Mr. Collins, Chicago's chief of police, putting into effect a new plan of police procedure that may lead into serious trouble when he undertakes to supplant the beat-pounding, brow-wiping patrolman by cruising policemen in motor cars? Chief Collins may know what he is doing, but he'll have to prove it.

The patrolman has received his share of criticism in our American cities. Some of it he has deserved. Some of it he hasn't. But whatever his faults, no better means of preserving the peace and of protecting life and property has been found than the beat-pounding, brow-wiping patrolman, with his nightstick, pistol and flashlight. The highway man, the burglar and the second story artist do not rend the ether with the adolescent cry of the corner gang: "Jigger, the cop!" But they fear the policemen as they fear no other single class of men on earth. It has been the patrolman who have sent them to prison time and again.

The patrolman no longer will be a patrolman if Chief Collins take his beat away from him and makes him a joyriding motorist. He will no longer stop to drink a soda on Jones, the druggist; to accept a banana from Tony at the fruit stand, or to hear from the weak young gangster, who has a pretty good reason to fear him, the underworld gossip about "Stuffy," the thug. In short, he no longer will know his beat because he no longer will have one. He will not be available at the time of the drug store holdup because he will be cruising on a street where cars ride easily. Chief Collins might better leave the patrolman on his beat. He has had his share of criticism. He should have his share of credit. Carefully chosen for honesty and physical courage, he is the one best means America has found for coping with crimes of violence.

CHIVALROUS.

Willie was five years old and went to church every Sunday with some other small boys, each one having a penny. But one Sunday he went to church with his mother and when the collection was being taken up he asked:

"Ma, have you got a penny?"

"No," said his mother.

"Then take mine. I'll get under the seat."—Everybody's.

SHIFTLESS.

A southern Negro woman had struggled through her married life with a worthless husband, and she tried hard to make her children more industrious. She called to one of the children one day:

"Wot yo' doin', chile?"

"Nothin', mammy."

"My, but yo' is sittin' like yo' father," she exclaimed.—Columbus Dispatch.

COLDS.

THE Lancet thinks some people gain by washing their noses with a simple salt solution. Some nurses are accustomed to washing the nose of the young baby with a warm dilute salt solution. This the Lancet does not disapprove of.

Some children with adenoids and some adults with what is called nasal catarrh may be benefited by the use of a daily nose wash. If so, the Lancet advises them to use no strong antiseptics. In fact, to use nothing except a warm, weak solution of table salt.

The best way to use this solution is to lean the head forward and to inject the salt solution into one nostril until it overflows and runs out of the other nostril. The injecting is done with a two ounce weak rubber ball. The nozzle is inserted in one nostril and the fingers collapse the soft parts around it. The bulb is slowly compressed. No force is used. A warm salt solution gently used in this way has been known to shrink adenoids and to relieve the symptoms of catarrh. This is as far as the Lancet will go in recommending nose washing and douching.

The sovereign remedy, it says, is a return to the simple life. The soldiers in the trenches were almost free from colds. They stood in cold water for hours at a time. Their feet were frequently wet and cold. They were chilled through and through. They had no proper protection against the elements. And yet they had no colds. They had chilblains, frostbite, and frozen feet, but no colds. When they went back into a life of ease and comfort, living in heated rooms and associating with crowds, they again became subject to colds.

The Lancet says Americans have more colds than Europeans do because they live in warmer houses.

From another source this information comes: Horses are not subject to colds and pneumonia because they have long noses. The air they breathe must travel through a long nose track before it reaches the air passages which lead from the head to the lungs. Therefore, the air is well heated, well moistened, and well cleaned before it reaches the horses' lungs.

When a man lives much in warm rooms the membranes on the turbinate bones in his nose swell. This greatly narrows the air passages. Men breathe through their mouths a great deal. At night they breathe through the mouth most of the time unless they are sleeping in cold air. During the day they take in more than half their air through the mouth. When talking, when exercising—if a person will notice closely, he will see that he takes in at least half of his breath through his mouth.

WHOOPING COUGH.

C. J. G. writes: What method is best to follow in a case of whooping cough in a 20 months old baby? The disease is in this district and I expect my baby will contract it. Is there anything that can be done to prevent her catching it?

REPLY.

You are right in "viewing whooping cough with alarm."

Whooping cough in the first two years of life is a serious disease. However, the season is in your child's favor. If a baby must have whooping cough, he is lucky to get it in June.

Whooping cough vaccine is worth trying when it can be used just before or during the incubation period of the disease. By all means keep your child away from children with the disease. Go one step further and do not let your child go near any person who has any sort of cough. Make this your policy for the next three months. The epidemic should be over by then.

I know of nothing else you can do.

CAUSES OF FISTULA.

Mrs. M. M. writes:

1. What is fistula?
2. What causes it?
3. Will an operation cure it?
4. And is there danger of its developing into a cancer?

REPLY.

1. Stedman's dictionary defines it as an abnormal passage leading from an abscess or a hollow organ to the surface.
2. It is caused by an abscess. The abscess in turn is caused by infection with tubercle bacilli or other bacteria.
3. Yes.
4. No. Some supposed fistulas are really cancers.

NO DANGER IN SWIMMING.

A SEPARATE BUSINESS.

Chicago, July 6.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—A and B are two partners in business. A contemplates the purchase of another business by himself on which he obligates himself to pay off a certain balance by notes secured by chattel mortgage on the latter business. If A is unable to pay off these notes and the seller is obliged to foreclose the chattel mortgage and in so doing is still deficient in the amount due him, can he collect this deficiency from the partnership in the first business? To what extent, if any, is B involved? S. S.

Personal creditors of A or B, as distinguished from partnership creditors of A and B, cannot collect out of the firm assets. In general, they are limited to collection out of the share that may be coming to the individual debtor upon dissolution. The creditor is entitled to enforce such dissolution.

MINOR SIGNS CONTRACT.

South Chicago, Ill., July 8.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—About five years ago I signed a contract for a course in sewing. At that time I was a minor. The lessons proved unsatisfactory, so I stopped them. The firm is trying to collect for the full course, although I did not take it. They have threatened me with legal proceedings. Can they compel me to pay? A. D. B.

Minority is a defense, unless you have expressly or impliedly ratified since becoming of age.

PLAYGROUND PROVES A NUISANCE.

Chicago, July 8.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—A school near us has opened a playground and they play baseball. So far they have broken seven window panes in my house and even the wired glass in the skylight on the garage roof. The boys are all the time climbing on the roof of the house and the garage looking for balls. We asked the boys if they did not think they should pay for this damage but they said that the board of education gives them the right to play ball there, so they do not have to pay. In this case a high wire screen should be erected to protect surrounding property or else the boys should pay for damaged property. What would you advise me to do? MRS. W. H.

You might have it enjoined as a nuisance, but your legal remedy is doubtful.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

60 YEARS AGO TODAY

JULY 11, 1865.

WASHINGTON.—Col. J. W. Thompson, late superintendent of Indian affairs of the northwest arrived here after a tour of the tribes of California and Nevada. He reports the Indians of California are peaceable but east of the Sierra Nevada mountains murders of white travelers and robberies of stage coaches by the Indians are frequent.

WASHINGTON.—The military authorities have decided to turn the bodies of the executed Lincoln assassins over to their friends for burial. The disinterment will take place immediately.

NEW YORK.—A dispatch to the Commercial says that reports that Jeff Davis is in declining health are unfounded. The Post has a special which says that it seems to be certain that Davis will be tried before a military court on a charge of complicity in the assassination plot.

WASHINGTON.—The reopening of Ford's theater, in which President Lincoln was shot, was advertised for last night with the "Octoroon" as the attraction. There was a prospect of an overflowing house but the war department issued an order forbidding the opening.

WASHINGTON.—The commissioner of Indian affairs has been notified that a delegation of five Indians from each of the following tribes is en route to Washington for an interview with President Johnson: Cherokees, Choctaws, Comanches, Creeks, Chickasaws, Caddos, Cheyennes, Seminoles, Osages, Leppans, Kiowas, Arapahoes, Northern Osages, and Annodocees.

CHICAGO.—With a population of at least 170,000, Chicago's deaths for June totaled only 195. The rate of mortality for the year 1865 so far has been less than any previous year in history.

CHICAGO.—Budworth's Minstrels continue to draw immense houses nightly at the Academy of Music.

25 YEARS AGO TODAY

JULY 11, 1900.

CANTON, O.—A plot to assassinate President McKinley has been discovered. The identity of the conspirators is not known but it is stated they are Spaniards and Cubans with headquarters in New York. Private detectives are guarding the President's home here day and night. The news of the plot came through an anonymous letter and investigation revealed it to be a fact.

CHICAGO.—The deal for the purchase of the Ogden Gas company and the Cosmopolitan Electric franchises by interests friendly to the Peoples Gaslight and Coke company has been declared off as a result of the failure of the council to pass over the mayor's veto an ordinance acceptable to the Ogden company.

CHICAGO. — President John M. Roach of the Chicago Union Traction company announced that beginning on Aug. 1, an average increase in wages of 10 or 15 per cent will be given employes of the north side lines. The order affects 2,000 men. The minimum pay under the new scale will be $1.50 a day.

LONDON.—The latest bulletin issued by Chinese officials states that the foreign legations in Peking were safe on July 3. It is now estimated that 75,000 Boxers and Chinese troops are opposing the 14,000 foreigners at Tientsin.

10 YEARS AGO TODAY

JULY 11, 1915.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—Archbishop James Edward Quigley of the Chicago diocese died at the home of his brother, Joseph M. Quigley, chief of the Rochester police force. The end came quietly, the prelate having been unconscious for several hours. As it became evident the end was near Edward F. Hoban, chancellor of the Chicago archdiocese, read the prayers of the church and recited the Litany of the Dying. Archbishop Quigley was 61 years old.

CHICAGO.—A special train bearing Chicago Catholic leaders will leave today to escort the remains of Archbishop Quigley from Rochester to this city. The body will reach here day after tomorrow evening [Tuesday] and the funeral will be on Thursday.

VERA CRUZ.—Mexico City has fallen. Gen. Gonzales informed Gen. Carranza that his forces had killed 3,000 and captured 2,000 Zapatistas.

NEW YORK.—Daniel Le Roy Dresser, brother-in-law of the late George W. Vanderbilt and once a noted financier, shot and killed himself in the Delta Phi fraternity house of Columbia university. Financial difficulties are given as the cause of the suicide.

WASHINGTON.—President Wilson will send another note to Berlin pronouncing unsatisfactory the German reply to his demands growing out of the sinking of the Lusitania and the sacrificing of 115 American lives. That drastic action, such as the severance of diplomatic relations at this time, is not justified by the German answer is the attitude of the President.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

THIS KISS WILL I REMEMBER.

Strange that the moon should trace a way
Across the quiet little bay!
But the moon has many an idle whim
That youth cannot resist: we said, "Let's swim
In the path of the moon to Hidden Isle."
Deeply we dove together; when the smile
Of circling waves receded, we were bold,
Breaking to bits the moon's white way of gold!

Strange that a loon should laugh when we
Were out of breath beside the tree
On Sunwashed Rock: could he, perhaps, have seen
The diamonds on your shoulder or the sheen
Of liquid pearls all tumbled in your hair?
We were too happy then, to think, to care,
For half-way 'cross the bay we'd stopped for this:
The cool, soft splendor of a wave-washed kiss!

THE EVOLUTION TRIAL is one thing anyhow in which women are not concerned. Nobody but men are in any way involved in it. Man may have descended from the ape, but according to all the accounts from Tennessee the ladies are not mixed up in the scandal.

ONLY GREECE AND LIBERIA, among all the nations that owe money to the U. S., did not ask permission to fund their indebtedness. They're willing to stand up like men and pay. Before giving three cheers for such honor among nations we are going to investigate. We shrewdly suspect that Greece doesn't owe more than twenty-five dollars and Liberia probably about a dollar and sixty cents.

Completing the Circle.

R. H. L.: When one is extremely lowbrow one enjoys Snowshoe Al, the Marx Brothers, and Moon Mullins. The next higher level revels in H. Addington Bruce and Dr. Frank Crane. Slightly up again, one now priding one's self on having a cultural veneer, comes high esteem for Edwin Bok and The Little French Girl. Above the Babbittia are those liking Max Beerbohm, Beggar on Horseback, and J. B. Cabell. Through successive strata of illuminati, talking knowingly of Proust, James Joyce, Mencken (maybe), and Gawdawful impressionistic art, one finally reaches the true highbrow who enjoys Moon Mullins, the Marx Brothers, and Snowshoe Al. Simple, isn't it? j. p. h.

MARTHA WRITES us a very reproachful letter because we suggested that Cal should have Waterford glass all over the White House. "Do you not know," said she, "that most of the Waterford glass in America in Colonial days consisted of decanters and wine and rum glasses? And surely you would not suggest that the White House, of all places, should be filled with such things in the year 1925!" You make us utterly wretched, Martha, by reminding us of older, happier things. But, at least, we'd like to see the beautiful Waterford candelabra that belonged to George Washington taken out of the Smithsonian Museum and installed in the White House.

JULY.

Oh, You're So Rough!

Dick: Will you please crate up Tipperary Hank and send him out to Arizony? I promise to buy him a pair of rompers, so that he can play his rough riding games with our four year old kids out here. When he grows up a little I'll take him up in the mountains to watch a real rodeo. Last week I would have won the grizzly bear riding contest, but I was disqualified because I used a rattlesnake for a whip.

I'd send the two year old kid up to the Grant Park Rodeo to take away Hank's pair o' studded cuffs, but he took his old man's six shooter and went out after a couple of mountain lions. And, anyway, those drug store cowboys like Tipperary Hank bruise easily, so he better keep the cuffs in case some of his dude ranchers from Wyomin' slap him on the wrist. KIT MCTIGUE.

BE-RIBBONED AMERICANS.

Ravinia, Ill., July 8.—I wrote to a friend in the west some time ago, suggesting that he urge his congressman to introduce a bill prohibiting American citizens from accepting decorations from foreign governments, if legislation against this growing evil is at all possible.

Your editorial on "Be-ribboned Americans" was timely and to the point. This evil has been growing tremendously since the war and soon we shall have a caste of knights and commanders and other titles in this country. The American who loves his native land and its traditions needs no outward distinctions in the way of medals or ribbons. He is, as far as honor and nobility go, equal to any gentleman the world over. He belongs to no caste or special group; he is a free born man.

We of foreign birth may be tempted to accept such honors from the country in which we are born, but those of us who have learned to love our adopted country and its traditions should hold ourselves above petty decorations that here are meaningless and serve no good purpose.

JENS JENSEN.

THE COVER OF LIBERTY.

Akron, O., July 6.—The patriotic cover of the Liberty magazine showing the civil war vet and the overseas vet is an unintentional slight, of course, to the 175,000 American boys who fought on land and sea in 1898-1900 against Spain, the Boxers, and the crafty Aguinaldo.

We were 100 per cent volunteers and never needed a draft to show us the path of honor and duty as did a few of the others at least.

Our dead are as dead as their's and for the same flag. Are we so soon forgotten?

IN GARFIELD PARK.

Chicago, July 7.—Last Sunday I visited Garfield park with friends from out of town. The particular object for visiting this once beautiful park was to show my visiting friends its famous band stand. To my surprise and disgust, I found a very badly neglected state of affairs, the flowers and shrubbery withered and dying, a concrete dancing platform, each corner having a sandwich stand, giving a slovenly effect to the entire surrounding. To cap the climax, the platform was surrounded by empty bottles and decaying remnants that once were sandwiches. J. E. ANDREWS.

REPEALING THE VOLSTEAD ACT.

Rochester, Minn., July 5.—In your excellent editorial of July 4 entitled, "Volstead, the New Rich, Etc." you state: "Buckner says the law ought to be enforced or repealed. It can't be repealed. New York has no legal hope of ever escaping from what Kansas wants."

It would be wiser to maintain that the law will be repealed in the near future and then get it repealed. I firmly believe it will be repealed.

A good majority of the nation want it repealed. No dry is willing to have it brought to a test vote. When the people wake up and organize a little, congress will promptly repeal the Volstead act, regardless of its own views and desires on the subject. D. P. SMITH.

INSULTING WORDS.

Joliet, July 2.—I understand that a professor is coming over from England to compile a new dictionary, which is to be very much American.

I have no love for England but I think the English language is something which should be preserved and kept untainted by the people of the United States. The new dictionaries now in use contain vulgar, questionable words which are an insult to the name of Webster.

I do not know who is instigating the proposed compilation of a new dictionary, but let us hope that persons of responsibility will be employed in compiling it, who will keep filth out of it and preserve the English language rather than a conglomeration of low slang and varied lingoes. R. W.

"L" TRAIN ETIQUETTE.

Chicago, July 7.—Every individual who rides the "L" is entitled to a seat, if there are any available. From observation the last month I have noticed men sprawling all over the seat, and women sitting ridewise, occupying double portions—and in the rush hour. Some "L" seats should comfortably seat eight, others nine; that is if there are no circus fat ladies present. "I Will" is a good slogan, but in this instance add "Move Over." GEORGE FORSYTHE.

EASY MARKS.

Chicago, July 9.—An article in this week's Liberty, entitled "Easy Marks," causes me to voice my indignation, and ask how the author "gets that way."

She states that 78 per cent of the women are married, and being supported for the rest of their natural lives by being "fairly agreeable." How interesting. Also—that the other 22 per cent of the feminine population are working [not because they want to, but because they just have to] or because no "Easy Mark" will shower them with diamonds and fur coats, in order to keep the fur industry or jewelers from going bankrupt. I am sure this will be news for some of the working girls. Furthermore, if this particular authoress will ride down on a crowded elevated train at 8 a. m. she will notice that at least a third of the women riding thereon bear wedding rings. If they are being supported for the rest of their lives why are they working? Just for the pleasure—absolutely.

I am not exactly homely, or unpopular, and I am sure I am quite modern. I have lots of boy friends, but I am still waiting for these trucks full of diamonds and fur coats that these "Easy Marks" are just dying to give me. And as for my job, I guess I will stay single and hold on to it, for fear of being called a parasite or something of that kind. INDIGNANT.

NORSE AND NORWEGIAN.

Chicago, July 6.—In some unaccountable way the word "Norse" is being used for Norwegian, causing confusion in the minds of people about what is really meant. Geographically speaking "Norse" has no definable limits. There is no specifically Norse country, state, kingdom, or republic. It takes in all that is meant by Scandinavian and much more. Etymographically it covers also the people of Scandinavian origin, who formed settlements here and there in and around the British isles and elsewhere during the centuries known as the Viking age.

Etymologically speaking the word "Norse" is not found anywhere in the entire group of Scandinavian or northern languages, past or present. It resembles the Scandinavian word "Norsk," which means Norwegian, but this word "Norsk" is an abbreviated form of the older and more descriptive word "Norvekisk." The word "Norse" is an old Norman French word derived from "nord" (north), signifying the people and the language of ancient Scandinavia. It came into use in English and retained the original meaning. Norsemen means northmen—not simply Norwegians.

The recent Norwegian centennial celebration in Minnesota went by the misnomer "Norse Centennial." The committee in charge locally as well as the congressional committee concerned took the word to be an abbreviation of "Norsk." President Coolidge, however, in his very thorough address during the festivities, did not use "Norse" to stand for Norwegian, but he used it twice to stand for "Scandinavian" or "northern." At all times the President used the word "Norwegian" when that nationality was particularly referred to. As our country's chief diplomat he helped greatly to unscramble the Norwegians from the confusion caused by ill considered use of the generic word "Norse." OLAF E. HAY.

AMERICAN MATCHES.

Chicago, July 7.—Gadder of Decatur, Ill., complains about safety matches. He is paying the penalty of buying foreign made safety matches. I would suggest Gadder patronize American industry and buy American made matches, as every good American should do.

SENATE TO POINT 1928 LEADERS AND PRINCIPLES

Democratic Differences May Be Decided.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 10.—[Special.]—There seems to be a possibility that the United States senate will furnish a forum for the protagonists of political fundamentalism and modernism in the preliminaries of the next presidential contest, the outlines of which are now becoming dimly visible.

Although he has come to no definite decision, Gov. Al Smith of New York, it is generally assumed, will be a candidate for United States senator next year, with a view to strengthening his bid for the presidency in 1928. That he can have the Democratic nomination for senator for the asking is a foregone conclusion. None but possibly the Hearst fellowing might be disposed to dispute the governor's claim to the nomination.

Just Now Busy with Hylan.

The governor just now is maneuvering to beat Hearst's friend, Mayor Hylan, for a third term of office and if he succeeds Hearst will be just about finished politically.

The Republican candidate will be the sitting senator, James W. Wadsworth. He and the governor are personal friends and admirers of each other and each would prefer almost any other man as an antagonist, not only because of their friendship, but because each regards the other about the hardest man to beat. This will be the most spectacular battle in the country next year and its bearing on the 1928 presidential contest will contribute additional interest.

Great Opportunity for Al.

If Smith should beat Wadsworth his presidential stock will go up tremendously. Going to the senate, the popular Al, who has demonstrated his mastery of the art of state government, would have an opportunity to establish his capacity for the handling of national affairs and would be able to further most effectively his movement for the restoration of the fundamental principle of state rights and functions in American government.

Now it also appears that William G. McAdoo is a prospective candidate for United States senator from California to succeed Mr. Shortridge, the Republican incumbent, who will seek reelection next year. California does not often send a Democrat to the senate, but the admirers of Mr. McAdoo are confident he would have little difficulty in beating any opponent, now that women have the vote.

McAdoo Versus Smith Again.

With both McAdoo and Smith in the senate the country would be treated to the spectacle of the clash of forces in that august body which made Madison Square Garden a political shambles a year ago and bid fair to be revived in the Democratic national convention of 1928.

McAdoo would be able to challenge most effectively the movement of Smith and his fellow fundamentalists assailing the state rights revival, as he doubtless would, as cloaking a scheme to nullify the national prohibition law by empowering states to define intoxicating liquor.

Defeat for Senate Fatal.

If either should be a candidate for senator and be defeated his political prestige would suffer tremendously. The rules of the political game decree that a man who cannot carry his own state makes a poor candidate for President. It was defeat in the senatorial elections of 1922 that eliminated Albert J. Beveridge of Indiana [Rep.] and Atlee Pomerene of Ohio [Dem.] as presidential possibilities in 1924.

There is a senator from Florida to be elected next year, and Mr. Bryan may feel called upon to become a candidate with a view or joining the discussion in the senate. In religion Mr. Bryan is a fundamentalist; in politics, a modernist, and he turns the cold eye of suspicion upon the arguments of Gov. Smith and other fundamentalists in his party.

Then on the Republican side there is Gov. Pinchot of Pennsylvania, who contemplates running for the senate next year, possibly to preface a candidacy for the nomination for President in 1928 by the Republicans or a third party.

In the Republican party President Coolidge is advocating the return to fundamental principles, though he has not intimated he would go so far as to abolish or modify national prohibition.

WIFE OF O'BRIEN, CRIME LAWYER, SEEKS DIVORCE

William W. O'Brien, defense lawyer in the Shepherd case, was charged with habitual drunkenness in a divorce bill filed yesterday in Circuit court by Mrs. Zoe O'Brien, 6832 East End avenue. Mrs. O'Brien asks for substantial alimony from her husband, whose annual income is $20,000, according to the bill, and for custody of their child, William Jr., 3 years old.

O'Brien has been constantly on sprees for the last two years, his wife charges. In this condition he has abused her and threatened to kill her unless she left him, she declares. Mrs. O'Brien became so frightened that she was induced to sign an agreement waiving her rights to a share in her husband's estate, according to the bill.

"You can't get anything from me through the courts and I'll kill you if you file suit for divorce," O'Brien threatened his wife, she says.

She asks for the court's protection and for an injunction restraining him from disposing of property which she says belongs to her.

Demand Nation Single Out British for Boycott.

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[Copyright: 1925: By The Chicago Tribune.]

SHANGHAI, July 10.—A concentration of the Chinese anti-foreign boycott against the British was indicated tonight in a declaration issued by the radical student labor union, which charges eight crimes to the British in China and calls on the Chinese to take action along eight distinct lines against British interests.

The eight crimes charged against the British are: The introduction of opium into China; the taking of Hongkong, Burmah, and the present encroachment upon Tibet; the forceful establishment of concessions and the establishment of the international mixed court; the first country to force China to grant extraterritoriality; the extortion of indemnities and the usurpation of control of the Chinese maritime customs; the forceful limitation of the Chinese tariff, destroying the financial stability of the Chinese government; the maltreatment of Chinese laborers and the slaughtering of Chinese students and laborers in the Shanghai, Hankow, and Shameen incidents.

Lists Counter Measures.

In order to even the score with the British, the Chinese people are called to take the following measures: Cease working for British companies, factories, or families; refuse to accept British money or remit money through British banks; boycott British goods and refuse to insure their lives, merchandise, or houses with British insurance companies; refuse to ship Chinese goods on British ships; refuse to serve as sailors or coolies on British ships; refuse to travel on British boats, use British motor cars, or ride in British street cars; refuse to study in British missionary schools; refuse to serve British lawyers, doctors, or engineers, and refuse to sell Chinese commodities to the British.

Canton Situation Worse.

The issuance of this proclamation is creating the impression that the Chinese have made a settlement with Japan and henceforth will concentrate entirely on the British.

Reports from Hongkong state that all boats have been discontinued between Hongkong and Canton, and the general situation is growing worse. The food situation in Canton, due to the stoppage of shipping, is becoming serious, with a rapid rise in prices.

Peking Diplomats Differ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PEKING, July 10.—The diplomatic breach here became definite today when the French minister resigned from the committee working on the Shanghai clash.

Disaffection among the ministers has existed for several days, with special feeling against the French for his publication of the premier's reply blaming the municipal police. This embarrasses the British, who already are feeling the effect of the attempted isolation.

RUINS OF AUTO REMOVED, DRIVER FOUND UNHURT

Only one minor accident in which no one was injured marred the record of Chicago motorists yesterday. The automobile death toll since Jan. 1 remained 377.

When the automobile of George Wolosh, sewing machine dealer at 183 North Wabash avenue, was struck by a taxicab yesterday, he was buried in the ruins of his machine. Police cleared away the wreckage and found Wolosh beneath, uninjured. Chester Ingorvato, 1021 Sholto street, the cab driver, was arrested.

F. J. Morlock, Burlington, Ia., driver of an automobile which killed Earl R. Radeke, 30, theological student at Wheaton college, Thursday, appeared at Wheaton and surrendered to the sheriff. He said he struck Radeke after another car had hit the man and hurled him into the path of Morlock's automobile.

COOLIDGE SAYS SEC. MELLON AND HERRICK TO STAY

Swampscott, Mass., July 10.—(AP)—So far as President Coolidge knows neither Secretary Mellon nor Ambassador Herrick are contemplating submitting their resignations. Recover Body of Youth Drowned with Girl

The body of Howard Rundquist, 23 years old, 1513 Grace street, was found floating in the lake off Winona avenue yesterday afternoon. BUSCH GIVES O. K. TO PLAN FOR BIG JEWEL BUILDING

Fire Official Pushes Fight on Project.

Approval of plans for the proposed forty story Jewelers' building—a combination garage and office building to tower 557 feet above the street level at Wabash avenue and South Water street—with the recommendation that the necessary building permits be issued at once was given to Building Commissioner Frank Doherty by Corporation Counsel F. X. Busch yesterday.

The corporation counsel's opinion, however, will not prevent Fire Commissioner Joseph Connery, the latter said last night, from seeking to delay issuance of the permits until considerable modification of the garage scheme has been agreed to by the builders and their architects.

Would House 572 Autos.

Present plans for the building contemplates garage space to accommodate 572 automobiles.

"Recent surveys indicate that an average of 3,000 automobiles are parked daily in loop streets," Mr. Busch said. "Five or six other such buildings with equal facilities would nearly solve the parking problem and certainly relieve street congestion."

Connery Sees Unusual Hazard.

With Fire Commissioner Connery's objections in mind and because the structure represents an unusual departure from ordinary building schemes, Commissioner Doherty sought the advice of the corporation counsel. Connery contends that no amount of fire proofing can eliminate the hazards which will be present in a skyscraper garage.

Mr. Busch's opinion, however, holds that the strictest safety requirements in the erection of either office buildings or garages have been complied with in the plans.

Elmer Praises Radio Music of Movie Houses

Finds Riviera Program as Dramatic as Opera.

BY ELMER DOUGLASS.

Here we are, my set and my typewriter and myself, all three are good talkers, but at this moment short of ideas.

Anyhow, we three came to an agreement that the Riviera theater orchestra broadcasts through WEBH and the Woodlawn theater orchestra broadcasts through WMBB are, were, and probably will continue to be thoroughly enjoyable daily features.

Having nothing worse to do than reflect, we did so, deducing the conjecture that perhaps the music furnished at motion picture shows has more to do with the success of the picture than it is generally given credit for; that the motion picture musicians are doing an enormous good in disseminating an appreciation of high grade music; above all, an appreciation of the dramatic content of music, such as is heard during the dramatic moments in popular musical shows or exhibited at its greatest intensity in grand opera.

I was going to say "that's enough of that for now," but we have heard so many now, now, now, now's from announcers that the statement is blue penciled. Not long ago one announcer used "now" exactly forty times in ten minutes.

To get back to business, around the 9 o'clock hour there were three concert soloists of distinction on the air, two at W-G-N and one at WMAQ.

In their alphabetical order: First, Jewel Martin Lovejoy, a jewel of a soprano. A voice of great range, running way up to high C or somewhere, without any apparent effort; fine in quality and in interpretation, satisfying to the last degree. Also Jane Symons, a contralto with similar characteristics. These two were at W-G-N, and, despite their abilities and wide reputation as concert and oratorio soloists, they pooled their interests and voices and gave duets for the most part. The perfect blending of their voices made each of these a thing of beauty.

The third was Bryce Talbot, baritone, at WMAQ. Here was a voice rare in tone, expressive, versatile, unusually distinct in enunciation, and in resonance just right.

The thought of the "resonance" of singers reminds me of the vocal flappers that we too frequently hear. "I-I-I-I L-uh-Uh-uh-Uh-uh-ve You-U-u-U-u-U-u-U-u-U," etc. If these flappers could hear themselves flapping they would go back to school and learn how to sing and soar and express themselves in pure resonant, vibrant tones.

Finally, set, typewriter and myself have agreed to remain composed and not get into a fight or fly to pieces if during W-G-N's broadcast of the Tennessee evolution trial things are hurled at us that disagree with our differing constitutions. We hope that the families constituting the radio audience make some similar agreement among themselves. If we do that we will emerge at its close wiser beings, and at least as happy as we are.

RAILROAD WORKER ENDS LIFE.

George C. Bryant, 60 years old, a railway supply man of 456 West Ontario street, committed suicide at his home, 7739 North Paulina street last night by shooting himself in the head. His wife told Rogers Park police that he had been despondent of late over illness.

MOTHER PAINTS BACKGROUND OF GIRL'S MURDER

Suspicion Is Narrowed to Costello.

ing, but the police believe he was not implicated in the murder.

With dramatic similarity, Mrs. White, between fits of coughing, was telling, in general, the story of Madeline's troubles, even as Baldy Costello, at the state's attorney's office, was telling, in chilly detail, the story of the ugly scene that ended Madeline's troubles.

"Madeline was always such a good girl. She always had a book in her hand. She didn't like the fellows," the mother was saying.

Tells of Husband's Affair.

That was in the days when Gregory White cared for his family when they bought the cottage at 6045 South La Salle street, when all was peace. That was before Gregory White took to running around with the woman down the street, before that day five years ago when he left the cottage, never to return.

"They'd swirl by in the auto. She'd have her arms about him. Of course I kept the blinds down, I never let on that I saw." Mrs. Mulholland still cherishes that pride.

With her husband gone, she started to work in a lampshade factory. She had to. The boy, Gregory, left to grow up alone, made mistakes. The next thing she knew he was in the Parental school. "But the best boy there," and she stresses that.

Genevieve got work for $24.50 a week. Madeline had to go to work.

"My cough kept getting worse. So did the pain in my lungs. Hurt something terrible. First of June I had to come here.

"No, Genevieve hasn't been out to see me. Neither has Madeline. I hear Madeline quit her job. She always was like that, restless. I wish I'd get home. I could take care of her. She's just foolish, that's all, that's the matter with her—and young."

Gave Name of Mulholland.

And so, being foolish and young, Madeline gave Costello her telephone number Wednesday when he drove by in a car and stopped to flirt with her. Thursday afternoon, according to Edward Breen, an acquaintance of his whom he met in Sherwood park, Costello phoned Madeline for a date that evening, saying he would bring Brick along. Breen recalls that Costello gave the name of Mulholland over the phone.

Costello and Brick came to the cottage. Costello, Genevieve said, represented himself as a policeman and said the officers had a warrant out for the girls for running a disorderly house. They denied this, and he dared them to call the station. Genevieve got mad and left, to go walking with "Chuck" Dettling. When she returned at 11, Madeline was gone.

At this point in the pattern of details comes in Costello's story, a story which the police believe is true if you fuse Costello and the "fellow named Mulholland" into one man, "Baldy," the murderer.

"Brick was kind of froze out, so he beat it. Then we went over to Washington park and sat around. Sure, I kissed her, but she got sore, so I quit the idea. Then we went home."

Tells of Meeting Mulholland.

At 59th and La Salle streets Costello told the police he met a fellow named Mulholland. Mulholland, he insists, asked him if he'd made love to the girl, twitted him for his rebuff and said, "Give me your handkerchief, and I'll show you."

With as casual speech as if he were telling of a commonplace event, Costello then rehearsed, verbally, that ugly scene.

How Mulholland strong armed the girl and stuffed Costello's blue bandanna handkerchief into her mouth as he dragged her into a passageway.

"Then," Costello continued, "I went back to the sidewalk and sat on the railing. In five minutes or so Mulholland came up to where I was."

Again and again they asked him if he didn't think the girl might be in danger, asked why he didn't go back. Always he replied:

"Aw, there was a lot of things I might have done if I'd a used my head. I didn't use my head."

But he seemed to be using his head over in the state's attorney's office, for he remarked that he'd probably be held as accessory before the murder. But he hazarded the opinion that "fourteen years for that is a devil of a lot better than having your neck stretched for murder."

The murder charge grew even more definite last night when police, searching Costello's home, found the blue shirt which he said he wore Thursday night, with the sleeve covered with mud. He was unable to tell how it got there.

And his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Costello, questioned as to the time their son returned home Thursday night, told stories that did not dovetail sufficiently for easy belief.

Persists in His Story.

Costello persisted in his story late last night. He told the police the Mulholland he referred to was well known in a poolroom in Garfield boulevard near Wentworth avenue. He was taken to the poolroom in a party headed by First Assistant State's Attorney George E. Gorman. The owner said he had lived in the community for twenty years and knew no Mulholland. Later the group visited the morgue where the girl's body lies and the house where it was found. Questioning of Costello was to continue at the Englewood police station.

And still later last night, on that cot in the county hospital, Mrs. White, knowing now that her daughter had been killed, summed it up when she said:

"Madeline was young. She didn't understand as much as she thought she did."

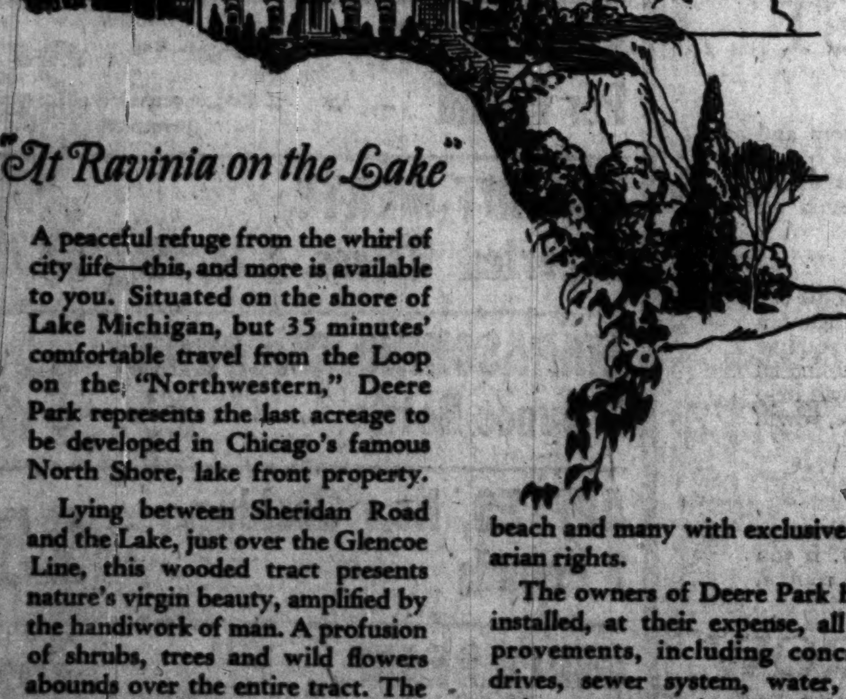
DEERE PARK

A Home Development



"At Ravinia on the Lake"

A peaceful refuge from the whirl of city life—this, and more is available to you. Situated on the shore of Lake Michigan, but 35 minutes' comfortable travel from the Loop on the "Northwestern," Deere Park represents the last acreage to be developed in Chicago's famous North Shore, lake front property.

Lying between Sheridan Road and the Lake, just over the Glencoe Line, this wooded tract presents nature's virgin beauty, amplified by the handiwork of man. A profusion of shrubs, trees and wild flowers abounds over the entire tract. The preservation of this native flora has been deliberately assured by the continual watchfulness of the owners. Here the student of botany finds a wealth of plant life. Here are 72 ravine-traversed lots, all having access to a private bathing beach and many with exclusive riparian rights.

The owners of Deere Park have installed, at their expense, all improvements, including concrete drives, sewer system, water, gas mains, ornamental street lighting, and underground electric and telephone service.

When driving out, follow Sheridan Road, Route 42, just over the Glencoe Line to our office on the premises.

TALES OF BRIBE OFFERS BY CITY OFFICIALS TOLD

Crowe's Aids Listen to Ald. Albert.

Reports that city officials have solicited bribes—in one instance $50,000—from building material manufacturers who seek modification of the municipal building code to permit a wider use of their products were aired in the state's attorney's office yesterday by Ald. Arthur Albert [43d].

He repeated stories which have been current since the council building committee persistently refused to lift the ban on hollow building tile. In the presence of State's Attorney Crowe, Ald. Albert discussed the graft charges with attachés of the latter's office and promised to return next week with affidavits and other evidence warranting a grand jury quiz.

Fixed $50,000 as Cost.

Cement interests abandoned their efforts to secure approval of the use of concrete masonry in local construction when a city official asserted it would cost them $50,000 to pass the necessary building ordinance amendment, according to one of the stories cited.

The $50,000 was to have been posted with an individual well known in the city hall. If the ordinance failed to pass in the council, the money was to be returned to the cement manufacturers, so the story runs. The representative of the cement companies refused to put up the money, complaining, Albert asserts, that the proposed stakeholder could not be trusted to handle the money.

Possible solution of the mysterious disappearance of Harold Bradley, formerly a prominent builder, before his last and largest project, an apartment building at 20 East Cedar street, was half completed, may be found during the investigation of another story told by the alderman.

Get Special Permit.

Bradley, it is asserted, was given a special permit to construct his building of steel and hollow tile. When the steel skeleton was high in the air and several floors had been built in with tile, building inspectors halted the work. The builder was told that the permit had been issued in error but that completion of the building with tile would be allowed if Bradley secured the approval of a local brick manufacturer.

Already in a precarious financial condition, Bradley, according to the story, found himself unable to meet the money demands of the brick manufacturer and fled from the city. In a recent meeting of the council building committee, Building Commissioner Frank Doherty explained that the permit for the use of tile was issued to Bradley by an inexperienced clerk, who was not aware that tile was banned in such structures.

Albert Holds Affidavit.

An affidavit that a city hall official is a frequent visitor to the offices of a brick manufacturer who has been active in persuading the council building committee to kill the so-called tile ordinance is in his possession, Albert declares. The official, on one occasion, according to the affidavit, was heard to remark as he parted from the brick man that "that letter will take care of that," and Albert will insist on knowing what the "that" was.

Albert urged upon State's Attorney Crowe's assistants the necessity of an immediate examination of the officials of local brick, tile and cement companies as well as of their books, pointing out that undoubtedly influences are already at work to cover up alleged irregularities in the recent consideration of amendments to the building code.

83 FURNITURE MAKERS FINED $188,000 BY U. S.

All records for uncontested fines for violation of the Sherman anti-trust law were surpassed yesterday when 83 furniture manufacturers entered pleas of guilty before Federal Judge Adam C. Cliffe and were assessed $188,000. After the total had been announced, Roger Shale, special assistant United States attorney general, stated examination of government records revealed that no group of defendants ever before had been fined such an amount on pleas of guilty.

The 83 who admitted guilt yesterday formed the third group of the total of 343 furniture manufacturers indicted two months ago, who have pleaded guilty and accepted fines ranging from $1,000 to $5,000. One hundred and eight bedroom and dining room furniture makers remain on the list of those who have not been arraigned.

The fines levied by Judge Cliffe in Mr. Shale's prosecution now total $422,000. Chair manufacturers were the first group to plead guilty. They were fined $166,000. Then followed 15 refrigerator makers, who paid $68,000.

"Jungle Days" Will Help You Stand the Heat

By Fanny Butcher.

"Jungle Days" by William Beebe is the exact and precise compound of a book for days like these. It is my idea of an almost perfect hot weather volume, which means that has enough power to take you absolutely outside of yourself and your woes and discomforts. It is a group of nine essays (if you will) about the people and the affairs of the jungle and it is sheer joy to read it.

WILLIAM BEEBE.

William Beebe is my candidate for the first and laurel wreathed nature writer in this, our American language. There isn't any one—to me—who approaches him. He has none of the soppiness of the less scientific and more story-telling writers about the out-of-doors and what not. And he has, what few other writers about nature honestly have, a real scientific foundation for his literary work. He writes perfectly charmingly and he can make a bark-creature a third of an inch long and a fiftieth of an inch thick seem as human as the man next door without taking a whit of his essential buggishness away from him.

The story which he told of the expedition to the Galapagos islands last year is an epic, and "Galapagos" was an unforgetable book, as indeed all of his books have been. You can't forget "Jungle Peace" and "The Edge of the Jungle," and, after you have read "Jungle Days," you'll not be able to forget it, either.

One of the essays is called "The Life of Death," and it is an absolutely thrilling setting down of the millions of little lives that thrive on a fallen tree. The whole book is written from that angle, the life of one kind of creature through the death of another—not at all a morbid thought, and not written as anything unpleasant, but as a fact in the great chain of circumstances which terminates in human life.

Mr. Beebe started out as an ornithologist—he lists himself as that in Who's Who—and one of the most charming of the essays is concerned with the bird of the wine colored egg, which is a violently feministic creature, with a lady bird who does all the courting and, as soon as she has presented the world with the peculiarly beautiful egg of the species, leaves the gentleman bird to brood over it.

There are eight times as many male as female birds of the species, he says, and from the scientific story of the species he makes a delightful and amusing article.

There is one article about falling leaves, which I like least of all, but only because you have to like some one least, and if it were all by itself, or in most books of nature pieces, any one would like it best. It is just a trifle more sentimentalized—like the second half of "Old Time People," which is a fanciful picture of how monkeys grew into sentient creatures. The second half of "Old Time People" I don't like a bit—which doesn't mean that I'm not for Mr. Scopes but that I think Mr. Beebe more delightful when he tells facts.

I can't imagine any one not liking "Jungle Days"—that is any one who likes out-of-doors, or creatures of the earth in any guise. It is an absolutely thrilling book to me, and, as I said, exactly and perfectly a book to take you away from the exigencies of life. It makes all of life so much more miraculous to realize the surge and sweep of all of these trillions of little lives that never touch us, but which, quite as truly, are never touched by us, that go on for the centuries and live in one year of our lives generations upon generations of their own.

"Wonder Book of Plant Life."

By Jean Henri Fabre. (Lippincott.)

There are many interesting facts about trees in "The Wonder Book of Plant Life," by Jean Henri Fabre, but there are two especially fascinating ones. He tells about the largest tree in the world, which he says is on the slopes of Etna, in Sicily, and is called the Chestnut Tree of One Hundred Horses because Joan, Queen of Aragon, overtaken there by a thunderstorm, sheltered her escort of one hundred horsemen under its leaves and branches. Another tree he tells about is the Cow Tree, in Colombia, which gives the natives a fluid which in taste, nourishing qualities, and appearance is very much like milk. The vogue of Fabre is dead, but these Wonder books of his are full of amazing facts for young people and are, unlike some books for those who are neither children nor adults, neither silly nor patronizing nor inaccurate.

CONFESSIONS

Chicago has looked upon the two novels which Isabella Holt Finnie has written with a sort of family interest, for, before her marriage, Mrs. Finnie of Detroit was very much a part of Chicago life, as Miss Isabella Holt of Chicago. Her first book, "The Marriotts and the Powells," was more than an ordinarily promising first novel and it was written about Chicago. Perhaps for that reason it seems more real to us than did her second novel, "The Low Road." Anyway, Isabella Holt is decidedly some one to watch. When I asked her what book she would rather have writen than any other she made this pertinent reply:

Dear Miss Butcher:

Your question for the "Confessions" has sent me along my book shelves with a certain pain at finding how many of my old loves I avoid re-reading that I may continue to love them. Sidney Lanier's poems are not all they were when I was 15, nor is H. G. Wells now among the major prophets. The Schonberg-Cotta family cannot be as easy as my recollection paints them.

Mrs. Ewing's "Jackanapes" has lasted, so has "Evalina," but my affection for her has always had a patronizing tinge. "Mansfield Park" and "Vanity Fair" are still themselves; but they are not my books after all. And of Epictetus what shall I say? I could not have endured my temperamental youth without his icy plunges, but one can hardly imagine creating the sayings of Epictetus.

And for the depths and heights, who opens such ranges as Dostoievsky? But there would be a sort of impiety in wanting to have written "Crime and Punishment" or "The Brothers Karamazoff," sublimations of epilepsy and exile. The price would be too heavy.

So I am giving you a book less magnificent but more charming as my choice—Owen Wister's "Virginian." It has lasted. Our copy is worn loose from its binding. I cried salt tears over it at school, and I cried them again this winter.

You will remember the long ride after the hanging of the horse thieves, while the Virginian thinks his friend has died holding a grudge against him. It takes days of horror and an intricate chain of coincidences to carry the fragment of newspaper with its scrawled farewell into the Virginian's hand. Each time I read that, I ache with fear lest the delicate sequence of events should fail to function this time, and the message lose its way. "Good-by, Jeff. I could not have spoke to you without playing the baby."

I should like to have had that story in me, and told it as well.

Sincerely yours,

Isabella Holt Finnie

Just the Title of This Book Is Enough to Lure Any One

"America's Greatest Garden, the Arnold Arboretum." By E. H. Wilson. (Stratford company.)

The title of Prof. Wilson's book is enough to lure any one. The lured person finds the story of the really wonderful Arnold Arboretum in Jamaica Plain, a branch of Harvard university and a spot which lives up to Dr. Wilson's caption of it. The "Arboretum" is so much a part of Boston life that many Bostonians don't even urge their guests to visit it, so many visitors miss it.

Another whole group of moderns never really see it because the authorities do not allow motors on the drives, and the general public nowadays has a motto, "Love me, love my car," and snubs any place that can't be seen from the tonneau of a family chariot.

Those who walk the few blocks see the most wonderful collection of trees and shrubs in the world, and can find, if they take the trouble to look, specimens of every bit of arboreal life which will possibly grow in the climate of Boston. It is an odd thing—and all of these facts are delightfully set down by Dr. Wilson—that no plants of the southern hemisphere, even those of southern Chile and the high Andes or the higher mountains of New Zealand have been hardy in the Arboretum.

Dr. Wilson tells first what the Arboretum is, then, in a thorough but not boring way, tells what the panorama of beauty is that blooms or leaves in the garden. A final chapter tells what the Arboretum does. There are very beautiful photographs of the garden in all seasons, which make you want to pack your little carpet bag and hop on a train for Boston instanter.

Dr. Wilson says that the most important part of the work of the Arboretum has been done by Dr. Charles Sprague Sargent, who began it fifty years ago. A reproduction of a portrait by John Singer Sargent, Dr. Sargent's brother, is the frontispiece of this book which is, so the author says, the first popular volume on this fascinating spot.

The Pilgrim's Almanach.

Edited by Robert W. Chanler and Ivan Narodny, "The Pilgrim's Almanach," limited in its edition to 1,000 numbered copies, looks like any other earnest magazine of revolt. The illustrations are by Serge Soudeikine, Vladimir Bobritzky, David Burliuk, Robert Chanler, and Constantin (or Constantine: he is labeled both names in different parts of the magazine) Aladjalov. There is an interview with Bernard Shaw by John D. Williams, which, like most interviews, tells as much about the interviewer as it does about the interviewed. The foot-noted story about Shaw and his purposely squeaky shoes at particularly obnoxious first nights was a new one to me and amusing.

SIX VOLUMES NOW PUBLISHED
The sixth and latest volume in Professor Channing's distinguished "History of the United States" has just been issued under the title: "The War for Southern Independence." The first half of this book, concerned with the crucial years preceding the Civil War, analyzes the causes of the conflict and reviews the significant events leading up to the firing on Fort Sumter. The second half deals with the war years from 1851 to 1865.
The six volumes of this series now available offer a readable, entertaining and authentic account of the development of the American people from the first colonizing enterprises up to Lee's surrender at Appomattox in 1865.

"No one can turn the pages of Professor Edward Channing's history without admiration for his scholarship and the wide sweep of his interests. With justifiable pride he might have added to the title page, 'humani nihil a me alienum puto,' for scarcely a subject affecting the American people has been left untouched."

Michael Arlen Is Back Home Flushed with U. S. Triumph

By Sidney Dark.
[English Critic.]

Michael Arlen is back in London, flushed with his conquest of America. It is stated here that the Cosmopolitan has given him the most extraordinary contract known to literary history. It is to buy from him at a maximum price every short story that he writes during the term of his natural life. The Arlen boom in America has sent up his sales here, owing to the industry of his English press agent.

No established author publishes so little as Lytton Strachey. He is, indeed, the author of only three or four books, but another story, only a very little one, is soon to be added to them. It is a study of Pope, of whom Strachey says, "He was preëminently a satirist, and so it was only natural that his enemies should take him to task for not being something else. He had no benignity, he had no feeling for sensuous beauty, he took no interest in nature." Referring to the common charge that Pope's verse is artificial, Lytton Strachey comments: "There is only one kind of verse that is not artificial, and that is bad verse."

The book of the week is without question Lord Curzon's "British Government in India," the proofs of which he corrected shortly before his death. In two long volumes—there is not a dull page in either of them—Lord Curzon describes the achievements of the Indian viceroys from Warren Hastings to Lord Dufferin, making many incidental references to his own experiences in Calcutta, which he vastly prefers as a capital to Delhi, where the viceroy now reigns. This is a book which I presume is certain to be considered at length in the American press. All that I need say is that it is a dignified and worthy telling of a great story.

Noel Coward, the 25 year old dramatist, who has startled part of London and shocked another part of it while incidentally making a good deal of money for himself with his plays "The Vortex" and "Fallen Angels," has written a defense of the newest drama and the newest dramatists. Michael Arlen, by the way, partly financed the production of "The Vortex," much to his advantage.

Clemence Dane has written a new play on the story of Ahad and Jezebel, which she calls "Naboth's Vineyard." It will be published in America in the autumn.

Sir Philip Gibb's son Anthony has written a novel to which he has given the title "Little Peter Vacuum." Both Sir Philip's brothers write novels, so Anthony is the fourth novelist in the family.

E. V. Lucas has written a volume of verse for children which will be published simultaneously in England and America.

Henri Barbusse's new novel "Fetters" is being translated into English. I am told this is an extraordinarily difficult job owing to the style in which the book is written in French.

Anthony Hope's new novel is called "Little Tiger" and its scene is modern London.

Bucolic Beatitudes.

By "Rusticus." (Atlantic Monthly Press.)

With titles, "Blessed Be the Dog," "Blessed Be the Pig," "Blessed Be the Hen," "Blessed Be the Cow," "Blessed Be the Horse," and "Blessed be the Garden," are gathered together essays which pleased most completely the readers of the Atlantic Monthly when they appeared there with the author's identity veiled under the pseudonym of "Rusticus." They are pleasant, kindly humorous essays, comparable, so everyone seems to think to Charles Dudley Warner. The essay on the dog is not the most charming or most touching one I have ever read, nor is the essay on the garden the most alluring, but they all have a certain gentle pleasantness about them.

MONKEY TRIAL FANS MAY BE INTERESTED IN THIS BOOK LIST

Every one is interested in the Scopes trial, and the world if not his wife is asking what books he can read about something that seems pretty hazy to him. I have made a list of books which seem excellent ones. The list was compiled with the aid of the Chicago Public Library and consulting the list of books which Charles Francis Potter prepared at the request of the committee in charge of the trial. The books he recommends I have starred, and they will form a part of the reference library which has been shipped to Dayton for the trial.

I can find very few books for the aid and succor of the fundamentalists. The two most read ones will be, of course, "In His Image" and "The Menace of Darwinism" by William Jennings Bryan himself. I have made an alphabetical list because it is a matter of opinion which of the books is the best, and all of them are highly recommended. Every one, of course, will read again Darwin's "Origin of Species."

A Saltus Revival.

There has been a sudden and violent revival of Edgar Saltus. Brentano's have brought back into print everything that was ever on their list, and Pascal Covici is publishing "Uplands of Dream" in a limited edition of 750 copies which contains essays and prose fancies hitherto unpublished. Mr. Covici says that the publication of Marie Saltus' intimate biography of her husband will be delayed until fall because an eastern magazine has asked for serialization rights to the book. In the meantime Mrs. Saltus will be grateful to any one who will send her copies of letters which her husband wrote, or any interesting facts concerning him. Her present address is Hotel Mark Twain, Hollywood, Cal.

New York Sun says:
Janet Fairbank's Chicago novel, THE SMITHS, is a notable book, an interpretation of its period which is in no way inferior to those we have had from H. B. Fuller, Booth Tarkington, Mary S. Watts and Edith Wharton.

Yellow Drive-it-Yourself System

Rent a car for an hour—a day or longer. Pay by the mile. No time or mileage guarantee required

Big 6-cylinder gear-shift cars and Fords. They are NOT painted yellow.

Rent a Car—For Business—For Pleasure

7 Stations in Chicago There's one near you

The Yellow Drive-it-Yourself System gives everyone all the comforts and convenience of a car, without the expense and trouble of owning one. For any man, or woman, who can drive can step into any of our stations and rent a car from us almost as quickly as they could get their own car from a garage.

You can drive as long as you like—or as short a time as you like. We require no time or mileage guarantee. And you pay only for the miles you actually drive—nothing at all when the car is standing still—except on evenings after 6 o'clock, after noon Saturdays and all day Sundays and Holidays when a small hour charge is added.

Our rates cover everything—gas, oil, extra tires and more insurance than is carried by most people who own cars.

It's easy to rent a car from us

There's no red tape about it. You don't need to put up any bond. We don't ask you a lot of embarassing questions nor ask you to "sign your life away". And you don't need to be worth a lot of money nor be a property owner. Many of our best customers are folks whose salaries are around $25 a week.

Just go into any of our stations. Tell the man in charge the kind of a car you want to drive. In about 5 minutes you'll be on your way at the wheel of one of our cars. It's all so simple you'll be surprised.

A deposit of $10 on Fords and $15 on gear-shift cars is required. This is returned when the car is brought back.

Your choice—big 6 cylinder gear-shift cars and Fords

Our fleet consists of nearly 1000 cars—touring cars, coupes and sedans. Not "broken-down," "second-hand" affairs—but cars you'll be proud to drive.

They are not painted yellow. They look like privately owned cars. All are fully equipped with speedometer, bumpers, spare tires and everything.

They are cleaned and polished every day. And before a car leaves our station it is thoroughly inspected to see it is running perfectly and is full of gasoline, oil and water.

Rent a car for your vacation and "days off."

Take your family for a picnic out into the cool, green country—or for a spin around the parks and boulevards.

Rent a car when you want to get to a golf course quickly and conveniently. If four men rent a car and split the cost it doesn't amount to much more than car fare. Rent a car for your fishing and hunting trips, or over the week ends—or for a long tour. When you rent a car for more than a day the hour charge is reduced.

Our fleet consists of nearly a thousand big 6-cylinder gear-shift cars (like illustration) and Fords—open and closed models. And we are increasing our fleet just as fast as you want them.

Rates as low as 12c a mile

FORDS		Big 6 cylinder GEAR-SHIFT CARS
Touring Cars	12c mile	Touring cars	17c mile
Coupe or Sedan	18c mile	Sedans or Coupes	20c mile

No hour charge week days up to 6 p. m. After 6 p. m. week days, 12 noon Saturdays, and all day Sundays and Holidays, 25 cents per hour on Fords and 35 cents per hour on gear-shift cars is added to the mileage charge. This hour charge is reduced when cars are used for more than one day.

No time or mileage guarantee required at any time.

These rates cover everything. Gas, oil, spare tires and more insurance than you would carry yourself.

Sales managers—Salesmen

We can supply you with as many cars as you want—any time you want them. We recently rented 15 cars to a big concern for a merchandising campaign. They figured they saved 3 weeks time, and the cost averaged $3. a day per car.

Many concerns who formerly operated their own fleet of cars now rent from us.

Hundreds of salesmen find that by renting cars from us they have a convenient way to carry samples, can make more calls in less time, and actually make more money.

Look for our trade mark

Please don't confuse us with other concerns in the same line of business. This company is responsible—financially and morally. It is owned and operated by a group of business men who also own and operate the Yellow Drive-it-Yourself Systems in New York, Brooklyn, Cleveland, St. Louis and Louisville.

REGISTER TODAY

There is no charge or obligation. Just drop into any of our stations and tell them you want to register for "service".

If you want a car when you register you can get it. And as soon as you are registered we will supply you with a leather pocket case containing an individual identification card. Then you merely present this card at any of our stations in Chicago, New York, Brooklyn, Cleveland, St. Louis or Louisville and you get a car immediately.

THE GUMPS—SEND IN YOUR DUES

The BOBCAT

BY HENRY C. ROWLAND

Reg. U. S. Pat. Office.

SYNOPSIS.

Big Tim Burke, real estate operator, known to his associates as a land pirate, discharges one of his young lieutenants, called Pol Gailliard, because he is irritated by the latter's careless manner of appearance and nonchalant manner. Pol learns that his ex-boss covets a valuable piece of Long Island property owned by Prof. Husted, and that another land pirate, Michael Cadrigan, is after the same bit of land. Cadrigan lives on the shore of Long Island sound with his stepdaughter, Veronica. His estate is across the bay from that of Prof. Husted, who lives like a hermit, Veronica being his only visitor. Cadrigan asks Veronica to discontinue calling on the old man, intimating that the professor's enemies may harm her. Noticing a sloop anchored opposite the house, Veronica suggests to her stepfather that they call on the owner. They are invited on board, and their host introduces himself as Pol Gailliard, posing as an itinerant poet and artist. That night Pol rows over to the Husted house, and while ashore sees a man in a flat-bottomed boat cut his boat adrift. He rows back to his boat and releases his second anchor. On his return to shore he meets Veronica in a canoe, coming from Professor Husted's house. He escorts her home. The next day Pol goes to one of the Italian houses on the shore to buy provisions.

INSTALLMENT XII.

POL ANSWERS THE SIGNAL.

There came another sharp clatter of hoofs; a groom in whipcord, mounted on a cob, cantered past. He, too, looked up with a grin on his square red face, and made a sort of mocking salutation. Pol was partly screened by a lilac bush. He noticed the rider caught sight of him when almost past and that the grin changed suddenly to a scowl. Glancing then at the girl, Pol saw she was frowning.

"That's a fresh mick. Mr. Cadrigan's groom."

"He looked jealous when he saw me," said Pol.

"Well, he's got no license to," the girl answered and moved a little restlessly.

"I mustn't keep you from your work," he said, then asked the price of and paid for the milk and eggs.

"It's nothing but work for me," she said sullenly, "what with this pack of kids and chickens and a horse and cow."

"Well, it's healthy, anyhow," Pol said.

She gave her lustrous head a little toss. "I should worry about my health. It ain't as if we were poor—my father hauls down good money. Cadrigan gives him subcontracts. That girl that just passed is his stepdaughter. She's a wop, like me."

The professor gave him a still keener look. "And you are a poet, sir?"

"Don't use that word," Pol protested.

"Why not?"

"I object to it as a student and admirer of the great D'Annunzio."

Her face softened a little. "Say, you're funny—but I don't say but what you're right, at that. Well, I've got to get back on my job. Some cat you got. Looks like it might be half ferret." She laughed, evidently reluctant to break this pleasant intermission.

"I'll probably be back again for milk and eggs," said Pol. "I'm making a sketch of Mr. Cadrigan's house."

"You ain't afraid that somebody will do you dirt again?"

"O, no. That was just a fellow that needed an anchor right away, I think. Besides, I don't like the idea of being scared off."

"Well, there's some mean guys nowadays. Watch yourself, mister."

Pol said good-by and left her. He sprinkled some small change among the children, who understood this currency. Nightingale appearing loath to leave, Pol told one of them to bring her down. Fresh discussion rose over this honor. The proud position of cat bearer to a poet being adjusted, Pol made his way back to the boat. He could feel between his shoulders the tingle of the approving looks streaming after him.

The breeze coming fresh southwesterly a little later, Pol made sail and ran out into the sound. He liked to sail, and, having no motor in his sloop, there seemed more object in such a promenade. Also it made his espionage appear less vigilant. It was about eleven of the morning when he beat out. Standing across the sound, he followed the Long Island shore for some distance, then anchored and went ashore for a walk on the sandy beach, keeping his eye always on the breeze that had every promise of holding until sundown.

Pol ran back with its lightening, dropping anchor in the same spot, a little below Mr. Husted's old farmhouse. He got his supper, read a little, and then, without changing from his khaki clothes, set himself on lookout for Veronica.

Shortly after dark, on a night like the one before, he saw her canoe approaching. She gave him a little flirt of the paddle, then continued on her course, and disappeared in the shadow of the big trees that flanked the cove; but as the minutes passed and there appeared no signal of light from the front window of the house, Pol decided the hermit had declined to make an exception in his favor.

Then, suddenly, the light sparked out. Pol extinguished his own cabin lamp, and, leaving Nightingale in charge of deck and cockpit, locked his cabin door, rowed ashore, and landed beside the canoe.

Veronica let him in with a brief word of greeting, and Pol found himself confronted by a striking personality. It was the first time he had laid eyes upon the hermit. Instead of the wild, unkempt individual he had pictured, he discovered the solitary proprietor of Husted's Point to be a gaunt, broad-shouldered man of calm and thoughtful visage, with a square white beard neatly trimmed, thick white hair brushed back from an intellectual forehead, deep but luminous brown eyes that showed no hint either of madness or senility. He was neatly dressed in spotless linen with a low collar and black bow tie and a dark velvet house jacket. He might, in fact, have been a college professor rising from his evening's reading to receive a student who had called to discuss a thesis on his subject of instruction.

Veronica presented Pol in a brief and simple way. "Now perhaps you will believe what I say, professor. They want to frighten Mr. Gailliard away because his being here interferes with their attempts to frighten you away."

The professor smiled and patted her shoulder with a finely shaped hand. "My dear child, the sooner these garlic eaters discover that I am not to be frightened away the better." He gave a sniff and glanced at Pol with a twinkle at the corner of his eyes. "My apologies, Mr. Gailliard. I caught it just too late."

Pol laughed. He had been thoughtless when eating that bologna. "Glad you don't think I may be one of your persecutors, sir."

Mr. Husted raised his eyebrows. "Persecutors? Has Miss Cadrigan told you?"

Veronica shot a look of quick suspicion at Pol, who said: "Please don't discredit my acumen. I am wider awake at night. Miss Cadrigan's last words gave me the cue. Besides, I know that low gregarious natures abhor a hermit, even as all nature abhors a vacuum, and for a similar reason—because it covets the same."

The professor gave him a still keener look. "And you are a poet, sir?"

"Only a sol-disant one, Prof. Husted."

"Then I fear you have still some road to travel, Mr. Gailliard."

The professor took Veronica paternally by the arm and led the way into a room to delight the heart of the amateur of fine old simple things. Though small, Pol discovered Veronica's touch in the flowers, washed windows, and clean curtains and hangings. One of those big old-fashioned lamps that, like a pet, must be watched, if it is not to boil over in black soot, threw out a soft, expansive light that was reflected from the patine of old furniture. Pol had thought this hermit to be living like a hairy troglodyte, and now discovered that instead he was housed in a fashion that is our ideal for the last cry in modern elegance—which is that of the home rather than the glittering hotel. He wondered why Veronica should so have occupied herself in his well-being. Pol was suddenly aware of his clean but dilapidated khaki shirt and breeches and brown sneakers. He murmured a word of apology for his appearance.

Veronica made an appeal. "You must have somebody here with you, professor," she insisted, and looked at Pol. "Don't you think so, Mr. Gailliard?"

"I could give a better opinion if I knew more of the situation," Pol said. "I do not see why Prof. Husted should have enemies."

"There's a conspiracy to frighten him away," said Veronica.

Ravinia Double Bill of Opera Wins Triumph

Raisa, Chamlee, Rimini, Sundelius Are Stars.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

It took quite a section of the Ravinia company to put over the double bill of "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Pagliacci" last night. Rosa Raisa, Mario Chamlee, and Giacoma Rimini took the prominent parts of the first; Marie Sundelius, Giovanni Martinelli, and Giuseppe Danise of the second. It was a lavish expenditure of stars, and the results obtained were altogether worth the cost.

When it comes to Miss Raisa's Santuzza, words of judicial consideration are quite likely to be found failing. She towers, which is about all one can say, and if it had not been for the semi-final note in her scene with Mr. Rimini, which was sung slightly flat, this would have been one of her loftiest. As it was, she was a marvel of elastic, pulsating power, with the great good sense to begin on a medium emotional level and carry it up to a ninth inning climax that left one fairly breathless. A great artist, Miss Raisa, and doing some of the best work of her life this summer at Ravinia.

When Mr. Chamlee started as Turiddu, there was considerable expectancy that he would be about as good as Miss Raisa. He was just that up to the end of his scene with her, where he, too, receded, not vocally but dramatically. In fact, his singing throughout was first class, but he neglected to build up an emotional climax to match hers. Give a word, too, for Mr. Rimini's acting. Of course, his singing in a serious rôle is rather different from what he does in comedy and I prefer the comedy, but he knew what the stage was intended for in this opera.

There was not quite such an effort at characterization in "Pagliacci," but there was some more singing of the kind that makes the heart glad. It was fully expected that Mr. Martinelli would sweep the house with the lament at the end of the first act, and he lived up to predictions, but he also began singing at the top of his powers on the entrance song, which was quite as desirable.

Miss Sundelius' Ballatella is another pleasant memory, not only singing of a high order, but distinctly fixing the atmosphere and mood by her voice. Mr. Danise was not quite at his best, at least I have heard him sing better, but he made an excellent impression in the prologue.

While speaking of the singing stars, I certainly ought to include the chorus as it functioned in both operas. Also, I never heard Gennaro Papi conduct with the emotional freedom that he released in this performance.

The "Barber of Seville" will be sung tonight by Elvira de Hidalgo, Tito Schipa, Giacomo Rimini, Leon Rothier, and Vittorio Trevisan.

German Envoy Here; Finds Beauty and the Lake Intoxicating

The beauties of the shaves a traveler may get on American trains, the beauties of Chicago cafés, local buildings, some Indian blankets and a Chinese mug at the Field museum, all came in for their share of conversation when the German ambassador to the United States, Baron Ago von Maltzan, arrived in Chicago yesterday.

The ambassador said nothing of politics or prohibition, except to remark:

"O, you have no aesthetic prohibition here! Every morning, after a walk in the parks I have seen in your eastern cities, a sight of your beautiful women. I am intoxicated with beauty. More intoxicated am I with this Chicago that stretches along the lake—with all the beauty of a city by the sea, but with none of the inconveniences of the sea."

As to Vice President Dawes, "There isn't any one in Germany who can read the newspaper who doesn't know who 'Hell Maria' means," the baron said.

Pope Warns Women Against Fashions of Today as Not Modest

BY GEORGE SELDES.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Copyright; 1925; By The Chicago Tribune.]

ROME, July 10.—Pope Pius XI is taking the occasion of holy year, with its expected 3,000,000 pilgrims, to preach a crusade against what he considers immodest fashions for women.

At yesterday's visit of pilgrims the pope declared he was leading a crusade which he said began immediately after the canonization in St. Peter's, when Sister Theresa of Lisieux, France, was made a saint. Almost immediately afterwards the pope granted audiences to more than 30,000 French pilgrims, many young girls whom he entreated to start a crusade against immodest dress.

"I know that this is a crusade being carried on," said the pope to pilgrims from Africa yesterday, asking them to join.

The pope complimented the women from Tunis for what they had accomplished in their diocese, "where naked legs and arms never are seen."

When he was archbishop of Milan the present pope ruled never to receive in his house or churches women who failed to conform with his ideas regarding dress.

"At first," continued the pope, "everybody protested, but afterwards all were satisfied, and I have received congratulations, even from Protestants."

Cardinal Betram of Silesia recently in a pastoral letter declared his intention to refuse to perform marriage or other Catholic sacraments "for women immodest enough to go bare legged or without sufficient covering over their bosom and arms."

Cardinal La Fontaine, presiding over the congress of the diocese of Venice, recently declaring that women taking up modern sports, tennis, swimming, golfing, and other masculine sports where they were wearing less clothes, were immodest.

Palmer D. Edmunds Quits State Bonus Board Post

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "Inquiring Reporter," Chicago Tribune. For today's question L. W. Klein, 1520 E. 67th place, Chicago, was awarded $5.

The Question.

If there were a general airplane service would you patronize it?

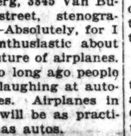
Where Asked.

Wabash avenue at Washington street.

The Answers.

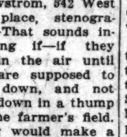
J. J. Mason, 2912 Burling street, hardware store—Yes, I would. With the fast pace we are now going we need something like that to save time. If the rates were about the same as railroad passenger rates it should be popular with the business men as well as the general public.

Miss Sylvia Weisberg, 3845 Van Buren street, stenographer—Absolutely, for I am enthusiastic about the future of airplanes. Not so long ago people were laughing at automobiles. Airplanes in time will be as practicable as autos.



C. G. Norberg, 319 River street, clerk—I would, provided they are ultimately able to make them as safe as railroad trains are, or as safe as I feel when I am driving my car. Airplanes evidently will be the making of a wonderful transportation system. In the meantime aviation should stir the railroads to give better service.

Miss Melba M. Newstrom, 542 West 65th place, stenographer—That sounds interesting if—if they stay in the air until they are supposed to come down, and not come down in a thump in some farmer's field. Flying would make a fine daylight ride to New York, with a world of scenery en route.



Don Ulsh, 720 Cass street, artist—No, sir. The railroads are good enough for me. Any one with a weak digestive apparatus would have a worse time in the air than he would have on a boat. Airplanes may be a good thing, but so far at least mother earth is plenty good enough for yours truly.

Hale, Retiring, Leaves Plans to Aid Defense

Says Good-by to Officers; Training Ordered.

Retirement of Maj. Gen. Harry C. Hale, ex-commander of the 6th army corps area, from active duty yesterday noon will in no way curtail the execution of his big summer training program for reserve army units, Col. R. E. Wyllie, chief of staff, announced last night.

Regarding his work while in Chicago, Gen. Hale, at a gathering of fellow officers yesterday, said he is "fully satisfied."

"I always have done my duty," he said, "and I have no regrets." And he added, "Everybody seems to think this is a funeral. Well, it isn't; it's my birthday." Gen. Hale was 64 years old yesterday, the age at which under the regulations army officers must retire.

Three units from Chicago are among those already in camp, while 15 others are scheduled to go before Aug. 30 to Camp Custer, near Battle Creek, Mich., to the artillery camp at Sparta, Wis., or to Jefferson Barracks, Mo., Camp Meade, Md.; while the flyers go to Chanute, Selfridge, and Scott fields.

The complete revised list of Chicago units, where and when they will train, as made public by Col. Wyllie, follows:

Sixty-fifth signal troop and 324th signal battalion will go to Camp Custer, the signal troop training from July 16 to 30, and the signal battalion from Aug. 2 to 16.

Officers of the 633d ordnance company will be at Custer from Aug. 2 to 16. Two bakery companies, the 640th and 716th, both from Chicago, will train at this camp Aug. 16 to 30.

Sparta, Wis., will be the training center for the 332d field artillery, Aug. 2 to 16. The entire officer personnel of the 531st coast artillery trains at Sparta July 19 to Aug. 2. The 320th light tank battalion and 86th tank company will complete two weeks at Camp Meade today.

The 346th medical regiment, now at Fort Snelling, Minn., finishes its training July 19, having gone into camp July 5.

The 322d observation squad goes to Chanute field Aug. 2 to 16; the 470th attack squad, Aug. 16 to 30. The 308th pursuit group headquarters and 421st and 403d pursuit squadrons train at Selfridge field, Michigan, from Aug. 2 to 16. On the same dates the 368th balloon company goes to Scott field.

Chicago to Welcome Rainbow Veterans at Their Convention

Veterans of the Rainbow (42d) division, A. E. F., will be greeted by a committee appointed by Mayor Dever when they open their convention here on Monday. The committee, led by Ald. Meyerling, will be composed of aldermen who served in the world war.

Many of the delegates will attend a joint luncheon Monday at noon with the Advertising post of the American Legion at the Tiger room of the Hotel Sherman. There Col. Noble Brandon Judah and Col. J. Monroe Johnson, both of the Rainbow division, will speak.

At 2 o'clock that afternoon the delegates will assemble at the Hotel Sherman for a business meeting. They will attend a smoker there that same evening.

Tuesday they will go for a lake trip on one of the largest of the excursion steamers. The annual banquet will be held at the Hotel Sherman Tuesday evening. On Wednesday they will be taken through the stockyards and will be luncheon guests of Swift post of the American Legion.

Referring to the division, Lieut. Gen. Hunter Liggett said in an official report:

"No division in the army could have acquitted itself better than the 42d (Rainbow) in the crucial fighting on the north bank of the Ourcq river. In nine days of continuous struggle this fine division penetrated a distance of nine miles, capturing many prisoners, 155 machine guns, a great mass of munitions, and suffering a loss from all causes of 5,500 officers and men."

Colleen Moore Here and So Worried Over Sick Dog

Babbling playfully about her new diamond ring and blue felt hat, made right on her head in Paris," Mrs. John McCormick, better known as Colleen Moore of movie fame, smiled her way into Chicago yesterday en route home from a trip to Europe.

Only one thing seemed to worry the little heroine of "So Big" as she stepped from the Twentieth Century limited in the midst of a party composed of her husband and some other minor folks in the party. That was her dog.

"He had a 105 degree temperature," said Dr. W. P. Tegue, who had been summoned to meet the train to prescribe for the huge St. Bernard.

"O, O, O!" wailed Colleen. "He's the only dog I ever loved. We got him at London. You know, I worked there for a week in Zangwill's "We Moderns," you know. Um-hmm! I did the little flapper part Helen Hayes played when it was in Chicago. And Max is only 4 years old—poor little baby. O, O, O!"

Colleen's new ring, she says "Daddy," that is her husband, gave her because her engagement ring was stolen. It's a square setting full of diamonds and emeralds.

"But the latest, really latest," says the diminutive actress, "is having your face painted on your handkerchiefs. I got some in Paris."

But Paris isn't so good after all, Colleen says, because she got a shingle there and "it was terrible."

Explorer Tells of Trip Into Southern Jungles

New York, July 10.—[Special.]—Dr. Alexander Hamilton Rice, whose hobby for the last quarter of a century has been prowling about tropical jungles, prying into the secrets of flora and fauna and zoölogy and anthropology and what not, today came back from South America to his home in 5th avenue for a rest. He showed with a great delight a huge blue mecaw, much larger than an ordinary parrot, that tore lints off the two inch plank on which it perched in Dr. Rice's study.

Dr. Rice confirmed the story of white Indians, who recently have had trouble with the Republic of Panama.

Stars of Stage Will Shine for Algonquin Fund

Audience to Be Shielded from the Sun.

If it weren't for Walter McNally, Irish baritone, or the male chorus of "The Student Prince," or the dancing chorus of "June Days," the enthusiasm for the all-star benefit to be staged at Grant park stadium next Thursday afternoon might not be so noticeable. But these are only a few of the features of the entertainment, and altogether these attractions are accounting for a brisk sale of tickets, which indicates the interest Chicagoans feel in the forthcoming event.

Preparations for the show are booming along at a great rate. Carpenters are at work on the big stage. Costumes are being inspected by the theatrical folk. Loud speakers are being installed to insure each and every person in the audience the satisfaction of hearing each speech or song. Every phase of the entertainment has been planned, and step by step the arrangements are nearing completion.

Principals and choruses of the four Shubert attractions, "The Student Prince," "Artists and Models," "June Days," and "Is Zat So?" have been assigned their parts. The hits of these four plays will comprise the program for the afternoon.

Only the west side of the stadium will be utilized for the show, so that the afternoon sun will be behind the spectators. Half way down the stadium arena the stage will be placed as near as possible to the seats, to bring the performers within as close range as possible to their audience.

Reserved seats for the show are on sale at THE TRIBUNE public service bureau, 11 South Dearborn street, at $1. All other seats are priced at 50 cents and are available at the box offices of the Garrick, Apollo, Great Northern, and Princess theaters, the Couthoui stands, and at the public service bureau, 11 South Dearborn street, and in the Tribune Tower.

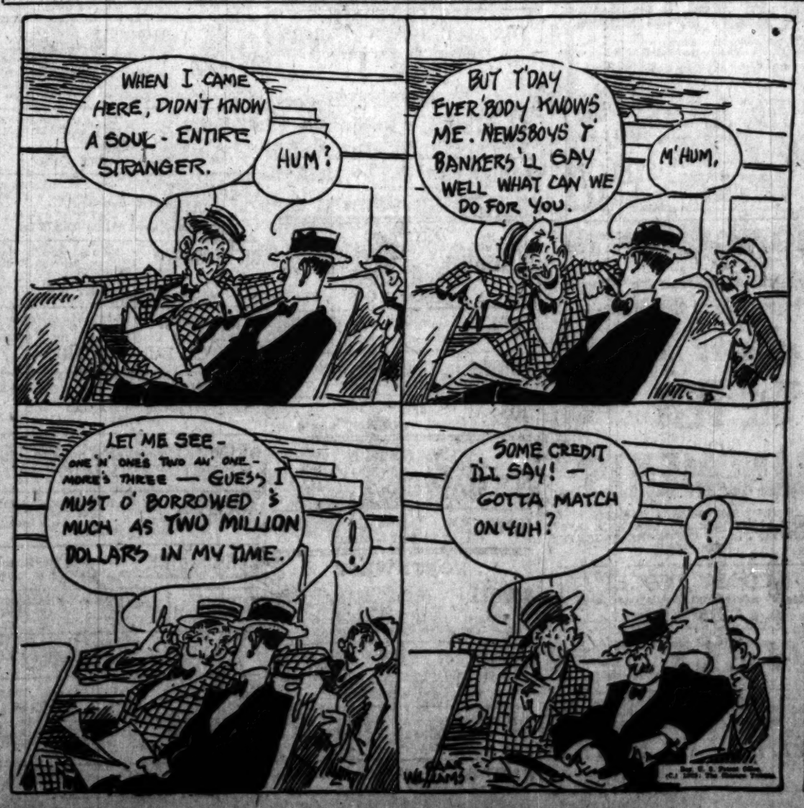
THAT'S WHO I AM



Students Put Health and Character First as Marriage Tests

BY DORIS BLAKE.

In our interest in the modern young woman's outspoken demands relative to qualities her mate must possess, we may have lost sight of the fact that men, too, have a voice in this matter of mate choosing.

The disclosures made in answers to questionnaires submitted to university students throughout the country may make the young women sit up and take notice. The later are not the only ones who are looking at marriage in a serious, sober light. Moral character and health are the two outstanding virtues asked by girls of serious mind and social conscience. Familiar, as girls in no other age, perhaps, have been familiar with the devastating effect of disease on child and family life, our young women invariably head their lists of requirements with "health."

The young men now disclose in answers to questionnaires submitted at various universities throughout the country that health in the women is as necessary a virtue as it is in the man. Health and moral character head the lists of principles governing the modern youth's choice of a lifemate.

At the University of Mississippi 250 male students answering a questionnaire disclose that ninety-eight per cent intend to marry, and the average number of children desired is four. The characteristics they want to find in a girl before they consider her as a life partner follow in order of importance assigned.

1. Moral character.
2. Health.
3. Disposition.
4. Education.
5. Natural mental ability.
6. Willingness to rear a family.
7. Interest in religion.
8. Housekeeping ability.
9. Beauty.
10. Ambition.

These are the ten most important considerations. Others, such as social ability, family connections, artistic or musical ability, mutual or intellectual interests, business ability, wealth, fondness for sports, state or section, and attitude on woman suffrage were minor considerations. At the Ohio state university the typical student asks for a "woman who is of the same race, comes from sound family stock, and has good health and physical attractiveness. Good housekeeping and the ability to care for children are also necessary."

Students at New York university were asked whether they intended to marry for health, for wealth, or for beauty. Forty-four per cent wanted to marry for health, 42 per cent for beauty, and 14 per cent for wealth.

It is a wonderfully happy sign when the new generation looks at marriage through the eyes of health.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

It's Your Move.

"Dear Miss Blake: I kept company with a young man for two years and a year ago I gave him up and have been sorry ever since. How can I win him back? BLONDIE."

Apparently he has found no one to take your place, Blondie, and is waiting for you to say the word. Why not let him know you'd be glad to renew the friendship?

Much Too Much.

"Dear Miss Blake: I have been going with a fellow every night for a month, but of late he doesn't act the same. Do you think I see him too often? JEAN."

Yes, Jean, every night is much too often. If you keep it up, you'll soon tire of each other, and from what you say I judge he's showing signs of it now.

Trick Hat Band.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—There are more ways than one of getting a fancy hat band. If when you bought your hat you didn't get one with a fancy band and if you don't want to get a whole new band when the desire for something fancy springs upon you, you can get one of these little trick articles which will make a plain black band something else again. All you do is buckle it under the bow, and there you are.

Of course, you can't make a blue and red band, or a yellow and green one, with the black foundation. The manufacturer of this affair isn't going to do a sleight of hand trick for you and make the original black band do a disappearing act, but you can add a little color.

The whole fancy bands are cheap enough, however, if you want to change your black one for something giddy, and they are easy enough to put on. But if you hanker after a number of changes, a different band for each tie in your summer wardrobe, then you will find the little bands something of a saving.

Speaking of the harmonizing of hat bands and ties, not to mention the rest of the outfit, here is a good one I noted the other day. A man wore a light gray suit, a gray shirt striped with light blue and faint yellow, a tie of silver gray and yellow, and a hat band of yellow and blue. The effect was pleasing and smart.

TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

BY JANE EDDINGTON.

Canned Salmon Recipes.

All canned fish is more wholesome, and undoubtedly safer, if well heated before it is eaten, even when it is to be used for the so-called salads, when it may be heated in the can and cooled. There may be circumstances in summer even more imperative than those in winter, which make it necessary to use canned foods, but these are best when so prepared that they come nearest to seeming like fresh, because used as fresh foods are.

For a salmon hash, take fish from can, pick over carefully and shred, then mix it with an equal measure of mashed potato, add a little salt and pepper and enough cream or rich milk to make the whole of a creamy consistency. Bake in a thin cake and serve in squares. Fine crumbs and bits of butter may be put over the top, but are not essential, although generally used when a small measure of fine crumbs are used with the fish and potato, as they may be. To make it go even further it may be served in nicely molded spoonfuls with mashed potato.

Canned Salmon Soup.—One tablespoon butter, one-half can of salmon of the size holding a standard cup, one tablespoon of flour, one cup of milk, seasonings. Just melt the butter, stir in flour till the blend is as smooth as velvet, add the cup of cold milk, stir over fire until it is thickened and let it stand over the least bit of fire while the salmon is being picked over, or until it gets about twenty minutes of gentle cooking. Shred the salmon and add it to the thickened milk and cook gently for ten minutes. Salt to taste. If preferred the salmon may be gently heated up in a little butter before added to what is a thin white sauce. It is a little richer made that way.

To vary this soup sauté a little onion in the butter before adding the flour. A little nutmeg may be used for seasoning. This will be a little less delicate than the soup made the other way but slightly more substantial seeming.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

MRS. M.: LEMON JUICE IS EXcellent for removing stains from the hands. To keep them smooth and white, rub them several times a day with a mixture of equal parts of camphor and glycerine.

LORETTA W.: NO, FREQUENT brushing of the hair will not cause a loss of hair, but on the contrary increases the growth by stimulating the circulation in the scalp and removing the dandruff. The hair which comes out is loose hair that is ready to fall, but it is soon replaced with new hair. Send stamped addressed envelop for my leaflet on "Care of the Hair."

J. T. E.: YES, A RED NOSE MAY be the result of chronic acne, and it may be hereditary. More often it is due to digestive disturbances, poor circulation, or disturbances on the inside of the nose. Avoid the use of hot towels on the face. Build up the circulation by a cold plunge and sufficient exercise, and keep yourself free from constipation by drinking plenty of water, and eating vegetables and fruits.

Here's a Girl Who Gives Up Vacation for New Fur Coat!

by Antoinette Donnelly

We all have our pet economies, but don't you think we ought to boycott an economy such as Edna plans? How hard Edna works I don't know, but she is employed and has been with the same company two years now, so she must give satisfactory work.

Vacation time rolls round. The other girls all plan theirs. They're rushing around getting new bathing suits, a pair of hiking knickers, lotions to prevent sunburn and freckles, and are getting a load of fun from planning those heavenly two weeks with nothing to do and no having to get up in the morning.

Edna sits looking on smugly midst the girlish enthusiasms. Next winter she is going to have a beautiful fur coat. She is going to buy it in August when the sales are on. That is why she is not going to take a vacation this year. She wants that fur coat! Next winter, when the vacation is forgotten by the other girls, she will be able to parade before their eyes wrapped in a lovely fur piece. Not that we blame Edna for wanting a fur coat! We don't blame anybody for wanting anything they want. But we do think going without a vacation is just not a wise economy, no matter what the fur reward.

Every worker needs a vacation. She needs a change of air, of scene, of food, of physical and mental environment. As a matter of fact, a vacation is an investment—the best you can possibly make. If you spend it in the right way you add a new store of energy. You come back a new being, ready to resume your work with new vigor, courage, confidence. A new sense of power is really what you get from a well spent two weeks' vacation.

Edna might come back so energized and peppy that she'd get a raise presently for work extra well done. Then the fur coat would be a simple matter. Office workers like Edna need oxygen, the pure, unadulterated mountain stuff that you get circulating outdoors.

...se Racing, Polo Compete for Society Patronage This Day

BY NANCY R——.

What will you have for amusement ... week-end, Mr. and Mrs. Beau ...? There's plenty on hand of ... sorts, some of it quite differ... from the usual summer distrac... of tennis, golf, swimming, and ... partying.

For instance, it's Derby day out at ...thorne today, if you'd like to trade the thrills of your favorite links for the thrills of the turf. I'm told that ... Niblack, the Billy Swifts, and the Stuyvesant Peabodys already have ... that for their afternoon enter... Then there's to be polo at ...Onwentsia—the home team to play Du Page county—and more of it at the North Shore Polo club, their team to meet the Detroiters. Generous ...slices of the countryside always turn out for this, the sport of princes.

This evening is crammed with dinners and dances, with, of course, the opera at Ravinia always available. Tonight, Schipa, Hidalgo, Rimini, Rothier, Trevisan, and Papi are combining to make the dusky air melodious with the tunes of "The Barber of Seville."

Tomorrow afternoon Stonebridge House, that beautiful great place which the William V. Kelleys have built for themselves at the west edge of Lake Forest, will be filled [I was going to say "to overflowing," but Stonebridge House is too spacious for that!] from four until seven with the fair and fashionable of two generations, for the senior Kelleys and one set of their "children," the Russell P. Kelleys, have cards out for a tea for a second newly married couple, the Phelps Kelleys. It promises to be one of the smartest and gayest afternoon gatherings of the season.

In the evening Mrs. William Gold Hibbard is giving a party that has a delightful sound, a Sunday evening musical supper. It's to be held in her lovely house and garden in Winnetka. Always an enticing spot, this Willow road domicile is even more so this year, for its clever chatelaine has added a new rococo pavilion in the garden to the south of the house. A gardened terrace borders the pavilion, making an extremely effective whole and a fine place for tea and bridge and other festive affairs.

Day's News in Society

Lake Forest will be gay this evening with numerous parties. Mrs. John H. Hamline is to give a dinner and dance for Miss Winifred Smith, daughter of Walter B. Sollitt, are to give a luncheon on Tuesday for Mrs. Sumner Shannon Sollitt, the former Miss Louise Marshall of Ruleville, Miss., whose marriage to Mr. Sollitt took place on June 25. Free Germany of War Guilt Is Plea of French Writers

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, July 10.—An appeal to the French people to cancel article 231 of the treaty of Versailles, in which Germany was forced to accept the responsibility for the world war, and articles 227 to 230, giving the allies the right to take sanctions against Germany, was issued today over the signatures of 100 writers, professors, and politicians, including Jean Longuet, Henri Barbusse, Robain Rolland, Maurice Rostand, and Victor Marguerite. The nationalist papers say the cancellation of these articles means the overthrow of the treaty and the commencement of a new war.

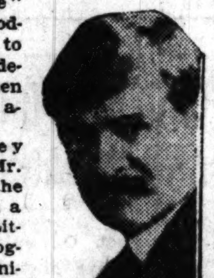
Stephen Leacock Gives Razzberry to Modern Styles in Literature

Crime, a craze for science, newspapers, movies, and other products of the "jazz age" have reduced modern literature to absurdity, declares Stephen Leacock, Canadian humorist.



STEPHEN LEACOCK

And if they haven't, then Mr. Leacock did the trick himself in a lecture on "Literature and Progress" at the University of Chicago last night.

"Today's literature has degenerated to the level of cheap and slangy language of the street—'attaboy stuff,'" he asserted. "We want short, snappy, quick effect writing, delivered with a punch, you know, and entirely devoid of the sustained thought of the old masters. As a consequence we have a broken, degenerated language.

Mr. Leacock kept his audience laughing almost continually.

"It has been 25 years since I graduated from Chicago," he began, "and I have spoken here twice since then. They say there was too much laughter on those occasions, so in order to be serious this time I have prepared this manuscript." And he produced a bundle of papers an inch thick.

The papers, however, turned out to be short stories — sample burlesques from contemporary authors. Each evil in modern literature he illustrated, partially acting the story as he read it. There was a "radio romance" in which the lovers "interlocked antennæ," a crime episode wherein the inevitable "slip of a girl" turned out to be the criminal, and finally a skit entitled "Red Love on a Blue Island," with the plot laid in the "heaving Caribbean."

100 Cheering Boys Tell Sally About White Sox Victory

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Well, the Sox won! I know, because a hundred yelling, arm-waving boys told me so. And what a game it was before Washington finally was licked—if excitement meant anything! From start to finish, I was busy trying to see everything my hundred happy guests were pointing out to me—and I'm still trying to catch up with all that happened during the three happy hours we had yesterday as Mr. Comiskey's guests at White Sox park.

From the very moment we entered the park I was in a whirl. Outside the gate they told me I'd have fun—but I didn't know that we'd be treated to a little circus, with Nick Altrock and Al Schaak pulling the funniest rowboat stunt you ever saw. Then came picture-taking—and that was a treat, you may be sure, with a chance to meet Eddie Collins and Johnny Mostil. I'd had a day's fun, even before the great moment we all took breath, and everybody was quiet, and the first ball was pitched to start the game—but it was nothing compared to the joy that followed.

"Come on, there, Mostil!" the cry would go up. Then we'd sit breathless—and then Mr. Mostil would "come on," with a hit that would bring us all up cheering. Then there'd be a call for Collins—and then the scene would change, with the Washington team at bat. But it couldn't change too fast for my guests. Not a thing did they miss—and they didn't let me miss anything either. And so it went for three glorious hours, while the game hung in the balance—down to the glorious moment when we knew the Sox had won!

Nor did my little guests forget to cheer the man whose generosity had made our good time possible. They made the roof ring with their cheers for Mr. Comiskey, and more than one asked me to tell him what a swell time he'd given them—and everyone who heard them couldn't have any doubt about it. Yes, it was SOME PARTY, to quote my hundred little friends—and I'll venture that Chicago didn't have a single boy last night who was happier than any one of the hundred who filed out with me after the game was over, and went home to tell everybody how the Sox had won.

KEEPING PROMISES

One little lady that I know
Will never keep her promise, so
You know she will forget about it.
She always does, why should you doubt it?
She says she's sorry, takes the blame—
But she's a Goop, though, just the same!

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Needs Clothes Badly.

"I have been looking for a job as a waitress, but my appearance is so against me that I cannot secure work. I am desperately in need of some clothing—a suit or dresses, size 34-36. If some one has them to give me, I shall never forget the kindness, and do my best to return it by helping some one else in need at some future time when I am able. C. G."

Our friend has been ill almost all winter, and has the task of two children to provide for, so you'll help her if you can, won't you?

Needs a Typewriter.

"I have heard of your helping many a person in need through your column and I come to you with the hope that some one has a typewriter no longer in use to pass on to me. I am a blind girl, and am being taught the touch system of typing. If any one is kind enough to offer the machine I can arrange to have it called for. G. F."

The blind are gifted with extreme sensitiveness of touch, so we are sure our friend will be a successful typist. If you are able to give the desired typewriter we shall be glad to put you in touch with her.

Poor Grandfather.

My embarrassment was painful, when my aged, deaf grandfather became frankly peevish because of too frequent visitors. Another deaf gentleman, older than grandfather, felt duty bound each day to call and sit with him. It was impossible for the two to converse, on account of their affliction, so they always sat like logs, unless I shouted back and forth in their ears.

One morning grandfather seemed enraged to be confronted with this same situation and he fairly yelled, "Tell that old fossil to go home!"

The visitor turned to me, asking what grandfather had said. Of course, I had to say, "He says he's so glad you have come."

At this he answered, "Well, it is hard on me, but I'll try to come over oftener, now. F. M."

Trifle Too Hasty.

It was my first year of teaching and I often told my pupils about the university I had attended.

One night a group of my pupils invited me to go to the movie with them. Suddenly the name of the city where my alma mater was situated flashed upon the screen. Thinking that pictures of the university would follow immediately, I called the attention of my pupils to the fact that here was the city where I had received my education—when, to my horror, there flashed next upon the screen pictures of monkeys being trained to do tricks. BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

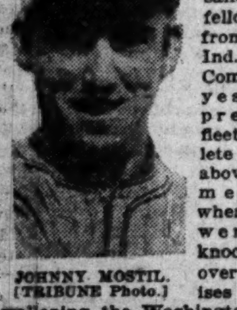
Give Johnny Mostil a $600 diamond ring and a traveling bag every day and the White Sox would never lose a ball game. A couple thousand of John's fellow townsmen from Whiting, Ind., turned up at Comiskey park yesterday and presented the fleet footed athlete with the above mentioned merchandise, whereupon John went out and knocked the ball over the premises to assist in walloping the Washington champions for an even break in the series. Score, 10 to 9.



JOHNNY MOSTIL.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

However, John's display of base hits and his twenty-eighth steal of the season couldn't eclipse the fact that the game was just one of those things. The chief difficulty was pitching, and because of this the affair changed hands several times, but the Sox finally clinched it with four runs in the seventh and then proceeded to give about 25,000 cash customers, lady bugs and school kids a headache by letting the scrappy Senators come within one run of a tie in the eighth.

Johnny Gets Four Hits.

Mostil's activity with the bat amounted to three singles and a double. And once he was hit on the pants by a pitched ball. All of John's clouts helped other base runners toward the ultimate goal and he himself was able to score three times. He almost reached the pan on one other occasion, but they nipped him on an attempted double steal in which Sheely was playing the other part. That happened in the fourth.

The Sox started off so boisterously that in two rounds they had five runs and "Curley" Ogden, the Sheik of Swarthmore, was forced to beat it. One of the tallies was picked up in the first due to Mostil's single, his steal and a wide throw by Rule. The other four went over in the second because after an error on Kamm, Schalk doubled, then Robertson singled, Mostil doubled and Collins singled.

Those five markers should have been sufficient, but they weren't simply because Robertson's foolers ceased to fool. The Senators climbed all over him in the fifth and sixth and by the time Robby induced them to lay off they were ahead by 6 to 5. However, thanks to Mostil's bat and a few other things the Sox tied it in the home half off Vean Gregg, who had held them in check for three chapters.

Marberry Fares Poorly.

When the Hose stepped out and clinched it in the seventh, Fred Marberry was on the knob. A single by Falk started it. A bit by Kamm drove Falk home. Schalk singled and Faber, who had taken over the hurling duties, walked to fill the corners. Mostil's fourth bingle sent Kamm across. Then one of those obscure pebbles such as aided the Senators in the winning of their title last fall took a hand. Davis poked one directly at Peck and he grabbed, but the pill bounced high over his head and two scored. The two were needed as ensuing events proved.

Faber looked like a good hurler in the seventh, but didn't appear the same in the eighth. He walked McNeely for a starter and the Senators immediately broke out with three hits, one of which Hooper let through his paws. Three scored, but Blankenship hustled out and choked off the next two batters. He was equally effective in the ninth, but had the assistance of a couple of swell stops by Davis and Kamm.

The toothless Yanks will be with us today.

'RABBIT' AND 2 OTHER CUBS JAILED IN N. Y.

New York, July 10.—[Special.]—Walter J. (Rabbitt) Maranville, newly appointed manager of the Chicago Cubs, and two other members of the team were arrested this evening after an argument and fight with a taxi chauffeur in Times Square. The chauffeur was also arrested and all four were locked up at the West 30th street police station charged with disorderly conduct.

RABBIT MARANVILLE.

The other Chicago players were Herbert J. Brett and Clark A. Pittenger. The chauffeur described himself as George Werner.

The ball players engaged the taxi a short distance uptown and directed Werner to drive them to Times Square. When they reached the square the meter registered thirty cents and the driver was paid this amount.

Tipless Haul Angers Driver.

The driver is said to have mumbled something under his breath at not receiving a substantial tip and Brett took umbrage at his remark. An argument followed, with Maranville, Brett, Pitenger, and the chauffeur involved.

A large crowd soon collected and Patrolman James Brennan and Charles Pristenari of the traffic squad came up. The policemen tried to pacify the combatants but the ball-players insisted on fighting the chauffeur. The four were then arrested. They were released an hour later when taken to night court.

Rain Prevents Cub Game.

Maranville was arrested in Brookline and in Newton, suburbs of Boston, Mass., on May 18, 1923, for traffic violations while driving an automobile. The case was continued until July 29, when he was fined $100 and his permission to drive an automobile in Massachusetts was revoked.

Rain prevented the final game of the Cubs and Robins in Brooklyn today. It was the second postponement of the series.

The Cubs open with the Giants at the Polo grounds tomorrow. Sheriff Fred Blake or Tony Kaufmann will pitch for the Chicagoans.

Syracuse, N. Y., July 10.—(AP)—Maurice Archdeacon, former White Sox outfielder, now with the Baltimore Orioles, playing the Syracuse stars here today, was knocked unconscious when he collided with George Krahe of the Stars while attempting to slide to third base.

At Memorial hospital, to which Archdeacon was taken, it was stated tonight that his condition was "not serious." He recovered consicousness soon after he arrived. He probably will be in the hospital one week.

PLAYERS WILL BE NUMBERED IN GOLF MEET AT DETROIT

DETROIT, Mich., July 10.—(AP)—Each player on the Lochmoor course here will be numbered next week when play is started in the western amateur golf tournament. This concession to the gallery was first given a test at Worcester, Mass., during the recent national open play there.

The identification will be made possible by large black numerals worn by the players' caddies to compare with the number opposite the player's name on the program.

Several of the competing golfers, including Keefe Carter and Clarence Hubby from the southwest, already have been over the course. Carter completed a round yesterday in 74.

FARM & GARDEN By FRANK RIDGWAY

PLANT VEGETABLES NOW FOR WINTER STORAGE.

ONE of the main reasons so many city home gardeners are growing their own vegetables to be stored in winter is that they have learned the commercial grower's secret of planting special storage crops that mature at the right time for late harvesting. Discouragement always comes when growers stored the coarse, tough, stringy turnips, carrots, beets, and other similar root crops that are grown from seeds planted early in the spring.

During the next few days is the proper time in this section to plant the late garden which will produce fresh, tender crops for immediate use in the fall and for winter storage. Vegetables planted about the middle of July are the right size and texture when freezing weather sets in late in the fall. The practice of harvesting vegetables at the proper stage in midsummer and putting them in storage is no longer considered advisable because the storage period is so lengthened that many of the vegetables wither and rot before they are needed in winter.

For late planting in this section experts recommend these varieties: Beets, Century and Detroit Dark Red. Carrots—Henderson's Coreless, Chantenay, and Nantes Coreless. Turnips—Golden Ball and Purple Top Strap Leaf. Rutabaga—Improved American Purple Top.

Why I Took Up Golf

Harry A. Allen is one of Riverside's sharpshooters. Below he tells why he plays golf.

BY HARRY A. ALLEN.

ABOUT fifteen or eighteen years ago three of my friends coaxed me out to a golf course. They insisted that I play with them. I refused. I laughed at them. It was a huge joke.

Then, in turn, the three of them drove balls off the first tee. After they had finished that they turned on me in a body and insisted that I drive off, too. Again I laughed. Well, they coaxed and kidded me for fifteen minutes, and I finally said that I would take one shot, just to prove to them I wasn't afraid.

HARRY A. ALLEN.

One of my friends gave me a new brassie he had just purchased. He gave me a ball. I stepped up to the tee, placed the ball on a little pile of sand, and made ready to swing. I took a real baseball grip and went back with the club. I put all of my strength in that swing.

I broke that brassie in three pieces. And I've never stopped playing golf since.

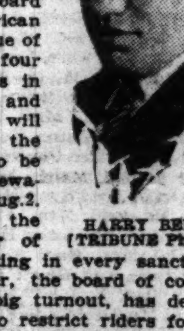
The four leading riders in the junior and senior classes will qualify for the state meet to be staged at Kewanee, Ill., on Aug. 2.



HARRY BERZ.

Because of the large number of riders competing in every sanctioned meet this year, the board of control, expecting a big turnout, has deemed it advisable to restrict riders for the city classic to the best. Only class A riders will be permitted in the senior class, while the juniors will be restricted to boys who have not reached sixteen years of age by Aug. 10.

Every eligible rider is urged to send in his nomination as early as possible. Bicycle clubs are asked to submit the names of their leading riders in both divisions, while unattached riders should send entries to Harry Berz, 1225 South Avers avenue. Entries close July 16.

WOMEN IN STATE GOLF TITLE PLAY AT EDGEBROOK

BY MORROW KRUM.

If you are a golfer with a penchant for match play between two women who are thoroughly familiar with the links, you will find a savory dish at the Edgebrook public course today.

Mrs. Jay S. Cassriel, who registered from the Lincoln Park club, and Miss Edna Hierman of the same club will step away from the first tee about 9 o'clock on a thirty-six hole battle for the championship of the state public parks tournament that has been in progress all week. The tournament is held under the auspices of the Illinois Women's Public Park Golf association.

These two women, who, according to many experts, are of almost equal ability, have fought their way to the finals of the tournament by unusually good golf. Each has downed four opponents in match play and Mrs. Cassriel was low medalist in the qualifying rounds, while Miss Hierman was not far behind.

Mrs. Cassriel Wins Semi-Final.

Yesterday Mrs. Cassriel had little difficulty in winning her semi-final match from Mrs. W. T. Jensen of Edgebrook. Mrs. Cassriel won 7 up and 5 to go. She had a 41 on the out nine and Mrs. Jensen had 47. And Mrs. Cassriel finished the next four holes in 2 strokes over fours. Mrs. Jensen was three over fours and the match ended on the thirteenth.

Mrs. Cassriel won the first hole. They halved the second and third and Mrs. Cassriel won the next three. The seventh was halved and Mrs. Cassriel won the last two on the out nine. Mrs. Jensen won the tenth, the eleventh was halved and Mrs. Cassriel won the next two.

Miss Hierman Beats Mrs. Wallace.

Miss Hierman defeated Mrs. William Wallace of Jackson Park, 2 and 1, in the other semi-final match and had quite a difficult time of it. At the end of the first nine boles Mrs. Wallace was 2 up, a lead that she lost before the twelfth hole. The thirteenth was halved and Miss Heirman won the fourteenth, lost the fifteenth, and then won the next two and the match ended on the seventeenth with Miss Heirman 2 up and 1 to go.

That one semi-final match was a beautiful struggle and Mrs. Wallace's playing won her much applause. The cards follow:

MRS. LEE W. MIDA WINS GOLF MEET OF NORTH SHORE

The North Shore club yesterday held its first big tournament for women on the new course. It was an open day event under the auspices of the Women's Western Golf association.

Mrs. Lee W. Mida of Butterfield topped a field of 100 golfers. She had a low gross score of 45—45—90. Mrs. Miriam Burns Horn took second gross prize with 46—46—92.

There were other prize winners. They were Miss Janet Byrnes, North Shore, 102—24—78, first low net; Mrs. W. Walsh, Westmoreland, 104—17—87, fifth low net, and Mrs. A. D. Collins, North Shore, 31 strokes on 18 greens, the putting trophy.

"Cap" Alicoate, professional at Budlong, and Wilbur Wolfe, formerly of Glen View, will meet Martin Green, provincial champion of Canada, and Bill Wallace, Cook county amateur champion, in an 18 hole pro-amateur exhibition match at Budlong tomorrow at 2 o'clock.

An all star exhibition match will be played tomorrow at the new Bunker Hill club near Niles. Jock Hutchison and Laurie Ayton will play Bill Mehlhorn and Gordon Wright, the home club professional.

This is "southpaw" day at Olympia Fields. The port wheelers will qualify for their annual championship tournament.

At Glen View members who are 45 years of age or older will play the qualifying round for the Fellowship III. cup, which has been in competition since 1921.

BERESFORD IS UNWILLING TO POSTPONE RACE

LONDON, July 10.—(AP)—The London newspapers quote Jack Beresford Jr., English sculling champion, as saying he cannot accede to the request of Walter M. Hoover, American oarsman, that their match race for the Philadelphia gold challenge cup be postponed three weeks.

Beresford cannot spare the time from his business then. Moreover, he holds that Hoover has had a month's training at Henley, and if he has not acquainted himself with tidal conditions on the Thames at Putney he must blame himself.

The race has tentatively been set for next Monday. Hoover, in an interview at Henley yesterday, said final word as to the time and place rested with the cup committee's representative.

W-G-N TO RADIO DERBY

IF you can't get out to Hawthorne today for the Chicago Derby, listen in on W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station at the Drake hotel. It is expected that the broadcasting of today's races will be a repetition of the success of the Kentucky Derby on the air. Jack Dempsey, the expert, will summarize each race before the microphone; Al Sa[...] steward of Hawthorne, will give the story before and after every race. Quin Ryan will describe the spectacle from the roof of the grand stand; and microphones about the track will pick up the shouts of the crowd, the hoofbeats and the music.

AMERICA'S BEST 3 YEAR OLDS IN CHICAGO DERBY

30,000 Expected to View Classic Today.

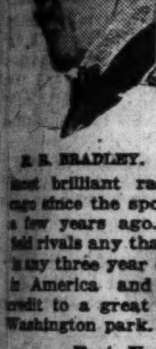
W-G-N TO RADIO DERBY

If you can't get out to Hawthorne today for the Chicago Derby, listen in on W-G-N, The Chicago Tribune station on the Drake hotel. It is expected that the broadcasting of today's race will be a repetition of the success of the Kentucky Derby on the air. Jack Dempsey, the turf expert, will summarize each race before the microphone; Al Sabath, steward of Hawthorne, will give a story before and after every race; Quin Ryan will describe the spectacle from the roof of the grandstand; and microphones about the track will pick up the shouts of the crowd, the hoofbeats and the music.

W-G-N is to go on the air at 2 o'clock.

BY FRENCH LANE.

This is Derby day in Chicago and when nine three year old bluebloods of the turf parade to the post in the $20,000 race at Hawthorne, shortly before 4 o'clock, it is expected a crowd of thirty thousand or upwards will be on hand to do honor to King Horse.



E. R. BRADLEY.

Eight colts and one filly, the Kentucky Oaks winner, Rothermel, will furnish the contest, which should be the most brilliant racing event in Chicago since the sport was revived here a few years ago. The class of the field rivals any that has faced a starter in any three year old event of the year in America and would have done credit to a great American Derby at Washington park.

East Versus West.

It is a typical east against west battle with the west holding the advantage in the number of candidates but outclassed a bit on past performances if the overnight speculation can be taken to mean anything. Dangerous was made the favorite with Silver Fox a closeup second choice, and King Nadi held in the most esteem of any of the western eligibles.

With the exception of American Flag, from the east, and Broadway Jones owned by Edward R. Bradley, every three year old of class in the country is engaged in today's race. It is true Flying Ebony, winner of the Kentucky Derby, is missing, also Coventry, victor in the Preakness stakes, but both of these early season stars have long since gone wrong in training and Gifford A. Cochran, owner of both of them, believes he has a worthy representative in Dangerous.

Advance Throng at Track.

The advance crowd which has been arriving all week came with a rush yesterday, and when the regular Friday card was run off Hawthorne was packed with the largest week day throng of the season. Visitors are here from every section of the country, and the gathering this afternoon promises to be the most representative that has witnessed a turf event in Chicago since Washington park closed its gates nearly a quarter of a century ago.

Among the early arrivals yesterday was Jockey Earl Sande, the best rider in America. He came in during the morning and had a look at his Derby mount Arbitration during the early afternoon. Sande seldom makes a prediction before any race in which he rides, but as he probably could have had his pick of any horse in the race to ride, except Silver Fox, the usual horde of Sande followers will cheer him along on Arbitration today.

Prepares for Big Crowd.

The Hawthorne management, anticipating an enormous crowd, has made every arrangement looking to the comfort of the patrons. The racing plant itself is dressed up in a manner befitting a great turf event. The advance sale of box seats all but exhausted the supply many weeks ago and that it will be a record crowd for Hawthorne seems a certainty.

Chicago is well represented in the race, G. Frank Croissant's high priced Kentucky Cardinal, and Mark Master, from Herbert G. Shimp's international stable, being scheduled to parade to the post, and both are given a chance by many local turf fans to win the race. From Kentucky has come Rothermel, owned by Senator J. N. Camden; Buttin In, from Edward R. Bradley's Idle Hour farm; King Nadi, owned by J. J. Troxler, and Caractus, from the string of C. W. Reidinger.

Derby an Open Race.

It is an open race all right, more open perhaps than if had American Flag been shipped here to take part in it, and the winner will have to be recognized as one of the contenders for the division championship.

A good week day card was run off at Hawthorne yesterday, but the Derby spirit was in the air, and it overshadowed in importance any event that took place during the afternoon of close finishes. The feature event was the Joliet purse, and it went to a Chicago owned horse when George E. Allen came up in beautiful stride in the last sixteenth to nose out The Cheetah, while Pilgrim was third. Polynesia was the favorite, and a red hot one at that, but after keeping pace with the leaders until they hit the stretch he dropped out of the picture.

Favorite players had considerably the best of it during the struggle with the layers, however, for they scored heavily when Wild Heather marched home in the second, on Dr. Glenn's victory in the third and on Royal Duck in the last number.

Alborak upset the talent when he won the 2 year old event which opened the program, and Rosa Greener scored in the fifth.

SHOOT AT IOWA GUN CLUB.

A registered trap shooting tournament will be held at Dubuque, Ia., by the Dubuque gun club tomorrow. Shooters from several states are expected to participate.

IN the WAKE of the NEWS

CHICAGO DERBY.

CHICAGO'S Derby will be run at Hawthorne this afternoon. Considering the caliber of this year's 3 year olds, it is a good field. Both in numbers and average class it surpasses the field of a year ago. Except that the popular Black Gold then was among those present, it offers wider public interest than in 1924.

That three eastern owners send their colts in quest of the honor is tribute to the growing importance of our Derby. You may say the liberal $20,000 added money is the motive. That is not strictly so. While the stake, of course, is an attraction, time and tradition are as much a factor in creating turf classics as the financial reward. It has taken 51 years to make the Kentucky Derby what it is.

Racing is not a poor man's game. Most of our leading owners are wealthy. They will not risk shipment of highly prized and delicate pieces of racing mechanism unless there is honor and reward other than financial. If a thoroughbred goes wrong at this time, it may not recover before the late fall, if at all.

Therefore we are fortunate in having Silver Fox, perhaps second in his class this year to American Flag, Dangerous, and Arbitration, to measure strides against those with whose qualities we are more familiar.

Chicago's Derby is on its way. It will attain added importance each succeeding year. See you at Hawthorne this afternoon!

Retaining the Name.

The Wake congratulates the gentlemen of Hawthorne on keeping the name Chicago Derby. That name is associated with Hawthorne. They might have tried to secure additional prestige by borrowing the name American Derby. That name is associated with Washington park.

The Chicago Derby was first run in 1890 at the old west side park, and was won by Prince Fonso. Thereafter Hawthorne was the scene, the respective winners being Brookwood in 1891, Lew Weir in 1892, Morello in 1893, Vassal in 1894, English Lad in 1904, and Black Gold in 1924.

Cheating Father Time.

Since Tommy Gibbons bit the dust,
The writers all now say
That each must bow to Father Time,
And Youth must have its sway.

Now, Father Time is a grim old man,
And hard to beat at best,
But that old campaigner, Tyrus Cobb,
Is putting him to test.

For Tyrus, after twenty years
At a terrifying pace,
Is still the leader of them all
In the wielding of the mace. BILL X.

Time, :24, :48 2-5, 1:13 4-5. Winner, Mrs. A. Swenke's ch. g., 5, by Dick Welles-Floral Day. Trained by A. Swenke. Went to post at 3:24. At post 1 minute. Start good. Won driving; second same. Scratched: Royal George, Lubeck. Overweights: Aurora, 1; Mary Dear, 2. Dr. Glenn, well handled, was restrained until the last quarter, where he saved much ground, and, moving into the lead, kept Pest safe in the last sixteenth. Pest began slowly and had to race wide, but closed a good gap and finished going gamely. Boys Believe Me had no mishaps and had to be hard ridden to outstay Venus. The latter was given a weak ride and should improve under a stronger rider. Extra Edition came with a rush through the stretch. Mary Dear quit badly.

91557 FOURTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse $1,500. Three year olds and up. Allowances. Joliet purse. Net value to winner $1,000, second $300, third $150, fourth $50.

Won driving, second same. Scratched: Pillager, Marjorie C., Randelle. Overweight: The Cheetah, 2. Corrected weight: G. E. Allen, 99; Statler, 99. George E. Allen moved up with a rush when reaching the stretch and, continuing gamely under a strong urging, outstayed The Cheetah. Latter raced forwardly for entire trip and continued gamely to the end. Pilgrim, probably the best, was out of it for three-quarters, and was ridden all over the track in the stretch and finished with a rush. Polynesia quit badly when urged hard in the last furlong. Cherry Cote was done after going three-quarters. Statler quit.

Won driving, second same. Scratched: Soldier II. Rosa Greener moved up fast after going half a mile, and, saving much ground at the stretch, wore down the leaders and just lasted to beat out Elias O. The later, hard urged for three-quarters, raced sluggishly, but was gaining steadily near the end and would have won at a longer distance. Gorget showed good speed, but tired in the last furlong. Ruban Rouge closed a big gap. Chaplet showed a dull effort.

Won easily, second driving. Scratched: Al Stebler. Corrected weight: Seth's Flower, 99. Royal Duck rushed into a good lead in the first half mile, and, hard urged during stretch, won well in hand. Seth's Alibi moved up steadily after going three-quarters and finished well. Proceeds saved much ground in the last quarter and held on well to the finish. Seth's Flower was probably the best, but was taken back repeatedly and given a listless ride for entire trip. Cruzern quit.

FAVONIAN IS VICTOR IN "GEERS CUP" TROT

Cleveland, O., July 10.—(AP)—The first cup to be raced for in memory of Ed [Pop] Geers goes to the famous driver's former home, Memphis, Tenn. It was won by Favonian, which took the Geers $5,000 stake for 2:06 trotters, feature of today's Grand Circuit card at North Randall.

Favonian is owned by Mrs. Fred Edman and driven by her husband, for forty years intimate friends of the veteran horseman who was killed at Wheeling, W. Va., during a spill last fall.

Favonian Wins Easily.

The stake is one of several to be raced in the circuit in his memory.

Favonian won the first two heats easily, taking the second after Ethelinda went into a break in the stretch. Ethelinda took the third. It was Favonian's third consecutive win of the meeting.

Queen Volo Wins Again.

Queen Volo brought her straight victories to two when she annexed the first division of the 2:16 trot in straight heats.

The second division went to Lady Mac., which won the final two heats after finishing ninth in the first heat, in which she was pulled up to avoid a collision.

The start was delayed while a dozen automobiles, dragging harrows, were driven over the muddy track. The 2:06 pace was postponed until tomorrow. Summaries:

DETROIT POLO TEAM GETS SIX SPEEDY PONIES

Determined to win the last two games of the contest as they did the first two a week ago, Detroit Polo club players have sent on six more fast ponies. These are now quartered on the grounds of the North Shore Polo club where games will be played this afternoon and tomorrow with the local team. The games will start at 3:30.

It is expected that the line-up of the Detroiters will be substantially the same as last week—Eicher, McCarthy, Harrison and Smith.

On the Chicago side, Dr. O. W. Kopp is scheduled to alternate with Hemman and Schultz. Dr. Kopp is one of the local dependables and is expected to give strength to the local aggregation. With Kopp as alternate, the Chicago team will be composed of Hemman, Barger, Lorber and Schultz.

KEARNS NOT TO GREET DEMPSEY

New York, July 10.—[Special.]—Jack Kearns will not be here to greet Jack Dempsey on the heavyweight champion's return to America Wednesday. The manager of the title holder revealed today that he will leave New York tomorrow afternoon, bound for California via Chicago.

With Kearns will go the last lingering hope of a bout between Dempsey and his Negro challenger, Harry Wills, in the fall, for Kearns declared that a fight this year for Dempsey was out of the question because the title holder would not have sufficient time at his disposal to train for an important battle. Furthermore, Kearns entertains the belief that Dempsey will need at least one warm-up battle before the champion undertakes the defense of his title against Wills.

GUN CLUB GIVES ALGONQUIN $35

The Lincoln Park Gun club, an organization composed of real sportsmen, have turned over a check for $35 for the Algonquin fund. This money was donated by the shots at the July 4 shoot. The club is composed of some of the best shots in the country and its traps are open to the public when events are held on Saturdays and Sundays. The club is located on the lake shore at the foot of Diversey parkway. The Algonquin fund check was sent to The Tribune by Dr. Louis Schultze, secretary of the club.

24 SPEED PILOTS RACE TOMORROW

Twenty-four speed pilots will compete in the five event racing program to be held at Crown Point speedway tomorrow.

Included among the entrants are some of the best known drivers in the middle west. Cliff Woodbury, Les Allen, and Esthan Wenneston, who have been racing local tracks for several years, and Harry Nichols, Sonny Talamont, and Ralph Eckstrom, newcomers who have been stealing some of the veterans' limelight this season, are all to face the starter.

Four of the quintette of races carded are sprint events, three at five miles and one at two and a half miles. The trio of five mile tilts will show heavy cars, light jobs, and a miscellaneous group of non-qualifiers who will go for a consolation prize. The two and a half mile tussle will be open to all classes of cars. The final event of the day will be a twenty mile feature.

BOB LANDS A 'GOLDIE' 11,000 FT. ABOVE SEA

BY BOB BECKER.

Mammoth, Cal., July 10.—[Special.]—After negotiating the roughest of rocky trails, and by attacking snow drifts at 11,000 feet above sea level we penetrated the land of the golden trout yesterday to fish for and finally land this, the most beautiful trout in America.

There were times when we would have welcomed an oxygen tank instead of fish, but when we laid upon the grass at the edge of the alpine lake a three and a half pound golden trout, a magnificent fish of orange, salmon-pink and other indescribable tints, we forgot about the hard work, rough trails and thin air as the golden trout is without doubt the most dazzling member of all the trout tribe and worth any fisherman's effort.

Treat for Anglers.

California can surely "point with pride" to this fish. If anglers everywhere knew all about the "goldie," it's matchless beauty and gamey qualities, they would want to fish for this near relative of the rainbow and nothing would keep them from the beautiful California Sierras, which the golden trout calls his home.

However, only those fishermen who are willing to work for fish will ever catch a golden trout as it scorns to live in streams and lakes which are easily accessible at low altitude.

Lake Set in Valley.

Yesterday we started in at an altitude of 7,900 feet, went up to a pass at 11,000 feet where winter has fought the July sun to a standstill, and then dropped down a few hundred feet to a lake which the golden trout have all to themselves. It's between two and three miles long and nearly a mile wide, set in a valley.

Ice water, coming from the many snowbanks around this high Sierra valley, flows into the home of the golden trout and piercing cold winds sweep across the valley. But the goldies seem to thrive under these conditions.

SAMMY MANDELL TO MEET SEEMAN AT EAST CHICAGO

Announcement was made yesterday by East Chicago promoters that Sammy Mandell, the Rockford flash and one of the claimants of the lightweight title, will meet Solly Seeman of New York in one of the double windup bouts of the next show on Friday night.

In the other half of the feature event, Pal Moore of Memphis and Chicago will clash with Harold Smith of the stockyards in a bout which should create a lot of interest. It will be the second meeting of the pair, their first clash resulting in about an even thing.

In the other bouts Paul Allen, the University of Illinois featherweight, will take on King Rollo of the west side for six rounds. Tommy Herman and Willie Brown of the west side, who were listed to mingle at Aurora a short time ago, will meet in another six round affair. The other contests will bring together Norman Brown of Hyde Park High school, and Emil Baksic of Whiting, and Jack London and Jack Gordon of the west side. In all there will be forty rounds of boxing.

Harry Greb to Fight at Cleveland July 16

Cleveland, O., July 10.—(AP)—Maxie Rosenbloom, New York, was matched to box Harry Greb, Pittsburgh, middleweight champion, ten rounds at the Taylor bowl here July 16. Pete Sarmiento of the Philippines and Benny Bass of Philadelphia have been signed to box ten rounds at the Olympic arena July 20.

In Motordom

By J. L. JENKINS

AFTER years of steady improvement work and a good roads campaign which has been backed by virtually every native of the northern peninsula of Michigan, the state highway department yesterday announced the opening, July 15, of state highway 48, the direct trunk line between Manistique and Sault Sainte Marie.

Several hundred automobiles are expected to make the run between the extreme eastern end of the peninsula and the northern terminus of the new road as part of the highway opening celebration. Completion of the route forms another link in the excellent system of improved roads which now reach into practically every corner of the northern playground.

July 15 also will mark the opening of the new south drive linking the outer boulevard in Grant park with the Grand and South Park boulevards. The Chicago Motor club announced yesterday that the club will be closed Wednesday afternoon, while all of its service and pathfinding cars and scores of member machines join in the parade and motor review which will feature the opening. Workmen were busy yesterday putting the finishing touches on the great improvement in Grant park and preparing for a record breaking pavement celebration.

Edward A. Blumenthal, Chicago distributor for Gabriel snubbers, announced yesterday that all Chicago owners of snubber equipped cars are to be given free adjustment and inspection service and urged operators of the 38 makes of automobiles now using the device as standard equipment to bring their cars in for the service. Distributing headquarters are located at 2636 Indiana avenue.

TERRIS BATTERS HUDKINS IN GO AT EAST CHICAGO

(Picture on back page.)

Sid Terris of New York, one of the strongest contenders for the lightweight title left vacant by the voluntary retirement of Bennie Leonard and with all the actions of the retired champion, defeated Ace Hudkins, of Omaha, in the main event of the boxing show at East Chicago last night. At the end of the bout, Terris had won six of the ten rounds, Hudkins two, and two were even.

AC EHUDKINS. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Terris, one of the cleverest lightweights seen in these parts in the last two years with the possible exception of Sammy Mandell, of Rockford, hooked, jabbed and uppercutted his way to a clean victory. He out-generaled the Omaha boy in most of the rounds and at times made Ace miss in ridiculous fashion.

Hudkins Hits Low.

Hudkins bored in continually, let his punches go from any angle and hit Terris on all parts of the anatomy except on places which would bring about the desired results. As early as the first round Hudkins let loose with low punches and in the second session had to be warned by Referee Dave Barry for foul hitting. It appeared at times as if Ace unleashed his punches without knowing where they were going.

On the other hand, every move Terris made was for a purpose. While it is true he backed away continually, it was the only way he could successfully fight his opponent, who never once broke ground despite the punching he received around the face, head and body. In fact, Ace was dangerous at all times and even in the tenth round, which was about even, he was dangerous and trying at all times with long, wild right and left swings.

Terris Starts Fast.

Terris won the first round and jarred the Omaha battler with a solid right cross just before the bell. Sid's clever footwork and ability to step out of range of Hudkins' blows showed almost at once he was the master of the situation.

The New Yorker had a shade in the second round despite the fact he was hit low on three occasions. He cuffed his opponent about the ring with short right and left hooks and near the close of the session caught Ace on the jaw with a solid right.

Hudkins assumed the aggressive in the third round and landed some telling body punches. The Omaha battler also caught Sid on the jaw with a long right swing and Terris was forced to cover against the ropes. Ace had the edge at the bell.

Terris Wins 3 Rounds.

Terris was master of the situation in the next three rounds; honors were about even in the seventh session, and Terris had the edge in the eighth. Hudkins was entitled to the ninth round because of his chasing and his landing the more counting punches. In this round Terris appeared tired and apparently was resting for the final round which was about even.

Terris gave the Omaha fighter everything he had, but Ace came back with just as much. As the fighters left the ring they were loudly applauded and the opinion of fans as they left the arena was that it was one of the best fights seen around Chicago in the last two years.

In the ten round semi-windup Harry Felix of New York won from Joe Azzarella of Milwaukee. The New Yorker was far too clever and outboxed his opponent in all but three of the rounds. Azzarella had a shade in the second, while the third and tenth were about even. They met at 135 pounds.

Ray Miller Wins.

Ray Miller, the west side featherweight, making his first fight since his return from the coast, scored a technical knockout over Moe Ginsburg of New York in the eighth round of their scheduled ten rounder. In the third round Ray caught his opponent on the jaw with a left hook and Moe took the nine count. From this point until the eighth round, when Ginsburg's seconds tossed in the towel as the silent sign of defeat, Miller had all the best of the milling, with the easterner hanging on.

Archie Bell of New York, who is making his home in Chicago, won all the way over Carl Feiber of Milwaukee in the six round opener. Lou Denny, Aurora, defeated Mack Defino, local Filipino, in the four round opener.

About 6,000 fans paid approximately $22,000 to see the show.

MOORS PUSHED BACK BY FRENCH FROM KEY TO FEZ

Declare Drive Against Taza Is Balked.

FEZ, French Morocco, July 10.—(AP)—The French official communique today says most of the enemy tribesmen who recently came south of the Ouergha river as part of a threatened Riffian drive upon Taza have been forced back to the north side of the river by the French. It is reported Abd-el Krim intends to organize an aviation corps and build an airdrome at Sheshuan.

Offer Peace Terms to Krim.

PARIS, July 10.—(AP)—Events in Morocco are interpreted as confirming that the principal objective of the rebellious tribal leader, Abd-El-Krim, remains Fez, headquarters of the French. The strategy he is employing is stated here to be undoubtedly European, while the manner of fighting is Moroccan.

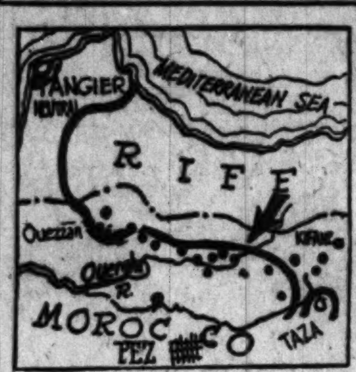
Horacio Echevarrieta, Spanish millionaire ship owner, who has several times been employed in treating with Abd-El-Krim, will, it is understood, present terms to the leader which have been drafted by the Franco-Spanish conference at Madrid. It is believed he will be accompanied by Maj. Aguilar of the Spanish army. The terms probably will be made known to Abd-El-Krim next week at Ajdir.

Calls Situation Serious.

The correspondent of the Temps at Fez describes the situation in Morocco as "neither brilliant nor compromised, but simply serious." Formerly, he says, the French troops found it not difficult to overcome warriors whose only quality was to know how to die. The difficulty of the French task can be conceived when fighting an adversary who today knows perfectly how to fight.

"The day is gone," he adds, "when a general like Gouraud could march through Morocco with a column of 3,000 men. The proportions are completely reversed. Today the warlike capacity of the enemy has doubled, while our young and slightly trained infantry has lost three-fifths of its capacity."

PUSH MOORS BACK



The French have forced the Moors, who were driving on Taza, key to Fez, north of the Ouergha river, according to yesterday's French communique. It is claimed that the south side of the Ouergha is now almost cleared of hostile forces.

DOLLAR A YEAR MEN SOUGHT AS U. S. DRY CHIEFS

Washington, D. C., July 10.—[Special.]—The work of reorganizing the prohibition enforcement service of the treasury, which was entrusted to Assistant Secretary Andrews by Secretary Mellon, is proceeding rapidly, and hope is expressed by officials that by Aug. 1, when the new plan becomes effective, Gen. Andrews will have chosen the twenty-two administrators who are to succeed the 48 state directors now in charge of enforcing the Volstead act.

In selecting the administrators, Gen. Andrews is proceeding along the lines that marked the development of the war industries board under the direction of Bernard M. Baruch of New York. He is trying to attract to the service experienced business administrators of the type of the "dollar a year men" who served in posts of importance during the world war.

Under the present system of prohibition enforcement the country is divided into 48 districts, each following state lines and each under the control of a state director.

U. S. Cut in 22 Parts.

The new districts—twenty-two in the United States and one each in Hawaii and Porto Rico—conform as nearly as possible to the judicial districts.

In rebuilding the prohibition enforcement personnel Gen. Andrews is paying special attention to the two districts in New York and the districts having headquarters in Chicago, Boston, and Philadelphia.

These districts—or at least some of them are in the midst of what is regarded as wet territory.

SHOOTS SELF IN KNEE, HAND.

Tony Lisieski, 19 years old, 660 O'Brien street, was examining his revolver in Stafford park last night when it was accidentally discharged. The bullet struck him in the right hand and the right knee. He was taken to the county hospital.

DEATH OF GIRL FOUND IN RIVER HELD SLAYING

Peoria, Ill., July 10.—[Special.]—Investigation of the death of Miss Barbara Dvorak, whose body was found in the Illinois river yesterday, was begun today after the coroner's jury held that the young woman had been slain.

As the lungs contained no water the jury concluded that the young woman had not taken her life by drowning as at first was supposed. The body was sent to Chicago today.

Mary Dvorak, sister of Barbara, testified that the young woman had disappeared Monday morning during a fire in a launch owned by the girls. Mary said she had been told the launch was on fire and had run to the river from their home.

Returning to the house with neighbors, Mary found the doors locked and her sister gone. A search was begun and Barbara's body was found yesterday in the river.

SEEK STATE ST. STORE OFFICIAL; CHARGE FRAUD

A futile search has been under way for more than a month for trace of Daniel A. Clark, a petty official of a State street department store, who is charged in warrants with defaulting several thousand dollars from his employers, it became known yesterday.

Meanwhile Clark's wife and his six young children are deserted in the former clerk's south side home near 31st street and Blackstone avenue. According to Detective Sergeants John Noonan and Michael Trant, who are in charge of the search, one theory advanced is that Clark has fled to Hungary, his native country.

Clark's alleged system, by which he is declared to have defrauded his employers for months before detection led to his flight, consisted of "padding" the charge accounts with the store of his fellow employés. The exact amount of the alleged loss has not been made public.

U.S. LINES WILL MAKE HAVRE MAIN PORT FOR FRANCE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, July 10.—The United States shipping board lines completed negotiations today to use Le Havre as their main European port instead of Cherbourg. When the new route is opened the big ships of the American lines will only touch Plymouth and Le Havre, thereby reducing the crossing one full day. The smaller ships will touch these ports and then proceed to Hamburg.

The channel at Le Havre is only seven meters deep and it must be dredged to a depth of eight and one-half meters to enable the Leviathan to come alongside the gigantic new docks being constructed there.

Passengers will step directly into trains waiting at the dock, reaching Paris in three hours instead of having to made the present seven hour trip from Cherbourg to Paris. The new service will commence in 1927 at the latest.

N. Y. AIR LETTER HERE AND BACK WITHIN 42 HOURS

Washington, D. C., July 10.—[Special.]—A time test of the new overnight air mail service between New York and Chicago made by Lester D. Gardner, editor of Aviation, has proved highly satisfactory to Mr. Gardner, from whom Postmaster General New received a complimentary telegram today.

Mr. Gardner said that "a round trip letter" mailed in New York at 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon was delivered by air mail in Chicago the following morning, remailed there, and was delivered in New York this morning at 11 o'clock. The time between mailing in New York and delivery there of the same letter was 42 hours.

"Congratulations on fastest service in world," the editor of Aviation telegraphed to the postmaster general. "Letter was in air sixteen hours on the two nights and demonstrated the great utility of new service."

Warren S. Stone's Estate of $10,000 Left to Widow

Cleveland, O., July 10.—(AP)—The will of Warren S. Stone, late president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, probated today, bequeathed his entire estate of $10,000 in stock and bonds to his widow, Mrs. Carrie E. Newell Stone. Dated Aug. 11, 1923, it contained but forty-seven words.

A Married Woman's Folly

Many a woman has made the mistake of giving the babies all her time and attention, forgetting that a husband never ceases to need her companionship. Flo made this mistake—then was guilty of an even more fatal blunder when she invited her old friend, the fascinating Mavis, to come and live with them. It's Another Banner Year for The Boston Post

For seventeen consecutive years the Boston Post has set the pace in Display Advertising, leading all newspapers in its territory by a very wide margin, and, for the first half of 1925, rolling up the remarkable total of more than Five-and-One-Half Million Lines. This excludes classified and is without special editions or artificial stimulus whatever.

During this long seventeen-year period the Boston Post shared fully in the copy on practically every sales campaign of any note—and carried many exclusively. This record of success has given it a position of dominance in its field accorded to very few newspapers in America.

On top of a large volume of Display Advertising carried last year, the first six months of 1925 show a gain by the Post of 125,140 lines of Local (retail store) copy and a gain of 73,842 lines of General (national) Advertising.

The Post's Lead for the half-year is:

A Quarter-of-a-million lines over second paper
A Third-of-a-million lines over third paper
Three-and-a-quarter million lines over fourth paper
Three-and-a-half million lines over fifth paper

The Post is First in Automobile Display Advertising, also First in Food Product Advertising, while its lineage in Radio Advertising equals that of the second and third papers combined.

STEEL TONNAGE SHOWS DECLINE; PROVES SURPR[ISE]

BY O. A. MATHER.

With orders for steel consid[ered] one of the most reliable industrial [indi]cators, the monthly report, iss[ued by] the United States Steel corp[oration] yesterday, was disappointing.

The reduction of 339,342 tons [in un]filled orders during June was [consid]erably larger than expected. It [brought] the total of unfilled orders d[own to] 3,710,458 tons, the lowest lev[el since] last October, when the tot[al was] 3,525,270 tons.

June marked the fourth su[ccessive] month to show a decrease in t[onnage] which has declined from 5,284,77[1 at the] end of February. About the on[ly com]fort that could be derived from [yester]day's figures was the fact that [the] tonnage is still almost 500,000 ab[ove the] figures of June 30, last year, w[hen the] total was 3,262,505 tons. Last [month's] decrease in tonnage indicates t[hat in]coming business was only slightly [less] than in May, probably about 2,0[00 tons] a day. Shipments held about ...

Southern Railway Apprais[al].

The situation of the Southern R[ailway] as the strategic system of the [rapidly] developing south and with conseq[uent in]creasing earnings was complicat[ed yes]terday by an adverse valuation ... by the interstate commerce comm[ission]. The valuation was well below th[e value] carried on the company's books.

As of June, 1916, the Southern's ... owned property was valued a[t] ...,000, while the road's book[s] ...,214. Its total capitalizati[on] was $632,476,473 but this also cov[ers in]vestments in other properties. Th[e com]mon stock amounts to $120,000,000 ... porate surplus since 1916 has in[creased] by $46,692,812 through investme[nts and] now stands at $75,791,639. The S[outhern] officials asserted yesterday that th[e com]mission's valuation does not inclu[de the] road's interest in a number of oth[er] road and terminal properties, whic[h have a] book value around $39,700,000.

Company Rejects Figures.

The statement declared that the [com]pany does not accept the comm[ission's] tentative valuation figure as rep[resent]ing the fair value or even the ... which it purports to appraise." ... ing the tentative valuation of $3... it is claimed that other assets ... be added to bring the total up to ...777,503, which exceeds by $254,258,... figure of $625,468,720 at which the assets are carried on its books.

The Southern is expected to ca[rry the] issue through the federal courts in ... the most important valuation ca[ses] to come up, although first there ... arguments and hearings before th[e com]mission. As valuation figures se[rve as a] guide in determining rates and fa[ir earn]ings, the lower valuation fixed ... commission would tend either ... about lower rates or to sequestra[te earn]ings from the road under the r[ecapture] clause of the transportation act.

Crude Oil Advanced.

The long expected advance i[n prices] of mid-continent crude oil came ... day. They were regarded as ... sult of successive declines in pr[oduction] in recent weeks and the constantl[y grow]ing demand for gasoline.

The principal purchasing compa[nies es]tablished seventeen gradings ... spread of 3 cents a barrel betwe[en each] point of gravity. Previously the[re were] six gradings. The new price ... gravity crude and above is $2.68 a[nd is] an increase of 33c over the p[revious] top price for 42 gravity. The mi[nimum] price now is $1.40 a barrel for 25.9 gravity.

The advance in crude oil was followed by an increase in the w[holesale] price for mid-continent gasoline. Refiners previously had been ... 12¾ and 13½c a gallon.

STEEL TONNAGE SHOWS DECLINE; PROVES SURPRISE

BY O. A. MATHER.

With orders for steel considered one of the most reliable industrial barometers, the monthly report, issued by the United States Steel corporation yesterday, was disappointing.

The reduction of 339,342 tons in forward orders during June was considerably larger than expected. It brings the total of unfilled orders down to 3,710,458 tons, the lowest level since last October, when the total was 3,525,270 tons.

June marked the fourth successive month to show a decrease in tonnage, which has declined from 5,284,771 at the end of February. About the only comfort that could be derived from yesterday's figures was the fact that unfilled tonnage is still almost 500,000 above the figure of June 30, last year, when the total was 3,262,505 tons. Last month's decrease in tonnage indicates that incoming business was only slightly larger than in May, probably about 2,000 tons a day. Shipments held about level.

Southern Railway Appraisal.

The situation of the Southern Railway as the strategic system of the rapidly developing south and with consequent increasing earnings was complicated yesterday by an adverse valuation decision by the interstate commerce commission. The valuation was well below the figure carried on the company's books.

As of June, 1916, the Southern's directly owned property was valued at $251,-[illegible], while the road's books show $[illegible]. Its total capitalization then was $[illegible]476,473 but this also covered investments in other properties. The common stock amounts to $120,000,000. Corporate surplus since 1916 has increased by $46,692,212 through investments and now stands at $75,791,639. The Southern officials asserted yesterday that the commission's valuation does not include the road's interest in a number of other rail and terminal properties, which have book value around $39,700,000.

Company Rejects Figures.

The statement declared that the "company does not accept the commission's tentative valuation figure as representing the fair value or even the things which it purports to appraise." Accepting the tentative valuation of $349,066,-[illegible], it is claimed that other assets should be added to bring the total up to $879,-727,500, which exceeds by $254,258,780 the figure of $625,468,720 at which the road's assets are carried on its books.

The Southern is expected to carry the issue through the federal courts in one of the most important valuation cases yet to come up, although first there will be arguments and hearings before the commission. As valuation figures serve as a guide in determining rates and fair earnings, the lower valuation fixed by the commission would tend either to bring about lower rates or to sequestrate earnings from the road under the recapture clause of the transportation act.

Crude Oil Advanced.

The long expected advance in prices of mid-continent crude oil came yesterday. They were regarded as the result of successive declines in production in recent weeks and the constantly growing demand for gasoline.

The principal purchasing companies established seventeen gradings with a spread of 3 cents a barrel between each point of gravity. Previously there were six gradings. The new price for 44 gravity crude and above is $2.68 a barrel, an increase of 33c over the previous top price for 42 gravity. The minimum price now is $1.40 a barrel for 28 to 28.9 gravity.

The advance in crude oil was quickly followed by an increase in the wholesale price for mid-continent gasoline to 13c. Refiners previously had been offering 12½ and 12¾c a gallon.

Stevens Hotel.

R. L. H., Fond du Lac, Wis.—The $13,-[illegible] Stevens Hotel company [Chicago] first mortgage twenty-year 6 per cent bonds, series A, will be secured by a closed first mortgage on the land, building, furniture and furnishings of the new Stevens hotel to be constructed on the site embracing the entire block front on Michigan boulevard between Seventh and Eighth streets, Chicago. This hotel will have twenty-five stories above the ground and four below and will contain over 3,000 outside rooms, each with private bath. It is said that it will be the largest hotel in the world. The cost of the entire project is estimated at over $26,-[illegible], making this bond issue a loan of less than 50 per cent and the project completed as a going enterprise is appraised at more than the actual cost. The hotel will be under the direct management of Ernest J. Stevens, president and manager of the Hotel La Salle, and will be owned and operated by the same interests that control that hotel. The earnings available for interest, after taxes and depreciation, are estimated at over $2,[illegible], or over 3½ times the maximum annual interest charges on these bonds. A sinking fund sufficient to retire $7,500,000 of these bonds prior to maturity is provided. We regard these bonds as a sound investment.

New York, July 10.—(AP)—Stock prices turned reactionary today on selling, apparently inspired by the marking up of call money rates, the disappointing United States Steel tonnage report for June, and the failure of the oil shares to respond to an increase in mid-continent crude prices.

While isolated points of strength developed in several sections of the list, net losses of a point or two were scattered throughout the list at the close. Trading slowed up somewhat in volume, although the day's sales ran above 1,340,000 shares.

Call money renewed at 3¾ per cent, advanced to 4 and thence to 4½, closing at the top. The withdrawal of balances by interior banks was held responsible for the scarcity of loanable funds. A stiffening also was noted in the time money market.

Steels Relatively Strong.

Except for the acute weakness of the pipe shares, the preferred issues of which broke to the new low levels for the year, the steels held up relatively well. U. S. Steel common closed fractionally higher at 115⅝, while Bethlehem Steel was bid up nearly two points at 41¼ and then eased off slightly. U. S. Cast Iron Pipe broke ten points to 150, and then rallied over two points. Universal Pipe common closed 1¼ lower at 29⅞, while the preferred showed a net loss of 2½ to 67½ after selling as low as 65.

Steady accumulation of Dodge Brothers common, which was bid up over two points to a record price of 29⅜, was one of the day's features. General Motors 7 per cent preferred also attained new high ground, but further weakness cropped out in the Pierce Arrow issues, Mack Trucks, General Motors common and some of the other issues in that group. A renewed demand was noted for Fisher Body.

North American Higher.

North American also was in brisk demand, running up over two points to 54, the highest price since the recapitalization of the company in 1921. Among the few other issues to sell at new peak prices were Metropolitan Edison preferred, Underwood Typewriter, Household Products, Weston Electric Instrument, Phoenix Hosiery and International Agricultural prior preferred, the last named jumping 12 points on one sale.

Oils showed little life despite the announcement of an increase in mid-continent crude prices. A sudden demand for Rock Island common, which lifted that stock up nearly three points to 47¼, enlivened the late trading in the railroad group. Most of the other carriers were heavy although the net losses, as a rule, were fractional.

Hogs scored another sharp advance yesterday when eastern order buyers met with local opposition in a scramble for desirable grades. Outsiders secured 10,000 hogs, favoring 140@175 lb averages, which advanced sharpest. Prices gained unevenly 15c to 45c, comparing extremes with the different angles of Thursday's market, fancy 165 @190 lb averages reaching $14.20 at the time, against a top of $13.95 late previous session and $13.75 at the opening Thursday. Prime 241 lb averages brought $14.15, and 290 lb butchers, $14.10. General average cost of hogs advanced to $13.65.

Cattle Market Steady.

General cattle market showed little change yesterday although quotations on better grades closed at the high time of the week and highest of the year, while inbetween and common kinds were from 50c to $1.00 under prices in vogue at the close of last week. Top beef steers were absent, the best available consisting of 20 head, averaging 1,486 lbs., which sold at $12.90. Butcher stock and canners and cutters were unchanged. Calves sold steady and stockers and feeders slow and weak.

Killing lambs sold freely at strong to 25c higher prices yesterday, with top range stock up as much as 35@40c in spots, due partly to the big improvement in quality. Fancy 79 lb., Idaho lambs topped at $15.90, highest of the week, while 70@86 lb., natives sold at $15.35. Aged sheep shared in the general advance, native ewes weighing 130 lbs bringing $8.00 and 193 lb averages $5.75. Lambs are 25@50c lower than a week ago, while aged stock show that much advance since last week's close.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 500 cattle, 4,000 hogs and 2,000 sheep, against 544 cattle, 8,230 hogs and 1,913 sheep, the corresponding Saturday a year ago.

Probable receipts of hogs at Chicago for Monday are estimated from 32,000 to 45,000. R. Ellis marked 32,000, H. Turner and J. T. Brown, 35,000, F. R. Burrows, 38,000, G. M. Nicoll, C. Southwick and W. C. White, 40,000, W. S. Nicholson and J. M. Waters, 41,000, and A. G. Welhener and W. H. Overman, 45,000.

COTTON MARKETS

Cotton trading was not large and prices were 5 to 10 points lower on the active deliveries. The market was largely a weather affair with high temperatures of 100 to 106 in the southwest, which is said to be unfavorable for the cotton crop. There was good buying on the break, mostly to cover short sales. Trade reports were without material change. Prices in the leading markets follow:

PRICE OF WHEAT DROPS, MAKING OTHER DECLINES

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Grain markets were a disappointment, especially to the wheat bulls, though sentiment mostly was in their favor, but while there were several sharp upturns, the market went to pieces at the last, and closed at the bottom, carrying all other grains down.

At the close wheat was 2¾c lower, oats ⅛to¼c lower and rye 1¼to1½c lower, while corn was 2⅝c higher, with July leading.

There was not a heavy trade in any of the markets and the northwestern markets showed more weakness than Chicago with Minneapolis off 2⅛ to 2½c; Winnipeg, 1⅝ to 1⅝c, and Kansas City, 2⅛ to 2⅞c lower. Corn had more strength than all the other grains and closed 1⅛ to 2⅝c higher on the near futures, with July leading and December up ⅝c.

More Rust Reports.

Black rust reports from the Dakotas were more numerous, with frequent mention of stem rust, which is the most dangerous. The most unfavorable advices came from the Red River valley, where there is too much moisture. There were numerous favorable advices, and the trade was in a receptive mood for news favorable to both sides of the market.

The government report on wheat was construed as bearish and with lower cables from Liverpool there was selling at the start and a good break followed by an advance of around 2c with a break of 3½ to 4c at the last on selling credited to a large Chicago operator who is in New York. The market found inadequate buying support and with moderate hedging sales from the southwest, where the cash demand was said to be slower, a more bearish feeling was created.

Early Gain for Corn.

A smaller estimated crop and acreage in corn than the trade has figured on brought more general buying from local operators and heavy covering by shorts advanced prices from 2¾ to 3c over Thursday's close, which was partly held at the last. There were reports of high temperatures in the southwest and west and no pressure of cash grain. Local traders who had profits were fair sellers on the bulge and the short interest was materially cut down.

A bulge in oats brought fair selling as the government report was construed as rather bearish and there was restricted commission house buying with the close around the low point.

A bullish crop report on rye lost its effect when wheat broke and carried prices down 2c to 2½c. There was nothing showing in the export buying.

Provision trade was larger with hogs up sharply and local shorts and eastern interests on the buying side. Prices in Chicago advanced and lard closed 10 to 12½c higher, bellies 10c and short ribs 2½c. Cash trade was fair, and spot lard in Liverpool 6d lower. Prices follow:

PRODUCE MARKETS

Butter values were steady in the east except in Philadelphia where they declined ½c. In Chicago there was a fair trade and an easy tone. In the cheese trade the tone was firmer in all markets with an advance of ½c in Philadelphia, and a better trade.

Egg and live poultry values were firmer with a good trade. On the Mercantile exchange fresh standards of butter for July delivery sold at 42c to 42⅛c and August at 42⅝c. Standard storage eggs for December delivery were 45⅝c to 45⅞c.

Potatoes brought 10c to 25c per sack advance, while barrel stock sold at former prices. Receipts were 49 cars, with 91 cars on track.

NASH MOTOR CO. VOTES DIVIDENDS OF $4,000,000

The Nash Motor company again yesterday gave its stockholders cause for rejoicing. As a result of a phenomenal increase in business and earnings, the directors ordered the disbursement of nearly $4,000,000 in dividends.

Dividends totaling $10 a share were declared on the 273,000 shares of common stock, being an extra payment of $6.50 and the regular semi-annual dividend of $3.50. This was on top of an extra dividend of $2.50 declared last February. The regular quarterly dividend of $1.75 a share was declared on the $15,055,200 preferred stock. All dividends are payable Aug. 1 to stockholders of record July 20.

President Charles W. Nash reported that net income for the three months ended May 31 was $4,193,850 after all expenses, charges and taxes had been paid. This compares with $1,501,000 for the corresponding period last year. The current income was equivalent, after preferred dividends, to $14.40 a share on the common stock. The value of sales for the current period was about double that for the corresponding months last year. He said the outlook is bright and that the company will increase its output by 100 cars a day as the result of plant expansion now under way.

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

The late weakness in wheat created a feeling that the bull side is uncertain, and that bulges are being used by longs and hedgers, as well as by a few local bears, to sell on. All the breaks are also used by friends of the market to make purchases, and the market fluctuates between an oversold and an overbought pit condition.

J. P. Griffin, in an extended review of the wheat situation, says that total supplies of wheat in the United States this year are 750,000,000 bu, against 974,000,000 bu last year. The crop this year in all positions is 200,000,000 bu short. He believes that, should we export 75,000,000 bu and if our import duty is not reduced, the price of wheat in this country will soar to the world's level plus the import duty. He sees nothing in the situation to justify lower prices.

S. C. Harris says there is still enough hazard connected with the crop outlook to make it advisable to confine sales to hard spots. If the spring wheat prospect continues as good for another week, wheat prices will decline 10c a bu at least from this level.

Central Illinois is complaining about wet weather and its effect on wheat in the shock. Reports of this kind have been coming all week.

"The corn market has been under continuous pressure for some time, due to the confident belief that there would be a sharply increased acreage planted to corn where wheat was abandoned," says Bartlett-Frazier. "It now appears that the acreage is only a trifle over last year's. Under these circumstances there is small probability of anything except a moderate corn crop at best, and the trade is likely to see a disappointing crop."

Russell's News says: "The decrease in food grains, potatoes, and fruits is 321,000,000 bu. In addition there is approximately 20,000,000 bu less wheat in the carryover than last year, and 10,000,000 bu of rye, or a total of 30,000,000 bu decrease in the supplies of old grains carried over."

A Broomhall cable said: "Liverpool wheat market acts easy in the face of less favorable new crop outlook in western Europe. Sales of Russian wheat to France were at $1.54 a bu. He says that this is having a bearish influence generally, but no quantity of importance will be shipped until late in season."

The Kansas wheat crop this year is 74,139,000 bu, as given by the state report, which is about one-half of last year's crop. The grain is plumper, weighs nearer normal, and tests much higher in protein. Some 15 counties in the north central part of the state produced only enough wheat to reseed this fall, and because of faulty distribution most of these counties will need to import some seed.

WALL STREET NOTES

NEW YORK, July 10.—(AP)—Heavy selling for both accounts turned the main course of prices downward in today's curb market, but failed to check the sharp upward movement in several industrial and power stocks in which favorable developments are believed to be pending. Oils failed to make any response to an increase in Mid-Continent crude prices, leading to rather widespread comment that the industry was confronted with unfavorable factors which have not yet become generally known. Rumors of new production were mentioned.

Heavy buying of Continental Baking A, which moved up two points to a new high record for the year and then canceled half its gain; a sharp runup of over 4 points in Franklin Manufacturing, which touched a new top at 42, and the resumption of trading in American Rayon Products, which held firm around 43, were the outstanding features in the industrial list. Pathe, Kelvinator, and the Durant Motors were heavy.

Power and light stocks developed considerable irregularity. Power Corporation of New York moved up briskly on the announcement that stockholders would be given an opportunity to subscribe for additional stock at $40 a share on the basis of one share for each ten now held. Commonwealth Power moved up 4 points to 167 and National Power and Light fell 3 to 338, other changes being of little importance.

BY AL CHASE.

Plans are being drawn by Marshall & Fox for a ten story sixty apartment building to be erected by Edward C. Waller Jr. at 7321 South Shore drive. The flats will have four, five, six and seven rooms and work will start as soon as the plans are ready. Completion date is set for May 1, 1926. The building will be in the colonial style of architecture.

Mr. Waller bought the site from James S. Stephens for a reported $75,-000. The house now on the grounds was the New Jersey building at the World's Fair in 1893. S. Williams of McKey & Poague, was broker. That firm will manage the new building.

$150,000 Flat Deal.

The twenty-four flats at the northeast corner of 54th and Kimbark have been sold by Harry E. Raymond to Walter H. Rogers for a reported $150,000, subject to $107,000. The Raymond Realty company was broker.

Carl & Ehrenhalt report that the price paid for the 233 acres in Flossmoor, reported in this department on Wednesday as $120,000 according to the county records really was $198,500. They state there was a mortgage of $64,500 assumed by the buyers. This was not shown in the figures supplied THE TRIBUNE by the county recorder.

Buys West Side Flats.

The nineteen apartments at the southeast corner of Jackson and Springfield, lot 75x125, have been sold by Ben Rodman to Nathan Ornstein for an indicated $125,500, subject to $61,000. Max N. Stock was attorney.

Raymond G. Carey has bought the apartment building at 1619-33 Wilson avenue from Frank J. O'Donnell for an indicated $130,500.

Hugo B. Hempe bought the sixteen flats at the northeast corner of Addison and Janssen from Mrs. Fay W. Oliver for a reported $86,500.

NEW BUILDING RECORDS MADE FOR THIS STATE

New high records in building were reported for the month of June from 17 of the larger cities of Illinois, including Chicago, according to statistics released yesterday by R. D. Gahn of the Illinois department of labor.

"The continuation of phenomenally high volume of building work of all kinds throughout the state doubtless explains the failure of the employment curve to drop," says the report, which points out generally improved employment conditions for June over several previous months. Building expansion was greatest at Aurora, Berwyn, East St. Louis, Rockford, Rock Island and Murphysboro."

Particularly throughout the storm swept area of southern Illinois are building operations brisk, according to the report. "During the last two months over $400,000 in building operations have been projected in Murphysboro alone," it says.

"Figures in Chicago for June stood at $33,087,100, and in Berwyn and Evanston new projects were estimated to cost over $1,000,000; in Aurora, Decatur, Oak Park, Peoria, and Rockford between $500,000 and $1,000,000, and in Cicero, East St. Louis and Springfield nearly $500,000.

The Original finish of "Blue-Devil-Blue" is next to new; top, upholstery and tires are excellent, and equipment includes snubbers, 2 bumpers, spotlight, mirror, motometer, cowl ventilator, squeegee, spare tire complete. Mechanically we consider it 100 per cent and back it by our new car guarantee. $1,000.

JORDAN 1923 BROUGHAM. A rebuilt, new appearing 4 or 5 passenger closed car, offering unsurpassed smoothness and performance and one of the most beautiful Broughams we ever offered. Slip covers, snubbers, trunk, 5 excellent cord tires, etc. included. First class mechanically; new car guaranteed. A real value at $1,300.

WILLS SAINTE CLAIRE SPORT TOURING. It is rarely that cars in this condition are available, because owners are reluctant to part with cars that have as little service as this one has had. It presents the silky freshness of a new car with its new Battleship Gray finish. Details perfect. Mechanically it will give an exceptionally good account of itself. Disc wheels, 5 excellent tires, snubbers, bumper, motometer, etc., included. We have it at a price that may seem ridiculously low, but do not let the price influence your judgment. $1,000.
